Partnership board meets, digs right in

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

The newly-formed Housing Partnership Board sunk its teeth right into the affordable housing issue at its first meeting Tuesday night.

After electing Thomas Schmitt chairman, Gerard Polcari vice chairman and deciding on a round robin method for secretary and discussing its mission, the board jumped right into a development discussion.

The HPB set its sights on the plan Rocco Scippa surprised the Winchester Housing Authority with a few weeks ago. The plan calls for a seven-story, 174-unit complex to be built on the old mill building site off Cross Street. The site currently houses a newly-renovated office building.

The board decided its best plan of action was to work with developers as soon as possible and outline a set of criteria for the developers to follow. Since Scippa's plan was already in the works, and Scippa has tried to contact board member Thomas Schmitt, the partnership decided to look at his proposal first.

The HPB, established by fall Town Meeting, has no authority to make decisions, only to recommend plans and point out housing grants that are available to the town's elected boards. It must seek the approval of the selectmen, Planning Board and WHA before contacting the state about funding.

In a general policy discussion, Schmitt suggested that the board might ultimately become the developer of affordable housing, but the board agreed that that was far in the future. It instead decided that taking a proactive stance by seeking developers for chosen parcels of land would work better in the short run.

"I see us as an advocate on the behalf of the town," member Dennis O'Malley said.

But O'Malley also pointed out that the HPB would most likely be forced to react to plans developers present to the board as well, such as the Cross Street proposal.

Carter, a developer himself, said he would set up guidelines that potential Winchester developers would have to follow. He said he would also review a plan of the Cross Street site.

The HPB will set up criteria for the Cross Street proposal and a set of broad-ranging criteria at its next meeting. Member Gloria Rosensweig (Please see PARTNERSHIP, page 18)

Housing problems trouble Witt's soul

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

Richard Witt attended his first Winchester Town Meeting this fall with a specific agenda in mind — low- and moderate-income housing.

As assistant rector of the Parish of the Epiphany Witt, who studied at the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge and is going through the ordination process now, represented the consensus of his parish and its decision to become more vocal in town government.

That decision came after a three-week educational program focusing on the town's housing situation. In the

"We spent the last year raising issues and exploring how the whole issue relates to what the Gospel tells us," Witt said. The parish asked itself, "How can we support the housing partnership?" and "What can we do with our money?" In the next year, Epiphany hopes to conduct a series of educational forums about low- and moderate-income housing to gain a better understanding of what it can do for not only Winchester, but the whole area.

Despite his support of the Housing Partnership Board and housing consultant that Town Meeting created, Witt worries about where the town will go from here. "The fear is that a year from now at Town Meeting we'll be right back where we started from, pushing and shoving and letting fear take over," he said.

Town Meeting put in place a process by creating the board and authorizing the consultant, but Witt fears that the process will never be used. "The temptation is to circumvent that process," he said. The board was set up "to explore possibilities, not rehash and reinvent things that already exist. I think that would be the temptation," Witt said.

As a resident of Jamaica Plain, Witt sees the poor and "yuppies" living side-by-side. He sees the housing problem escalating. "A lot of people are at a disadvantage already (because of racism, poverty, lack of education)," Witt said.

It's much easier, he believes, for people who have the opportunity to get an education, or are white and do not experience prejudice to find housing. But even then, "It doesn't take much to shoot us down."

In dealing with housing, Witt believes, racism must also be confronted. Winchester's Interfaith Council — Witt is its treasurer — will hold a Martin Luther King Day program on that holiday. And once a month Epiphany Parish's youth group sets aside time for special reflection on racism, poverty and other difficult social issues.

"We are all racist," Witt said. "We can't help but be racist because of the society we've been brought up in. We have to work to try to overcome those tendencies." (Please see HOUSING, page 18) third week the parishoners looked at Winchester and asked "What could the parish do to help?"

Witt said that after long discussions, the parish decided to support the Town Meeting warrant articles that creating a Housing Partnership Board and a Housing Director. "It is not an easy issue," he said. "The parish has always struggled with issues of justice." To help formulate ideas and decide what part the parish wanted to take in the issue, a housing task force was formed.

Mark Lombardi throws his hat back in the ring

By ROGER L. KAY
Star Editor

Was there ever any doubt? A man as active in town affairs as Selectman Mark Lombardi could not keep himself away from politics, and he has just announced his plans to run for re-election.

While town elections will not take place until next March 29, Lombardi's 3 Thompson St. real estate office already sports a window display of red, white and blue bunting, an article about himself and sample bumper stickers with his name on them.

Lombardi says he was "very iffy" about running again. Harsh newspaper articles hurt his family's feelings, he clarifies. But two weeks ago, his wife gave him the vote of confidence he needed, and his hat is now back in the ring.

"They need somebody like me over there," he says. "I thought there would be a candidate to take my place," he adds, but now says he was wrong about that.

Lombardi has served six years on the board, one year as chairman. If elected he will begin a third term, an honor shared by only four others before him.

"When I go for the fourth term, I'll be the first," he notes.

Candidates do not normally announce until after the Winton Show later this month, Lombardi says. His jump on the others will "either scare off the opposition or call them all out," he adds, half-seriously.

First cut of FY '89 budget set

The Winchester Board of Selectmen will hold a preliminary budget hearing Jan. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the Jenks Senior Center.

The first-draft document projects a deficit of $1,278,000 for fiscal 1989. "This is the first Town Meeting that will have to grapple with the gap," said Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia as she announced the hearing at last Monday's selectmen's meeting.

Copies of the report have been sent to all Town Meeting members and Muggia strongly suggested that elected representatives familiarize themselves with the material and attend the hearing to "really learn the nitty-gritty," as she put it.

Significant cost increases include $100,000 in real estate revaluation, $200,000 in pension costs, $300,000 in group insurance, $314,000 in MWRA charges and $595,000 in debt and interest charges.

Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer, who wrote the report, states that these increases are "far greater than the rate of inflation as well as the normal increases in the operating budgets."

Maurer calls for meetings of town boards and Town Meeting members to discuss possible solutions, full-cost fees for water and sewer services, a review of all fees, a new policy on the usage of the Stabilization Fund, a look at funding major capital projects through debt exemption by referendum.

Muggia stressed the importance of Town Meeting members' reviewing the data prior to the time when the town manager is required to submit the budget to the Finance Committee in mid-February.

"Winchester is a $30 million plus corporation and if you live here, you're a stockholder," she admonished the gallery.

Town offices will be closed on King Day

All town offices will be closed Monday, Jan. 18, for Martin Luther King Jr. Day.

The selectmen's normal Monday meeting will be held Tuesday, Jan. 19, in the Jenks Senior Center.

Schools contemplate tight budget for '89, but maintain most in-place programs

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

The future is now — at least when Winchester's School Department budget is under consideration.

Superintendent of Schools Charles Mitsakos has kept focus on the future in his fiscal year 1989 budget recommendations by addressing the needs of the class of 2000.

"The budget will support a variety of resources and experiences that address diversity of learning styles among students and attempt to prepare students for a life of personal growth that enables them to become contributing members of society," Mitsakos wrote in the introduction to the budget.

The budget's bottom line is more than $12.8 million, a 2.2-percent increase over fiscal year 1988. By far the largest chunk of the budget goes to personal services. Mitsakos plans to spend more than $10.1 million on staffing.

The athletic budget request is $310,750, up from $283,750 in FY88. That takes into account an expected $15,000 drop in the income from gate receipts.

Equipment costs will total more than $122,000, a $50,000 increase from FY88.

Other expenses, including utilities, are expected to total almost $2.3 million. No increase for fuel oil and light costs have been budgeted.

Only one program has been completely eliminated, the full-day kindergarten program. Most others will be maintained. Programs funded by state and federal grants will continue under the support of those governments. Those are the kindergarten/first grade readiness class, secondary school reading and writing across the curriculum, and WIN.

The budget contains no recommendations for new programs. Although elementary school enrollment is expected to rise 2.7 percent, no new buildings will be utilized. Instead, Mitsakos has recommended hiring a half-time assistant principal at the Lincoln School, which is most pressed by the increased population. The high school population is expected to be a little more than 7 percent lower. The forecast for the total enrollment in Winchester schools is 2,825 students.

Despite a drop in the population at the high school, there will not be an equal drop in the number of sections and classes the student have to choose from. Mitsakos also budgeted for the maintenance of elementary school teacher-pupil ratios.

As a reaction to Winchester High School's recent study on social and emotional needs, Mitsakos has included improved counselor-student ratios in the budget.

Collective bargaining agreements are not included in the FY89 budget, but step changes and anticipated track changes are included in the personnel budget.

The Capital Planning Committee will study a proposal for long-range maintenance of school buildings. Mitsakos has developed long-term replacement and purchase programs for equipment, furniture, textbooks and computer hardware.

The School Committee has broken up into sub-committees to study the budget and will hold a public hearing to discuss it Tuesday, Jan. 12, at 7 p.m. in the Lynch Administrative Center.

Fight continues over connection

Sopper raises new points but fails to have vote reconsidered

By ROGER L. KAY
Star Editor

Winchester really will get a new water hookup at Forest Street.

An attempt by dissident Selectman Frank Sopper to get the board to reconsider its previous vote to add another state connection to the town water supply met with failure Monday night.

Selectman Mark Lombardi, who voted for the Forest Street connection at the last selectmen's meeting, opened the discussion. Lombardi said that as one who voted in the affirmative, he wished to reopen the discussion in light of new information.

Selectman Robert Deering seconded the motion and thus enabled Sopper to speak on a subject that had been closed.

Sopper repeated much of his original argumentation and was requested by other board members to keep his comments to any new material he might have.

Sopper had previously hypothesized that the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) was trying to "take over" the Middlesex Fells Reservation, the site of Winchester's reservoir system. As new evidence of this assertion, he cited a press release from the MDC announcing an initiative for new cross-country ski trails in the reservation.

He claimed that park usage of the land is incompatible with reservoir use. He reasoned that if the town receives sufficient water from the state, it will let the reservoirs fall in to disuse and disrepair, and the state can then step in and take control of the land.

He asserted that with the new ski trails, "thousands of people" will come into the area and cause "serious health problems" with the reservoirs, which are not sheltered or fenced.

"There is a plan to make a state park out of it," he posited, a park he says would be the "largest in New England."

He reminded the other board members that state law does not allow the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority (MWRA) to build or maintain water systems for individual towns. He argued that the Forest Street connection will benefit only Winchester and is therefore illegal. He notes that a recently killed bill in the Legislature would have reversed this situation, but that as it stands, the connection is against the law. Sopper indicated that the bill also contained language that would enable the MWRA to "take any land it wanted."

He asked other board members to postpone the connection and request a letter from the MWRA's executive director stating the authority's position on the legality of the improvement.

73 Cross Street, Winchester Call 729-8060

Monday, January 5

At 6:42 a.m. police were dispatched to investigate an accident on Washington Street.

Upon arrival, police found a 1977 Cadillac Eldorado parked southbound across from St. Mary's Church. The car, owned by a Wedgemere Avenue man, had left rear damage. It was vacant and parked legally, according to police reports.

A 1986 Ford van was parked in front of the Cadillac. The driver was in the car. He told police his van was headed south on Washington Street at 20 miles per hour when the van skidded into the Cadillac, police said.

Police reports indicate that the road was icy and slick.

The van driver, a Woburn man, said his wrist was hurt. He was transported to Winchester Hospital where he was treated and released, according to police.

Sunday, January 4

At 5:32 p.m. police reported stopping an Oldsmobile Cutlass for running a red light at the intersection of Cambridge and Wildwood Streets.

A status check on the driver, an Arlington man, showed that his license had been revoked, police said.

Police cited the driver for operating after revocation and failure to stop at a red light.

Two cars collided at the intersection of Highland Avenue and Forest Street at 9 a.m.

POLICE LOG

The first car, a 1972 Plymouth Valiant driven by a Medford man, was waiting to make a left turn from Highland to Forest. The second car, a 1980 Oldsmobile driven by a Reading man, went into a skid while attempting to make a right turn from Forest onto Highland, according to police reports.

Police said the roads were icy and slick.

The Valiant sustained front end damage and the Oldsmobile sustained right, front end damage. Neither driver was injured, police said.

Friday, January 2

At 11:44 p.m. police received a call that a man was violating a restraining order.

When the officers arrived at Rangley Road they saw the man, whom they knew as a Billerica resident, on the front steps of a house that the restraining order forbade from approaching, according to police reports.

Officers asked him to leave the steps and stand near his car. When he did so, he was arrested on charges of violating a restraining order, police said.

A car and a truck collided at 11:51 a.m. on Cambridge Street, according to police.

The truck, driven by a Greensboro, N.C., man, was headed south on Cambridge Street. The car, 1976 Chrysler, was exiting the Star Market parking lot and attempting to go south, when the two made contact, police said.

The truck was not damaged and its driver was not injured, according to reports.

The Chrysler sustained right, front end damage. The driver, a Woburn woman, complained of back pain, police said.

At 9:55 a.m. police were notified that four wheels and tires were stolen from Bonnell Ford on Cambridge Street.

The wheels and tires were removed from a 1988 Ford Mustang sometime between December 31 and January 2. They are worth $300 each, according to police reports.

The car was parked in the middle of the parking lot on the south side, police said.

Thursday, December 31

Police were called to Bonnell Ford on Cambridge Street at 9:38 a.m.

They were told that a Whelen series 9000 bar light had been stolen from a state police cruiser between 9 p.m. the night before and 8 a.m. that morning, according to police reports.

The bar was on a 1987 Ford LTD Crown Victoria that was in for service. Police found that the cable for the light bar had been cut flush with the center pillar, police said.

The approximate value of the bar is $900, according to police reports.

NEWS NOTES

Advisory committee seeks members

The Woburn Loop Citizens' Advisory Committee has yet to gain its first member.

According to Selectman Robert Deering, no applicants have stepped forward for the position, although a letter was sent to all Precinct 8 residents and the job has been posted in Town Hall.

The committee is to be composed of one Precinct 8 resident and two members at large.

Deering says he would like to get the issue of abutters interests taken care of so negotiations can continue with the three large developers who have expressed a desire to purchase large portions of the loop property.

The advisory group is designed for citizens to have some input on how the property gets disposed of. If no one volunteers, the decisions will be made among town officials and the large abutters.

Children's group seeks volunteers

If you would like to help ensure that every child has a fair opportunity to achieve his or her full potential in life, the Winchester-based Mystic Valley Council for children has many exciting opportunities for you.

The Mystic Valley Council for children is one of 42 Councils throughout the commonwealth. Councils are part of the Office for Children, a state agency responsible for recruiting and supporting the involvement of citizens in public decisions regarding children's services. The Council is composed of citizen volunteers who either live or work in the towns of Arlington, Burlington, Lexington, Wilmington, Winchester, or Woburn. Professional staff for the Council is provided by the Office for Children.

The Council's committees advocate to promote quality services and programs for children. At present, the Council has committees working on Employer-Supported Child Care, Respite Care, Family Day Care, Legislative Advocacy, and Adolescent Issues. In addition, the Council's Campership Coalition is again planning to direct a fund-raising program to help send needy children to summer camp. Council members may join a committee of their choice and new ideas for committees are always welcome.

Each year the Mystic Valley Council for Children looks forward to gaining new members who add different perspectives, creative and innovative ideas, and additional enthusiasm. Becoming a Council member does not necessarily have to be time consuming but rather enables members to be informed on children's issues and to have input into decisions on local children's programs and services.

Come meet lots of nice people and learn more about the Council and how you can become involved by attending the Council's next meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 19, at 7 p.m. at the First Congregational Church, 21 Church St., Winchester.

He is winner of more than 70 national awards and for more than a dozen years his work has appeared in the Encyclopedia Britannica's Book of the Year.

Lions Club Santa delivers 150 gifts

For the fourth consecutive year, the Winchester Lions Club has successfully completed its program entitled "You supply the gift, the Lions Club will deliver it via a real live Santa on Christmas eve!"

Packages were delivered on Sunday, Dec. 20, 1987, to a member's local place of business. The gifts were festively wrapped by parents and each identified by their children's names. They were then delivered on Christmas Eve by Santa and his helpers.

"This project is so rewarding," said Biff Kazazian, president of the Winchester Lions Club. "I could have delivered packages to children all night long. The look of amazement when we called the children by name; the gleam on the faces of parents, grandparents, relatives and friends when we arrived at the door bearing packages for their loved ones are but a few of the reasons that we cherish the holiday season."

The Lions Club wishes to thank those who donated a total of more than $400 towards local Lions Club projects. The club said it would like, in addition, to thank the following local businesses: the Swanton Street Delicatessen, the Theatre Service Station, the Winchester Star and Koko Boudakian & Sons for sponsoring the advertisement in the Winchester Star for two weeks.

Rotary luncheon to honor seniors

Ever since 1972, when a committee was at work to form a Council on Aging in the town, the Rotary Club has lent support to the seniors of Winchester. The club has continued its sustaining activities through the succeeding 15 years. Currently it plans to serve a catered prime roast beef luncheon to seniors in the new auditorium of the Jenks Senior Center on Tuesday, Feb. 9, at noon, or on Wednesday, Feb. 10, in case of inclement weather.

Each month of the year, Rotarians focus their attention on civic projects that develop into philanthropic activities. February is the month during which the club gives emphasis to "World Understanding."

Walter Dignam, chairman of the luncheon plans committee, states that the purpose of the meal is to recognize the contributions of seniors to the Town of Winchester through the erection of the Jenks Senior Center and the development of varied programs planned and staffed by volunteers.

The committee handling the publicity for the approaching luncheon and entertainment for seniors consists of Rotarians Walter Dignam, Paul Colella and Peter Segerstrom, and Publicity Chairman of the Winchester Seniors Association Leonor Rich.

The committee asks potential participants to make reservations with the Jenks Senior Center receptionist at 721-7136 to enable it to plan adequately for the occasion. At the present time, Rotarians expect to host approximately 270 seniors. When this number has been reached, space for a sit-down meal will have been filled.

Folk concert set for Feb. 6

The second annual mid-winter folk music concert, presented by Winchester Community Arts, will take place on Sat., Feb. 6 and will feature Lorraine Lee and Bennett Hammond. The performance will begin at 8:00 p.m. in Chidley Hall of the First Congregational Church. (The inaugural mid-winter folk concert was given last year by Bill Staines.)

The duo's repertoire includes original and traditional folk music, particularly music from the British Isles and New England heritage. The program for the Winchester concert is being especially prepared to fit in with the community's 350th Anniversary celebration.

Lee and Hammond, who sing and play dulcimer and guitar, have frequently performed in the Boston area, including this year's First Night celebration in Boston and last November's Blacksmith Folk Festival in Cambridge. They both also have recording credits.

Tickets cost $6 in advance and are available at Henderson's and Book Ends and, if requests are received by Jan. 29, by mail through the Recreation Department (attention: Ellen Knight). Tickets will be available at the door for $8. The concert is co-sponsored by the First Congregational Music Committee which will also have tickets for sale.

How mentally flexible and creative are you?

This test does not measure your intelligence, your fluency with words, and certainly not your mathematical ability. It will, however, give you some gauge of your mental flexibility and creativity. In the three years since the test was developed, few people were able to solve more than half of the 24 questions on the first try. Many, however, reported getting answers long after the test had been set aside — particularly at unexpected moments when their minds were relaxed, and some reported solving all the questions over a period of several days. Take this as our personal challenge.

Dr. Druga passes obstetrics exam

Three members of the Obstetrics-Gynecology Department at Winchester Hospital received notification recently that they had passed the examination of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

The physicians are Donald J. Druga, M.D., 175 Washington St., Winchester; Mark A. Macklis, M.D., 500 Salem St., Wilmington; and Catherine F. Vanderloos, M.D., 107 Woburn St., Reading.

"It is unusual to have three young physicians on the same hospital staff pass their boards in a particular specialty at one time," said John W. O'Grady, M.D., also an obstetrician-gynecologist in Winchester and president-elect of the Winchester Hospital Medical and Dental staff.

Druga, who is in practice with O'Grady and James F. McDonough, M.D., received his medical degree at Case Western Reserve University in 1981. He interned at Cleveland Metropolitan General Hospital and completed residency requirements at University Hospitals of Cleveland. Special clinical interests are colposcopy and the treatment of infertility.

Macklis was graduated from the Pennsylvania State University Medical School in 1979. He completed an internship at Tufts University Affiliated Hospitals and was a resident at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital.

Vanderloos, who is associated in practice with Thomas J. Dowd, M.D., is a graduate of Tufts University Medical School and completed internship and residency at Michael Reese Medical Center.

Board certification is not a requirement or a license to practice medicine. Being board certified means that a physician has met or exceeded national standards in successfully completing an examination given by the medical board representing a chosen medical specialty.

Nutrition Center orientation set

Now that the new year is here, many people are following an annual practice of making New Year's resolutions. As in the past, after a few days, the good intentions are shrugged off: "Oh, well, I got through last year. I'll forget it until next year."

For many resolutions, that is probably all right.

However, when one's health is at stake, putting off an intention to lead a healthier lifestyle can mean putting it off forever.

To help individuals who are 40 pounds or more overweight and who, because of their weight, are at risk of medical problems, the Center for Nutritional Research at Winchester Hospital will hold a free orientation Wednesday, January 13, at 7 p.m. in the Kingsbury Seminar Room at the hospital.

Speakers will be Kenneth Storch, M.D., director; Dr. Ray Mount, psychologist; and the registered nurse on the center staff. They will explain the benefits to be derived from a medically supervised weight loss program.

Pre-registration is required and may be done by calling the center at 729-9042.

As the first baby of the new year, Ryan will receive a stuffed animal from Topsy Turvy at 528 Main St. Winchester Savings Bank will open a $50 education club account in his name and Winchester Co-operative Bank will open a $25 savings account for him. Gustaf Kaufmann, M.D., chairman of the fund development committee of Winchester Hospital, unveils a plaque listing 437 charter members of the hospital's "giving clubs," established in recognition of the institution's 75th anniversary.

Hospital plaque lists giving clubs

Nearly 100 individuals gathered in the main lobby of Winchester Hospital recently for the unveiling of a plaque listing the 437 charter members of the hospital's new "giving clubs."

In all, their donations, totaling $165,000, will be used to buy patient care equipment as called for in the annual fund.

President Eugene E. Loubier and Sumner R. Andrews, chairman of the Board of Directors, were joined by Gustaf Kaufmann, M.D., chairman of the fund development committee in welcoming the supporters and acknowledging their generosity to the hospital and its patients. Kaufmann unveiled the plaque, which hangs permanently in the main lobby.

There are five giving clubs, established in 1987 to recognize the hospital's 75th anniversary and those individuals who have contributed to make Winchester Hospital what it is today.

The President's Club, for donors of $5,000 or more, pays tribute to past presidents of the hospital and their contributions to its growth and progress.

With gifts of $100 to $499, members of the Highlanders' Club recognize the generations of families whose support has helped the hospital.

With gifts of $1,000 or more, physicians and dentists and their spouses and families become members of the Medical/Dental Club, saluting fellow health care professionals or those whose legacy lives on today.

All club members are invited to a special recognition event at the hospital each year in the fall. If they require hospital admission, they may register in the privacy of their patient room.

Resolving To Treat Yourself Well

Jewelry is a treat to own, a treat to wear. Part of what makes it special is that it is valued in our culture as a sign that a person has arrived — the career is going well, the relationship is a good one, the promises made will be kept.

When you make your resolutions for the coming year, resolve to treat yourself as the special person you are, as a person who has arrived at a point in life when you recognize your value.

Look at your watch. Are you wearing a watch you are proud of? Fashion watches are fun and there is nothing wrong with wearing them. You might, however, plan to give yourself a watch of substance, a watch of gold and/or diamonds. Any watch will do, but if you're ready to make nice to yourself instead of making due it might be time to consider a treat.

How about your hands. Are you wearing a ring you enjoy now at your present position in life? You may be wearing a wedding ring and you may be wearing other kinds of rings. In fact, they may be just what you want. If not, consider having those special gems given in love set in a new way that continues to bring you pleasure and that says how valuable you are. People buying engagement rings these days are thinking in terms of two months' salary. For your present status in life, a resolution to make that kind of loving commitment to yourself may be warranted.

Perhaps there are other jewelry items you have admired but considered out of reach. This year might be your year to think about giving yourself that desired pearl necklace or that beautiful pendant. Come treat yourself.

ALS celebrates its first year

By ANNE SCIGLIANO,
Winchester Hospital

In the 12 months since Advanced Life Support (ALS) became available in this area, 3,400 requests for service have been logged in, and 1,170 individuals have been treated. Lives have been saved.

"Our paramedics have responded to the full range of life-threatening conditions, anything from cardiac arrest and multiple trauma to allergic reactions, stroke, pulmonary edema, and chest pains," said Paul Fitzpatrick, director of paramedics for the North Suburban Emergency Medical Consortium, provider of ALS care.

Members of the consortium are Choate-Symmes Health Services, Inc., the Lahey Clinic Medical Center, and Winchester Hospital, whose representatives gathered Dec. 14 to observe the first anniversary of ALS services. Joining them were paramedics and area fire or police chiefs.

"Great strides have been made in the field of emergency medicine during the past 15 years, but none more important than the ability to extend the capabilities of the hospital emergency department to the critically ill or injured patient in the field," Michael S. Erdos, M.D., director of the Symmes Hospital Emergency Department, told the assembly.

"Those of us practicing emergency medicine on a daily basis have all felt the frustration of being unable to revive or resuscitate someone because of the lack of sophisticated pre-hospital care. We have been aware for some time now that the only way to alter these statistics is to be able to deliver advanced life support for beyond the confines of the hospital emergency department. It is for these reasons that our institutions have worked so diligently over the past six years to develop this paramedic service. No one will deny the many regulatory, political and economic obstacles which had to be overcome, but these quickly fade when I think of the 59-year-old man from Woburn who experienced cardiac arrest/ventricular arrhythmia, who left the hospital a week later alive and well. Or the young man from Reading whose car turned over on Route 93 early one morning, who probably would not have made it to a hospital, much less to a trauma center in Boston, without the efforts of our paramedics at the scene."

Looking back over the events that led to the establishment of ALS services, Neil Stroman, vice president for clinical services at Choate-Symmes and chairman of the consortium, said, "The hospitals have shared a commitment to caring by starting and continuing a program that does in fact lose money. With all the publicity that health care costs receive today, it should be especially significant to our communities that these three organizations continue to emphasize patient welfare."

The communities served by the consortium are Arlington, Lexington, Woburn, Bedford, Burlington, Billerica, Wilmington, Reading and North Reading. Winchester will be added in February.

Stroman recalled that the first meeting of the consortium was called April 15, 1981, and one of its first responsibilities was to determine whether ALS was appropriate and needed in this area. "I guess our patient totals in just one year bear this out."

The consortium received "determination of need" approval from the Department of Public Health in February, 1986, and became operational nine months later. "It has gone very well," he said. "The acceptance in the community has been excellent. People have been happy to have the resources available." Referring to the fact that there were a few occasions when the ALS vehicle (a four-wheel-drive Bronco so well equipped with life-saving equipment that it is called an emergency room on wheels) was tied up and could not respond, he explained that the introduction of a second vehicle, expected in February, should prevent this from recurring.

Thirteen paramedics keep ALS ready to respond 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Among the protocols they are trained to perform are administering intravenous therapy, medications when approved by a physician, monitoring cardiac rhythms and interpreting dysrhythmias, transmitting electrocardiograms to the emergency room for consultation by a physician, and applying defibrillation (electric shock) to correct irregular heart rhythms.

Fitzpatrick praised the EMTs (Emergency Medical Technicians) for their cooperation and support. EMTs are community fire or police department employees who provide BLS (Basic Life Support), the first tier of emergency care in the field. It is these departments that receive each request for emergency aid and for transport to the hospital emergency room if appropriate. The call is answered by a dispatcher, whose responsibility it is to determine whether only the town ambulance is sufficient or whether the paramedics should also be called.

"From the time the call comes in, it takes five to 10 minutes for the ambulance to arrive on the scene. The EMTs take vital signs and assess the patient. Depending on his or her condition, they may administer oxygen and take steps to stop bleeding or begin whatever treatment is called for within their level of training.

"If they're doing the job properly, they may get the patient into the ambulance in six minutes. A total of 25 minutes may have passed before the ambulance arrives at the hospital and the emergency room physician sees the patient," Fitzpatrick explained.

"The average paramedics' response time is eight and a half minutes. They average 10 minutes at the scene and nine minutes in transport to the hospital. The big key to all of this is that eight and a half minutes after the paramedics are called, the patient can be receiving advanced life support under the direction of the emergency room physician. Without them, a whole 15 to 20 minutes would have passed before the patient arrives at the hospital and begins receiving this level of care.

"The EMTs don't wait for us to arrive," he explained, praising them for exercising judgment in transporting immediately. "We frequently meet them enroute to the hospital."

It may seem strange to those who have seen a speeding ambulance — sirens blaring and lights flashing — stop suddenly as a much smaller vehicle catches up to it, and its two occupants (paramedics) jump out and into the ambulance.

They quickly assess the patient and decide whether paramedic attention is required. If it is, one paramedic may accompany the patient to the hospital, continuing treatment enroute. If not, the ambulance continues on its way and the paramedics return to headquarters, ready for the next call.

"The condition of the patient is significantly improved with the introduction of advanced life support," said Jon Jenkins, M.D., director of the Winchester Hospital Emergency Room. "Under the direction of the emergency room physician on the radio, paramedics provide very definitive treatment in the field, so that patients are actually improving by the time they arrive in the emergency room."

"The biggest benefit to these patients is the paramedics' expertise in protecting the airway. In the past, a lot of problems arose because the airway was unprotected." Referring to the interaction of EMTs and paramedics to provide "a continuum of care," Jenkins emphasized that they interface very closely in bringing to the patient the skills necessary to improve the quality of pre-hospital emergency care."

Eleanor Hobbs, M.D., director of the Lahey Clinic Medical Center Emergency Department, added, "One of the most viable contributions is that ALS has introduced at a very basic level among the four hospitals and 10 communities a spirit of cooperation that has improved communication across the board. 'The introduction of ALS has served to upgrade the level of emergency care and make it more accessible to the communities,'" she said.

Leonard Redfern, chief of the Reading Fire Department, admitted to being a non-believer. He credited Stroman with convincing him that it would not cost the town anything. "Neil and the consortium have stood by those words. I said we wouldn't use it more than six or seven times a year. The fact is that we use it six or seven times a day. It is making us look good. Whatever you're doing, keep doing it because it's working," he told the paramedics.

By DENNIS BUCHHEIM
Winchester High School

Have you ever been told that senior year is a "blow-off"? ... after all, how difficult could it be to go to the beach every day? Well, here is a message for all juniors: people lie! Anyone currently in twelfth grade or anyone who has experienced the senior nightmare in the past can attest to the fact that, at least until fourth quarter and the receipt of college acceptances, senior year is no picnic.

Why is senior year such an unexpectedly challenging time in the life of an upwardly-mobile high school student? First of all, the courses are harder. With the God-given right to take up to six AP (advanced placement) courses or any combination of AP, honors, and college courses, the average senior is up to his or her armpits in homework. It is certainly more exciting to complete the assignments provided by most twelfth grade courses than it is to attend a movie, go to the mall, or even leave the house. This explains the tendency many seniors have to stay home and guard the house. They do their homework, not because they want to, but because there's something in the Winchester water supply that affects seniors in such a way that they become glued to the chairs in front of their desks at home. Only occasionally does the glue's grip weaken. ... that's when all hell breaks loose.

It seems to me that the Police Department and the fine men and women who teach seniors at the high school must be in cahoots. The teachers probably receive bribes from the police to give such inordinate amounts of homework that no one could possibly finish everything before bedtime (and, if they could, they are not the kind of people who would leave the house anyway.) At any rate, homework is a major factor in ruining the good times that many people associate with senior year.

Why do seniors bother doing all this homework? After all, homework entirely ends all hopes of having any fun during the "blow-off" year.

The answer to the homework dilemma lies in an inexplicable desire that many Winchester students have: they want to go to college. In the eyes of college admissions officers, their senior year grades are not supposed to be significantly lower than those of previous years. ... at least not until fourth quarter. For this reason, seniors attempt to work in their classes, while they write their essays and prepare the other components of their college applications. The stress provided by college applications is definitely anything but enjoyable, and it adds to the negative aspects of the year.

Perhaps the most important in ruining the enjoyment that senior year is supposed to bring to the poor unsuspecting souls who enter twelfth grade thinking it's just like any other grade, but easier, is the fact that the beach is too cold until May. To solve this problem, I recommend shifting the school year to coincide with bathing suit weather. If school began in, say, January, and ran until the beginning of October, seniors (who would be finished with their college applications by January) would be able to go to the beach by the time senioritis had become an epidemic.

An alternative would be to keep the present structure of the school year and have the Parent Faculty Association and the Student Union sponsor a long-term field trip for seniors. The trip should begin as soon as the first snowflakes hit the ground and end in late March.

Where would the learning experience take place? The Bahamas, Tahiti, Acapulco — I don't really care, as long as the water is warm, the air temperature averages about 85 and there are no revolutions taking place. Hmm. ... I could get serious about this possibility!

If a student uses his or her senior year at Winchester High School correctly, it can provide a glimpse of college life. The higher-level courses are almost as challenging as freshman college courses and the social life is different from any other year — well, maybe the bond formed by the glue between student and chair isn't as strong as I originally made it sound.

The teachers and guidance counselors who aid seniors in making it from point A (anxiety) to point B (the beach) are to be congratulated for their work. Without them, the roads would be crowded from September through April.

In all seriousness, their work does not go unappreciated. For all of the struggling seniors who might be reading this article, I would like to remind you (in words similar to those spoken by the immortal Ferris Bueller) that senior year moves pretty fast. If you don't stop and look around once in a while, you might miss it. See you at the beach when the homework becomes totally unimportant. ... that's fourth quarter!

Jeff Stackpole plays at Westfield

Tight end Jeff Stackpole was a member of the 1986 Westfield State College football team that finished the season with a 6-3 record under second-year head coach Jack Murdock. The record was the best ever in the 7-year history of the Fighting Owls' grid program.

The Owls were in strong contention for the New England Football Conference championship before dropping two of their final three games. They were ranked seventh in the season-ending Division III New England football poll and also were rated highly in two national categories — rushing defense (17th, 83.9 yards average) and total defense (16th, 218.8 yards per game average).

Stackpole, a senior mass communications major at Westfield State, is the son of Phil and Alice Stackpole of One Standish Lane, Winchester. He is a graduate of Winchester High School. He finished his outstanding career at Westfield with 49 catches this season, the 20th best mark nationally in the NCAA Division III. The Northeastern University transfer was a first team pick on the New England Football Conference allstar squad.

COMING EVENTS

Boston minister featured speaker for King Day

The Winchester Inter-Faith Council will celebrate the annual Martin Luther King Day holiday with a program to be held this year at the Winchester Unitarian Church.

The Rev. Charles R. Stith, pastor of the Union United Methodist Church in Boston, will be the featured speaker. His topic will be the theme for this year's local celebration of the famed civil rights leader's birthday, "From Charity to Justice."

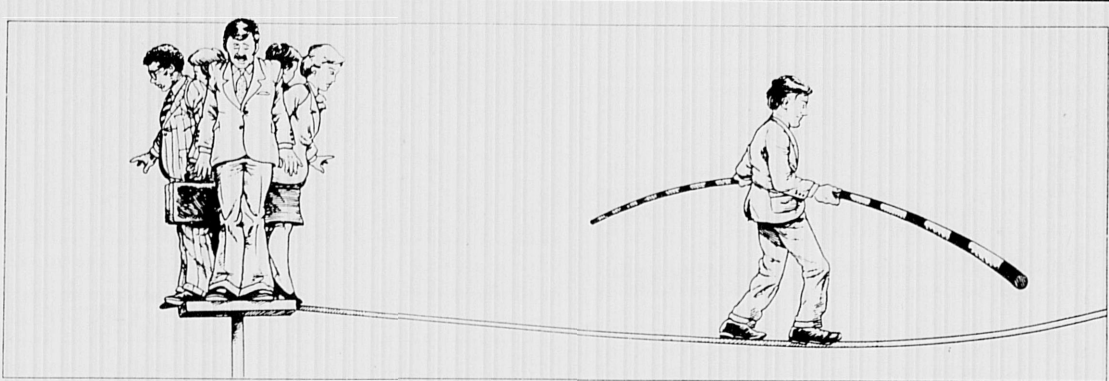

The events will begin at 6 p.m. with a pot-luck supper (people are invited to bring either casserole or salad); following Rev. Stith's talk, the group will be broken into small discussion groups for the purpose of thinking through ways we might move in Winchester from charitable acts to altering the structures which perpetuate injustice.

Marilyn Poole, Education Director for St. Eulalia's parish, will lead singing during the course of the evening; the program is scheduled to conclude by 9 p.m. The Rev. John Bishop, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, chairs the sub-committee planning the event.

The Rev. Charles Stith, pastor of the Union United Methodist Church in Boston's South End, has long been a spokesperson for human justice issues on the urban scene. When the Rev. Jesse Jackson announced his intention to run as a candidate for the President of the United States, he asked Rev. Stith to become the leader of his Chicago based educational agency, PUSH.

His wife, Dr. Deborah Prothrow-Stith, was recently appointed commissioner of the Department of Public Health for the Commonwealth. The Stith's and their children make their home in Boston.

COMMENT

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

The real water problem

There has been much argument about Winchester's water supply among town leaders lately.

The issue hinges on a wide-diameter connection with the state's water supply on the northeast side of town. The selectmen recently voted to allow the state, in the form of the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority (MWRA), to install at its own expense a $2 million link.

Everyone agrees that the connection will make state water more available to Winchester residents. What they disagree about is whether that is a good thing or not.

Selectman and pipe expert Frank Sopper has argued long and vehemently that the state has ulterior motives. He is suspicious that a conspiracy is going on at the state level to take away or gain control of the Middlesex Fells Reservation, in which the town's reservoirs lie.

Other selectmen have pointed out to him that the state already owns the property and that a balance must be struck between the interests of the town and state.

All MWRA water comes from Quabbin Reservoir, a man-made lake situated among the towns of Ware, Belchertown, New Salem, Petersham, Shutesbury, Pelham and Hardwick in central Massachusetts.

The reservoir has 39 square miles of surface area and a shoreline of 118 miles. It is 530 feet deep when 100 percent full.

An MWRA spokesperson said Monday that the reservoir is now filled to 520 feet, which sound pretty healthy. However, at 490 feet, the water quality becomes a problem, the result of turbulent organic matter.

The "safe yield level" of the state supply is 300 million gallons daily. At that rate, water is naturally replenished as rapidly as it is used.

The 43 user-towns now use 330 million gallons daily, 30 million more than the equilibrium level. There is a distance of 40 feet between the full level and the safe bottom level. Viewed with those statistics in mind, the reservoir is only 75 percent full and dropping.

What to do? Hope for lots of snow this winter.

Now ask the question: does the MWRA want to let Winchester's reservoirs fall into disuse? Why would the authority want to lose local resources when pretty clearly it can't adequately supply its clients as things now stand?

Massachusetts law requires, and the MWRA has stated its agreement, that all water resources be protected and utilized to the maximum extent.

It is hard to believe that the MWRA wants Winchester's reservoirs to die.

The MWRA was formed as an offshoot of the old Metropolitan District Commission (MDC), which the state government determined was not doing a very good job of managing the state's water supplies. Perhaps Sopper's conspiracy theory is based on a connection between the two groups. The MDC now deals with state parks, among other things.

The proposed solution is to test the good will of the MDC by asking it to help in the protection of the reservoirs as the park becomes more developed and more people use the area. If the MDC paid for a good fence to run around the circumference of the water bodies, the more suspicious of the town's leaders might be inclined to believe that coexistence is possible.

But the paranoia of certain people is really a small issue. By now most people are aware that water costs are going to increase dramatically in the next few years.

The MWRA has not been at all coy about this. It has widely publicized its problem. The Boston Harbor must be cleaned up. The sewage of centuries lies at its bottom (and maybe not so near the bottom). The cost of the cleanup is estimated at $6 billion, and the MWRA is in charge of it. The money, in the form of water and sewer fees, is going to come from the 43 user-towns in the MWRA system.

Some estimates of the cost of this program put the yearly rate per customer as high as $1,400, nearly in the same category as real estate taxes.

The water from the town reservoirs is, for all intents and purposes, free. There are certain maintenance costs, but the fluid itself is a gift from the sky.

Winchester currently takes about half its water from the MWRA at pre-clean-up rates. If all customers were average and all water was prorated, in the clean-up world, water would cost $700 per year per family.

However, major factors have not been taken into account. Once people start really paying for water, they will react to the economics and start using less. Real water bills will be smaller. Lawns will also be browner and cars dirtier.

Some of the selectmen want to put the water and sewer system on enterprise funding, under which all costs associated with water delivery will be charged to customers in their fees.

Another important initiative is to get the town on a usage-based fee structure. This will end the free ride for the large user and reward the careful consumer.

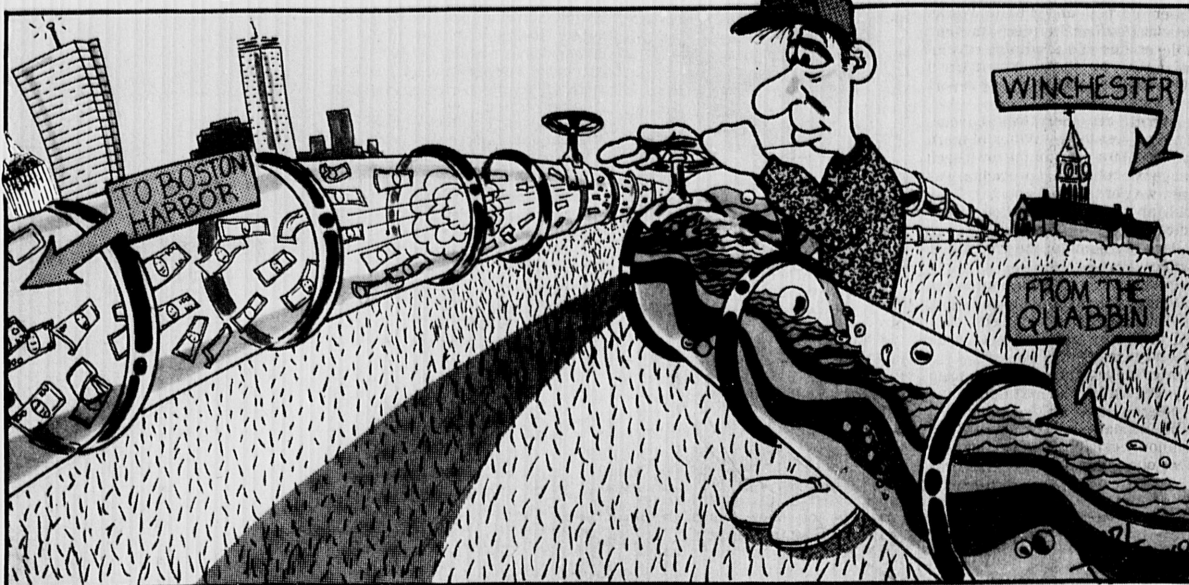

One of the town's largest users, Winn McCord, has already seen the handwriting on the wall and drilled its own well, according to Selectman Thomas Schmitt. Not needing high quality water for industrial purposes, the company can make do with what it can pull out of the ground under the town.

Other large users, Mahoney's Rocky Ledge and Winchester Hospital, need to examine where savings can be made.

The time has come when all of us must recognize the real water problem and take steps to conserve this vital and valuable resource.

Too many trees die for our fun

TO THE EDITOR:

I understand that more than 30 million pine trees were cut in 1987 to be used as Christmas trees. This figure is awesome.

At the start of this New Year I would like to propose that consumers, with the cooperation of local nurseries, consider purchasing rooted pine trees for their next Christmas and if in agreement express their desires to their favorite outlet.

With potted trees consumers would not have to worry about keeping their trees watered every day to avoid the danger of fire from a dried up tree. Consequently at the end of the Holidays the trees would not be dehydrated rubbish but living reminders of the spirit of giving.

In the spring consumers would have an opportunity to decide whether to plant their tree in their own garden or to donate the tree to the highway or park department (Forget about tax deductions — the trees were already enjoyed).

This is a win-win situation. Nurseries would not have additional labor costs for they have to unearth the tree roots to reuse the land. Additional transportation costs would of course be passed on to the consumer who would not lose anything because they would have residual value in their trees; directly, if planted in their gardens; indirectly, if planted along our highways and parks. But above all we would be enriching our country by 30 million pine trees a year. This figure is awesome.

U.N.I.C.E.F. card sales called a success

TO THE EDITOR:

The Board of Church Women United of Winchester would like to thank all those who have helped to make this year's sale of U.N.I.C.E.F. cards and gifts so successful; in particular:

Joseph Stanley of Bookends and Paul Mahoney of Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Nursery for holding the sales at their places of business; this year's coordinators, Mrs. Curtis Jones and Mrs. Robert Bruck of the Parish of the Epiphany and Mrs. Jenness Egle of the First Congregational Church, and the many volunteers from nine Winchester churches who gave so generously of their time to staff the U.N.I.C.E.F. tables; the Winchester Star for helping to publicize the date and location of the sales; and the many merchants who displayed the U.N.I.C.E.F. posters.

Abutter raises some questions

TO THE EDITOR:

In reference to your article "Last Look at 1987 by Sue Shor," this reader would at this time respectfully request a review of the list of news priorities. Here are some questions the residents of Winchester should be pondering on these cold New England nights:

Why did the Town of Winchester purchase the Woburn Loop property? Why, if, as we have been led to believe, the purpose was not to make money, was the price quoted to three developers six times the purchase price?

Why were Articles 7 through 18 tabled and then at the request of a Planning Board member, zoning articles affecting the development of the Woburn Loop opened for discussion and voted on?

Why has there been advance notice of a zoning change in an article for the spring '88 Town Meeting concerning construction for the elderly in a selected area of town?

Does this article coincide with other zoning changes already passed or attempted to be passed at the fall '87 Town Meeting?

All of these zoning changes would have benefited the development of the Woburn Loop. Why were they all not considered?

Why isn't the Woburn Loop being offered to abutters on the entire length — from Winchester center to the Woburn line? If there is a special interest group that is interested in developing properties on the Woburn Loop, let them stand in line after the abutters; there are the people who for years endured the shaking of their homes when the trains went by, and the black soot from years of coal-burning engines, the noise, etc. etc.

In conclusion: If the purpose of government is to protect the rights of the individual, and insure domestic tranquility, then here is an opportunity to witness democracy in action at the grass-roots level.

Concerned residents of Winchester should expect answers to these and any other concerns they might have, from their Town Meeting representatives before the spring Town Meeting begins.

Town Meeting member solicits activism

TO THE EDITOR:

Now that the holiday season has passed, the voters of Winchester must be prepared to answer a "help wanted ad" which will be filed in the Town's March election.

The Board of Selectmen, Planning Board, School Committee, and Housing Authority all have vacancies which must be filled. The qualifications for these vacancies, although on different boards, are remarkably similar. Let's take a moment and reflect upon the requirements for candidates for our town's boards.

First, one must be physically fit. It takes a great deal of stamina to endure the endless rounds of neighborhood coffees, or for the really "trendy candidate," wine and cheese collations. Furthermore, the "dumb detail" is definitely not for the faint of heart, or for that matter, nose. Incidentally, the candidates should try explaining to the patrons of the transfer station why it will cost them more to dispose of less and by all means, please keep a safe distance from the conveyor belt, we don't want any prospective candidate to be trashed.

Secondly, all candidates must have an indefatigable sense of humor. After all, how can one explain mortgaging our children's future to the renovation of the Town Hall? Remember how thrilled Town Meeting members were at the prospect of meeting in July to vote for a bond issue on the Town Hall restoration, the tab for which hasn't been tallied? I'm sure the taxpayers will be rolling in the aisles at the prospect of town budgets gone awry. Remember Abe Lincoln said, "... You can fool some of the people some of the time ..."

Maybe some of the voters won't notice the fact that by supporting this fiscal insanity, the joke is on them.

Finally, but most importantly, all candidates must possess moral courage. They must be prepared to take a stand on the major issues confronting our town like housing, education, zoning and proposition 2½. The road to the Town Hall is paved with difficulties. The incumbents have a record which will be scrupulously examined and judiciously questioned. The challengers should know that slogans and clichés, however attractive, will not endure the test of an electorate searching for substance and direction.

1988 promises to be an important year not only for our country, but also for our town. The future of Winchester is really ours to make. By voting in the March election, and by actively supporting candidates, one takes an active role in determining that future.

Resident bemoans wasted paper

TO THE EDITOR:

In the past I have been philosophical about the waste of our natural resources. Last year I decided to quantify my objections. I started an experiment. I saved all the unsolicited mail-order catalogs that came to my house. By spring I was sorry that I had not included flyers and number 10 envelope mailers, for I began to realize they constituted 50 percent of our daily mail.

The results of my 1987 experiment are as follows: I accumulated a pile of catalogs measuring nearly 30 inches high, 13 inches long and 9 inches wide. Its volume was approximately 1.9 cubic feet of paper and it weighed approximately 60 pounds. Considering that I did not include unsolicited flyers and mailers, the total weight of unsolicited mail for 1987 I guess would reach 100 pounds. If one assumes that this is being repeated in tens of millions of households the total figures (of waste) are staggering.

What a waste of trees that were cut down to make the paper, of colored ink used in the printing of deductive illustrations, of manpower and energy employed in the publishing, marketing, distribution and carting away of these catalogs. For some of us they are the cholesterol of our daily reading.

Granted, the mail order business is one of the fastest growing industries in this country, but at what price are "we" getting wealthier today? Will we have enough oxygen tomorrow to enjoy our wealth?

Seniors thank Ann and Bill Blackham

TO THE EDITOR:

A debt of gratitude is extended to Ann and Bill Blackham, who sponsored the New Year's party at the Jenks Senior Center Dec. 31.

They began in 1984 to provide funds so that seniors could be with others on this important night of the year. Each year thereafter, their generosity has given pleasure to hundreds of people, making possible a gala evening of celebration for those who might otherwise be alone to usher in a new year.

The Blackhams have always shown deep concern for the well-being of the elder residents of the town, including underwriting a videotape that was used for purposes of fund-raising for the building expansion.

Anne Feuss, chairman of the New Year's party and her committee, along with all seniors, deeply appreciate the many philanthropic gifts from the Blackhams.

Resident wants detail on Horn Pond plans

TO THE EDITOR:

The Saturday before Christmas a public meeting was held at the western base of Horn Pond Mountain to outline and locate the plan for the proposed development of that area.

In spite of a bitterly cold morning the wide concern in the project brought out a large number of townspeople, adjacent property owners and citizens vitally interested in our environment and in our unique botanical asset of Horn Pond Mountain.

It is clear that this project is destined to get major town attention from the several boards involved and from the town in general — as it certainly deserves.

Mr. Mark A. Lombardi was present for the Board of Selectmen and took an active part in the discussion. Mr. Daniel Chane representing the Planning Board and Ms. Elaine D. Vreeland, Ms. Susan Saarninen and Mr. Michael Walsh, for the Conservation Commission, showed vital interest. Present also were the two developers, Dick Murphy and Bill McCall, who worked hard to try to indicate the layout of their plans.

I was glad I attended — to see and visualize at close hand the real difficulty involved in a large section of the terrain — difficulty from the sharp grades, the huge ledge formations and particularly to see that a large part of the property clearly involved water table problems.

From the point of view of showing the problems, the meeting was very informative. Everyone present could visualize the difficulties and could see for themselves what disturbs the neighbors. But that was all we could see.

The area had not been adequately staked out. It was impossible to tell what part of the development plan was going where. The two developers worked hard to try to outline their development — where it is going on the property, but the lack of clearly staked-out locations made their effort quite unproductive.

It is clear that before the Planning Board, the Conservation Commission and the Board of Selectmen can even begin to appraise the impact of the development on the neighborhood or on the environment and before they can see where it impinges on the state's environmental laws, a far more detailed layout of the plan must be staked out on the property. It will be an imposition to ask our town boards to try to appraise the impact of the development until the exact location of the buildings and roads are actually staked out and this should be the responsibility of the developers — not of the town.

We are fortunate that unlike the typical developer, the two developers are long-time citizens of Winchester with a long established broad interest in our community. Dick Murphy and Bill McCall should be counted on to take into consideration all aspects of the wide neighborhood, environmental and community concerns about their development and find some practical way to preserve one of our few remaining green areas — which should be a unique town botanical preserve.

Recycling opens new era

By BILL WELLS
Special to the Star

A campaign to change the way Winchester handles its trash will be one of the highlights of the 350th anniversary year.

Waste Study Committee Chairman Walter Farrell and Public Works Director Dominic Serratore announced the outline of a profitable revolution in the way we will handle trash in Winchester in a November report to Town Meeting.

Farrell and Serratore concentrated on results — savings of more than $200,000 a year for the town each year — but behind that prediction was a new way of thinking about the way trash and waste is handled in our society.

Here are some of the benefits of change, they say:

1. a reduction in air pollution, water contamination and ground pollution,
2. a decrease in the continued loss of natural resources such as metal, rubber and petroleum,
3. the energy savings resulting from recycling, rather than extracting and processing new resources, and
4. the ultimate eradication of those commonly-used toxic materials that affect our atmosphere, our natural

Dump receives latest name

It's official.

That area on Swanton Street near the railroad bridge and the Sons of Italy hall is now the Winchester Recycling and Disposal Facility. A new sign at the entrance will spell it out.

The names that the gathering place for dumpers, scavengers, political campaigners and gossips has been given over the years reflects the changes in our local and national feelings. Town Dump, Transfer Station and, now, Recycling and Disposal Facility, all are parts of the country's march from simplicity to complexity, and from innocence to awareness.

protection from harmful rays from the sun and our basic health.

It will be a revolution, as well, in the way individuals act to make this possible. All of us are needed, say Serratore and Farrell; every person, every group, every interest and every business will be part of a team effort. "We need to be one of those pioneer towns, like Wellesley, which demonstrates what people can do to change the world. We can wage the battle against waste here on our own turf," says Farrell.

The campaign is expected to take at least a year to organize and put into effect.

One of the goals is to make it easy, rather than difficult, for people to handle their own trash.

Serratore promises that those businesses now collecting trash throughout the town need not feel threatened. But, he adds that the town needs and looks for their assistance.

The campaign has already begun.

A questionnaire, filled out by citizens picking up their trash disposal permits, indicated that while recycling is familiar to many, it remains a mystery to a sizable portion of the town's population.

A green, bookmark-shaped flyer, detailing specific information about recycling and featuring the D.P.W.'s new recycle logo, has been distributed.

Proposed rules and regulations for the newly named Winchester Recycling and Disposal Facility and a suggested recycling and disposal policy have been prepared for submission to the Board of Selectmen.

Cross-country ski registration now

The Winchester Community Education Program, under administration of the Recreation Department, will be holding advanced registration for the winter cross country ski instruction. The program is open to individuals and families (grades three and up) and focuses on methods and techniques for the beginner. Clothing, waxing, and physical preparation will also be covered.

The program includes one classroom session on Wednesday, Jan. 13, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., and two Saturday outdoor sessions, Jan. 16 and 23, 1 to 3 p.m.

Register Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Recreation Department, McCall Jr. High, 458 Main Street, 721-7125.

Rec. Dept. offers aerobic dancing

The winter session of "Jazzerobics" and "Easyrobics" will begin on Thursday, Jan. 21 in the Lincoln School gym, 161 Mystic Valley Parkway.

Jazzerobics is an aerobic dance exercise program that combines fun and fitness development into choreographed routines. The class consists of warm-ups, strength and flexibility exercises, aerobic work-out and cool down. Class time is 6:10 to 7:10 p.m.

Easyrobics is a low-impact aerobic exercise program that uses upper body movements to increase intensity. The "foot work" is easy to follow since the program is designed to reduce impact on the lower body. Class time is 7:10 to 8 p.m.

Both Jazzerobics and Easyrobics

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL
Volume 14-Report No. 1
Massachusetts House
December 28, 1987-January 1, 1988

The House. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on seven roll calls.

Education Package (H 6371). House 129-25, refused to reconsider earlier approval of a $15 million education package which adds to the education reform act passed in 1985. Provisions include establishment of a system of educational improvement recognition grants to be awarded to individual schools and an increase in the local option minimum teacher salary from $18,000 to $20,000 with the increase paid by the state for the first two years.

Reconsideration supporters said the bill was being rushed through the House and is flawed.

Reconsideration opponents said this is a bill which will help students and teachers throughout the state.

A Yea vote is for reconsidering passage. A Nay vote is for the bill.

Representative Sherman Saltmarsh voted no.

REACH (H 6371). House 133-22, rejected an amendment giving non-cash recognition awards instead of cash awards under the education bill's "Recognizing Educational Achievement (REACH) program which gives cash to schools for improvement and achievement.

Amendment supporters said cash is the wrong approach for achievements which schools are supposed to strive for as a matter of course.

Opponents said the amendment kills the bill and said there is nothing wrong with cash which helps the schools.

A Yea vote is for the amendment providing non-cash awards. A Nay vote is for cash awards.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Teacher Salary (H 6371). House 112-42, rejected an education amendment mandating a minimum teacher salary of $20,000 beginning in July 1988.

Amendment supporters said it is time all teachers are paid a decent salary.

Opponents said salaries should be raised but noted the bill protects home rule while offering incentives which will encourage higher salaries.

A Yea vote is for the mandatory $20,000 salary. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Abortions (2375)- Senate 18-15, refused to table a bill allowing parents or guardians, if notified of their daughter's pregnancy by someone other than the court, to participate in court proceedings of a minor daughter seeking court approval for an abortion. The bill allows parents to participate only if the judge decides it is in the best interest of the daughter and permits the parents to provide medical and other information related to their daughter's health.

Bill supporters said this simply allows parents to participate in the process and give important information to the court.

Opponents said the bill creates an adversarial situation and complicates things for the daughter who may not be getting along with her parents. They claimed the bill will result in minors avoiding court and seeking unsafe abortions.

A Yea vote is for tabling the bill. A Nay vote is against tabling.

Kraus voted yes.

Gay Rights (H 5469)- Senate 16-15, refused to discharge the "gay rights" bill onto the Senate floor for a final vote. The measure prohibits discrimination in housing, credit, employment and public accommodations based on sexual preference.

Supporters, noting the Senate has already given initial approval to the bill, said it is unfairly being held up in committee by Senator Arthur Lewis in order to kill it.

Opponents said Lewis' committee is within its rights to use the rules of the Senate to kill the bill.

A Yea vote is for discharging the bill onto the Senate floor for a vote. A Nay vote is for keeping it in committee.

Senator Richard Kraus voted yes.

Furloughs (H 6030)- Senate 29-2, rejected a move to kill the bill prohibiting furloughs for first degree murderers by substituting a new bill tightening the procedures for granting the furloughs.

Supporters of retaining furloughs said prohibition will give the prisoners no hope and will increase escapes and the murder of guards.

Opponents of retaining furloughs said they must be eliminated to protect the public from these dangerous killers.

A Yea vote is for the bill allowing furloughs. A Nay vote is against allowing furloughs.

Kraus voted yes.

BUILDING THE DREAM HOUSE

Some builders will tell you that they can build a house in 90 to 120 days but rarely, so very rarely, is a house really ready for occupancy 90 or even 120 days after ground-breaking. Even more rarely can a buyer do anything to speed up the process. Actual closing dates usually run one to six months, or more after the date in the contract.

If you are selling your home while having another one built for you (which is usually the case), allow plenty of time beyond the paper closing date on the new property before closing on the old. You can calculate a rough estimate of how much extra time you'll need by talking with people who have already had homes built by your builder.

The risk of setting too early a closing date on your old house is obvious. You'll be forced to move out of it with nowhere to move into. Such a situation could intensify the emotional stress of a move and cost you a bundle in extra living and storage expenses.

DO YOU KNOW WHERE YOUR OILMAN IS?

Not too long ago, homeowners like yourself could give a friendly nod, and answer with a smile. Your Oilheat company was a locally owned and operated firm. Management was likely to be familiar to everyone in the community.

It's a different story today. While the company name may have remained the same, management may have changed. Bigger companies, with bigger trucks (and bigger overhead, I might add) appear to rule the industry.

If you're inclined to agree, then I'd like to suggest our company as an alternative to the "big guys."

We operate a local Oilheat company. Our market is Stoneham, Woburn, Winchester, Reading and Wakefield. Period. We've learned over time that the only way to give personal attention to a residential Oilheat account is to be personally available to customers. The home comfort of our customers is our first and foremost concern.

Now is an exceptionally good time to talk to us. Oilheat is the most advantageous fuel for heat and hot water comfort, economy, and reliability. We have our own service and installation department, should you be thinking of new equipment or remodeling.

We have budget plans, and will assist in financing new equipment work, too. We do all the things the big companies do and would like to think we do them better.

If you let me be your "Oilman," you can answer the above question with ease. "He's right here in town, at MYSTIC/COUNTY FUEL." (And we'll treat your home with personal service and professional courtesy. Always.)

Anthony Gattineri, Manager.
MYSTIC COUNTY FUEL

Many a business stood right on this very same ground

Winchester Center 70 years ago was in a state of flux and was composed of a random assortment of buildings, the majority of which were wood-framed, converted residences.

More substantially built, and hailed as ornaments to the town, were the White Building at Church and Main Streets, the White Block on Mount Vernon Street, and Brown and Stanton Block at Main and Mount Vernon Streets, Winchester Hotel (the "Canonball," a legend in its own time) sited near where Henderson's is today and the wooden three-story Lyceum Hall, also at Main and Mount Vernon Streets, which housed many businesses at its street level.

The most interesting business building was probably Thompson's

WINCHESTER'S 350TH ANNIVERSARY

Block, situated on Main Street where Woolworth's now stands.

Most other businesses existed along the various streets of the center in former houses which in some cases had been moved or chopped up to suit convenience.

The earlier mentioned Thompson's Block was put together soon after the turn of the century, and was so named due to its unique southern section, which was composed of two new street-level stores capped by the 1841 Deacon Benjamin F. Thompson house, (front porch and all) moved off its original site next door, which once contained the Edward Converse house built about 1640.

Due east of this architectural melange was a one-story connecting wing — home of the post office for a time — and east of that and up against the Brown and Stanton Block was another two-story business section that balanced the opposing mass of the transplanted old Thompson House.

Pleasant Street had just been renamed Mount Vernon Street and had two grocery stores, Bowser and Bancroft Dry Goods, Young's Catering and Joe Donohue's Central Hardware.

Main Street had an assortment of businesses: Sweeney's Harness Shop, which offered to repair trunks and bags, C.H. Symmes, dealing in hay, grain and straw, and Robert Dover, who offered to repair light carriages, with rubber tires of all kinds a specialty.

Most of Winchester's markets were on Main Street, with the exception of George Morrill's Store which was run out of a little old two-story house on the site of the present Winchester Star office.

Notable, too, among local businesses were Kelley and Hawes Express, Livery and Boarding, located in the present Cullen barn, the Blanchard Lumber Yard on upper Main Street, and Winchester Laundries in the new "skyscraper" on Converse Place.

Robert Whitney had re-located his machine shop from a site along the river near the present post office to a new building where the Savings Bank now stands, and J.A. Laraway ran a plumbing business out of a building sited where the present post office now sits.

There were many more merchants in Winchester and it is no wonder that C.H. Symmes organized a Winchester Board of Trade in 1918. It is noted in "History of Winchester" by Stone that this organization became the Chamber of Commerce in 1922, but was gradually supplanted by the organization of a Rotary Club in 1927.

One interesting fact of this 350th anniversary year is the many historic milestones to be observed by numerous Winchester organizations.

The present Winchester Chamber of Commerce has come great distances from 1918 in helping to promote the economic and aesthetic health of Winchester Center, and it is fitting to salute its 70th birthday during this year's festivities.

CONVERTIBLE ARM'S

Many lenders are offering a new type of Adjustable Rate Mortgage that gives home buyers the ability to convert their ARM's to fixed rate mortgages without going through the expense of refinancing. There are many variations, and before you decide on this type of loan, there are some important questions to ask.

Each lender places some restrictions on when you can convert your ARM to a fixed rate loan. Some say any time after the first year of your mortgage, and others allow you to opt for the change only at your rate adjustment dates. There is usually some fee for converting your mortgage, although the fees are always much less than refinancing. Also, the initial rate or loan fees may be somewhat higher than they are for a typical. Your Realtor can provide you with information about lenders that offer convertible ARM's, and you can comparison shop for the one that's best for you.

Murphy ends Lowell jinx for wrestlers

By WHITNEY GAY
Special to the Star

Winchester High wrestling captain Bill Murphy became Winchester's first ever winner at the Lowell Holiday Tournament this past week.

In the 119-pound class, Murphy worked his way through one of the toughest weight classes, facing some of the state's finest talent to win five matches and the first place trophy.

In the first match, Murphy pinned Scott Manchester of Shawsheen.

His second match was a 15-3 victory over Jim Shaufus of Waltham. The quarterfinal match was a tight affair against Reading's Karl Liebermann. The semifinal match against Methuen's Shaun Kiley was a last minute come-from-behind 7-6 thriller. In the finals, Murphy was trailing 3-0 going into the final period. With an extraordinary burst, "Murph" nearly pinned Bill Sullivan of North Andover gaining a prestigious victory in the granddaddy of high school invitational wrestling tournaments.

Sachem grapplers keep getting better

By WHITNEY GAY
Special to the Star

The Winchester High wrestling team has climbed to a surprising 6-1 record through the early stages of the season. The seniors have been a significant force in taking control of the matches and leading the way to victory.

Framingham North locked horns with Winchester in a dual meet at Waltham. Dave Banks led off the match with a win by forfeit. At 112 pounds, Sachem underclassman Pete Lobur gained a pin to be proud of in the second period. It was Lobur's first varsity pin.

Bill "Bang 'em up" Murphy continues to roll. The captain gained a technical fall. Greg Falcione, having recovered from illness, took to the mats putting up a "P" for pin. Winchester's Dave McIntosh added a second period which was his first varsity "P." Glen Doherty, having jumped his weight bracket, was unable to pull out a victory. Chad "Chew 'em up" Haskell followed up with a pin turning the momentum back to the Sachem side. Chris Cholmondeley was awarded a forfeit.

Chuck "Cannon" Shannon faced Framingham North's best wrestler. Todd Davis earned a victory over Shannon in a tightly fought match. John "Gio" Giovino flashed his magic and gained a Sachem pin and Ray Bustamante, just back from vacation, gained a solid victory with a pin. Aaron Stevens, in the heavyweight spot, wrestled well but lost to a good Framingham North wrestler. The final score was an encouraging, 54-19, Winchester win.

The second match of the day was against Waltham. Ironically, Dave Banks won by forfeit to open which meant the red-headed wrestler picked up two victories without having to take to the mats. Pete Lobur lost a close match to Rob Brant, 10-8. Bill Murphy dominated in a 11-1 decision. Greg Falcione got the first pin for Winchester and his second of the day and Glenn Doherty won at 130. Freshman Mike Britt got his first varsity win with a second period pin.

Chad Haskell won by decision and Chris Cholmondeley pinned his man. Chuck Shannon had his hands full against Waltham's Jeff Walsh and again lost another closely contested match. John Giovino pinned again and Ray "Roll it up" Bustamante walked away with an 18-2 major decision. Young Aaron Stevens wrestled in the heavyweight spot but lost to a strong Waltham man. A 43-24 victory leads Winchester into its toughest match of the year against Melrose. Saturday brings Lowell to Winchester for a home meet beginning at 1pm.

Coach Tremblay and assistant coaches Neill and Kelley have done a magnificent job filling in the openings in the lineup. The coaching staff helps young men into good competitive athletes. Tremblay feels the seniors have been good leaders and coach Neill feels the underclassmen have shown the ability to learn each time on the mat.

Sachem tracksters rebound from loss to Belmont with a win over Melrose

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys track team split a pair of meets this week, getting by Melrose 48-38 after falling to Belmont, 50-37. Meanwhile, the girls team lost their second meet of the season, 54-30, also to Belmont.

Against Melrose, the boys picked up six first place finishes, including a win in the mile relay. They also swept a pair of events, the mile and the two-mile races.

Trey Skehan led the sweep in the mile with a time of 5:18. Paul O'Neill and Paul Amico finished second and third, respectively. Bill Weylman led the sweep in the two-mile with a time of 11:16. Mike Bett was second and Chris Powers was third.

John Szczepanski and Larry Ferazani finished 1-2 in the 300 while Danny Ciarcia won the 1000 with a time of 2:42. Albie Colantonio and Szczepanski finished 1-2 in the high jump while Albie Cail and Ray Donlon placed second and third in the dash. Victor Gregora finished third in the shot put.

The Sachems were shorthanded against Belmont because several of coach Steve Norton's charges were stricken with the flu. Cail led a sweep of the dash with Donlon and Rob Meehan finishing second and third. Mike Aldridge won the two-mile while Colantonio won the high jump with a Boy hoopsters use total team effort to manhandle Burlington

Sachems take advantage of Burlington's lackadaisical effort to post second win of the Middlesex League season

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys basketball team closed out 1987 with a solid 54-35 triumph over the lackluster Red Devils in Burlington last week. The Sachems will open the new year with a 2-2 record.

Great defense and pure hustle were the keys to victory as the Sachems repeatedly beat Burlington to the loose balls and showed better concentration on offense. Winchester pulled away by holding the Devils to only 10 points in the middle two periods, including only two points in the second quarter. The Sachems went into the final stanza leading 33-20, and they cruised the rest of the way.

Center Eric Emeneau had another solid game on offense and led all scorers with 15 points. Other key performers were Doug Clarke who scored 10 points and senior captain Jon Furey who had nine points. Joe Costello notched five points while Vandy French had four.

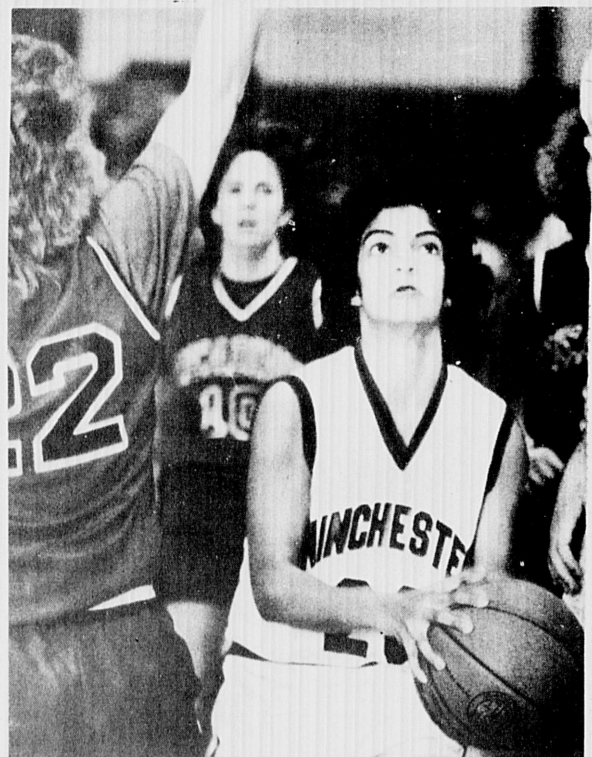

French and guard Mike McGeehan were credited with holding Mike Boudros, the league's leading scorer, in check as he could muster only 10 points in a losing effort. His two free throws in the second period accounted for all of the Devils' scoring in the frame as the Sachem defense never allowed Burlington to get untracked.

Although the score ended up fairly one-sided, the Devils did make a couple of runs at the lead during the second half. The first came in the third quarter when Burlington rolled off six unanswered points to trim the lead to nine. But the Sachems collected themselves in time to increase the lead back up to double digits by the end of the period. The Devils made their final run in the fourth quarter but nine straight Winchester points ended the game and the Burlington hopes.

The Sachems hope to carry some of the confidence built up in the victory into this week's contests with Reading and Stoneham.

Pucksters putting out improved effort

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High hockey team made their strongest showing of the season last Saturday night in a 6-2 loss to Stoneham. In addition to their increased offensive output, the Sachems played more disciplined hockey and looked like a respectable team during the final two periods.

After surrendering three goals in a 37-second span midway through the first period, the Sachems settled down and played much better the rest of the game. Coach Jack Newhall was particularly impressed with the play of his defense which allowed only one goal during the final two periods.

Makato Sato provided a thrill for the Sachem fans when he stole a pass and then rifled it home for the first Winchester goal of the game and only the second for the season.

After falling behind 5-1 at the end of the first period, Winchester put forth its best effort thus far this season in the second period and shut the Spartans out. Goalie Jim McInerney, as usual, was a standout performer stopping all 20 shots which came his way. One significant reason for the Sachems success was more disciplined play as they yielded only one penalty in the period, three for the game. They managed to kill off the Stoneham powerplay and even came back to score another goal of their own.

Junior forward Ed Hackett did the honors this time as he converted a pass from junior Ted Fitzgerald. The goal cut the Stoneham lead to 5-2, but Winchester could draw no closer as the Spartans came up with another tally in the third period for the final count.

In addition to McInerney in goal, the rest of the defense also played well. They include assistant captains John Guilderson and Greg Winn, senior John Hackett, junior Matt Quill, sophomore Eric Saunders and freshman Leroy Hoskins.

The Sachems will again be looking for their first victory of the season when they challenge Lexington this week.

Sachem girls lose a tough one to Lady Devils as streak ends, 43-39

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls basketball team fell for only the second time this season when host Burlington squeaked past them, 43-39, last week.

The game seasawed back and forth with Burlington jumping out in front during the first half. As has been the case in some games early this season, Winchester has had trouble getting out of the starting block offensively. They were held to only 13 points in the first half as the Lady Devils moved out to a 22-13 halftime lead.

The Sachem girls put it all together in the third quarter as they outscored Burlington 19-3 to take a seven-point lead into the final quarter. Julie Kenerson was the key underneath the basket as she scored nine points while guard Denise Delaney had her best game of the season thus far and led Winchester with 10 points.

But unfortunately for the Sachettes, the game slipped through their hands in the final quarter. Led by several of their younger players, Burlington battled back and took the game away from the Sachem girls, outscoring them, 18-7.

Winchester got fine performances from Ritika Bowry (7 points), Allison Price (6 points), Kathy Furey (5 points) and Beth Herlihy (4 points).

Earlier in the week, the Sachem girls hammered Chelsea for the second consecutive time, 33-13. Their record now stands at 4-2, 2-2 in the Middlesex League.

Boys swim team captures first meet with close victory over underrated Brookline, 68-63

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

It was not as easy as they had anticipated, but the Winchester High boys swimming team still managed to edge Brookline, 68-63, to win their first meet of the season.

The outstanding performers in the recent outing were John Murray and T.J. Foley. Murray won the 200 individual medley and the 100 breaststroke while also contributing to the Sachems' winning effort in the 200 medley relay. Foley took top honors in the 200 freestyle, which Winchester swept, and the 100 freestyle with a time of 52.7.

Omar Ali and Alexi Carayanopolous also had fine outings. Both were members of the victorious 200 medley relay while Ali also came out on top in the 50 freestyle with a time of 23.23. Carayanopolous also finished second in the 100 butterfly and the 100 backstroke.

Adam Laats won the 500 freestyle and finished third in the 200 freestyle. Mike Bowers was the fourth member of the 200 medley relay team and he also finished third in the 200 individual medley and the 100 breaststroke.

Dave McIndoe was the diving champion with 173 points.

Other swimmers having strong meets were Bouke Noordzij who finished second to Foley in both the 200 and 100 freestyle events, Howie Mahoney, Mike Fieleke, Brian Romer and Doug Holt.

The Sachems next meet will be this week when they take on Wakefield.

SENIOR NEWS

Jenks seniors greet 1988 despite catastrophe

By LEONOR RICH
Special to the Star

Had it not been for the excellent teamwork at the Jenks Senior Center on the morning of Dec. 31, the schedule New Year's party would have been canceled for 175 revellers.

Richard Fiore, custodian at the center, fearing possible ravages from the zero temperature during the night, arrived at the building before 7 a.m. to check the heat. The pipes in the original part of the building had frozen the day before.

While he was in the new kitchen, a stream of water spurted suddenly over his head from the ceiling. A two-inch copper pipe had pulled out of its elbow, sending hundreds of gallons of water to the floor, flowing onto the upper lobby, down the stairs into the lower level, causing much damage. The solder let go, bringing about thousands of dollars worth of necessary repairs.

Fiore called the fire department, who responded immediately with two trucks. The police department, also, was on the spot to assist. Girard Cleaning Service's sanitation crew was called to vacuum out the water that had flooded the entire area so quickly.

When Barbara Ciampa, administrator for the Council on Aging, and Claire Flynn, secretary, arrived at the building, many people had to be reached to accomplish immediate repairs. Fay Plumbing, heating engineers, the Bowdoin Construction Company's superintendent, Philip Locashio, the architect, electricians, and Lawrence Hutchings, a member of the Jenks Senior Center Board of Trustees had to be contacted to get temporary repairs accomplished in readiness for the evening party.

After necessary contacts had been made, Barbara Ciampa stood on a ladder to take pictures of damages to ceiling, floors, and faulty tubing. The ceiling fixtures in the kitchen had dropped as well as those in the lobby at the lower level. Her great support made it possible to get heat in the building and to provide for the mess to be cleaned up.

Everyone in the building participated in some way. Larry Hutchings, Richard Fiore, Anthony Nowlan, Angelo Giannetti, Dr. Robert Smith, Alexander Karmilla, Lawrence Beckley, and others helped to accomplish what needed to be done before repairs could be tackled. New ceilings and electrical fixtures have to be installed, carpets must be cleaned as a result of the flooding, and new pipes have to replace the damaged ones.

It was fortunate that Richard Fiore came early to check the building or there would have been excessive and extremely costly ravages. No heat and no water with the exception of the flood on the floors presented major problems. Toilets did not operate and when Helen Hodgdon came to prepare the macaroni and cheese dishes for the evening party, bottled water for cooking had to be obtained at Purity Supreme.

Despite the multitude of problems, the New Year's Eve party was held as scheduled in a scene of great merriment while guests awaited the approach of 1988. Adorned with "Happy New Year" hats, glittering crowns, and colorful leis, people enjoyed the gala evening. Dick Brogna, in his usual rare form, and his band played favorite tunes that caused feet to tap and heads to sway. Balloons attached to the ceiling were released at the stroke of midnight.

Presiding at the buffet supper were Anne Feuss, chairman of the party arrangements, Richard Fiore, Rose Fiore and Millie Poirier. Working during the day in preparation for the party were Barbara Ciampa, Claire Flynn, Helen Hodgdon, Anne Feuss, Rose Fiore, Richard Fiore, Mary De Courcy, and Alice Baker.

Helen Murphy and Leonor Rich checked in the guests as they arrived. Jeanette Baird delighted the revellers by singing such songs as, "Wouldn't It Be Lovely?" from the popular My Fair Lady and "Once In Awhile," from the music of the early 1940s. Her renditions were well received.

Waltzes, polkas, hully-gullies, fox trots, the hustle and other line-dance numbers provided opportunities for those who came without escorts to enjoy swinging to the music of the band. Ann and Jim Blackham's generosity in underwriting the New Year's party provided joy for dozens of seniors, some of whom might have spent lonely hours at home on this festive night.

Loving laps needed

Retired senior citizens who love children are invited to come to the Muraco School to read to small groups of children on the following days:

Kindergarten, Tuesday through Friday from 9:30 to 10:20 a.m. Grades 1, 2 and 3, Friday from 1:45 to 2:30 p.m.

Help for even one day a week will be greatly appreciated by Andrea Purcell, principal of the Francis Muraco School. If this opportunity to be with children has an appeal, please call the school office, 721-7030, and offer to volunteer.

The experience will be very rewarding in terms of happy associations.

Art class

at Jenks Center

Now that there is increased space at Jenks Senior Center and a well-equipped craft room on the lower level, Ellen Kimball, instructor of the art class, will welcome new members on Tuesdays from 1:30 to 3 p.m. She gives special individual attention to all members of the class, encouraging them to pursue their own artistic interests. The media used are pencil rendering, water colors, acrylics, pen and ink drawings, and pastels.

Do not be hesitant about attempting one of these art forms. No one is expected to produce the work of professional artist, but all who participate have the opportunity to be creative, thus providing a healthy emotional outlet.

Marked progress is always noted when individuals make comparisons of their own work from "Painting Number One" to later accomplishments.

Come and enjoy being a part of this interesting group.

SENIOR NEWS

The VCR movie to be shown at the Jenks Senior Center Meeting Room on Jan. 8 at 1 p.m. is the lovable "Annie", America's favorite orphan, based on the smash-hit Broadway musical.

It is the story of a plucky, red-haired girl who dreams of a life outside her dingy orphanage. Annie, played by Aileen Quinn, plans several escapes, but is always foiled by the gin-soaked ruler of the orphanage, Miss Hannigan, played to hilarious perfection by Carol Burnett. Albert Finney, as "Daddy" Warbucks, a billionaire and Annie share some spectacular times in the New York City of the 1930s.

The public is most cordially invited to enjoy this videocassette that may have been missed when it was on the stage in Boston this past year.

Coordinator needed for keep-well clinic

One of the very valuable services offered at the Jenks Senior Center is the biweekly Keep Well Clinic on the first and third Thursday mornings of the month from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

A coordinator is needed to keep each clinic staffed with two registered nurses who take blood pressure readings and pulse rates, a visiting nurse for special cases, and some aides to do the paperwork and keep the weight records.

A person responsible for this important organizational service does not have to be either a registered nurse or a senior. A list on file of available nurses simplifies the task in case the regular nurses are unable to attend.

Call Polly McGuigan at 729-0710 if interested in handling this very vital responsibility. It is a real community service given for the well-being of the seniors of Winchester.

Plans are underway to include the recorder class in a musical program involving the Jenks Senior Center Glee Club, high school musicians and possibly representation from the elementary schools.

This will be an activity as a part of the year-long 350th anniversary celebration.

Saturday night monthly dance

Come and join the Saturday evening monthly dance at the Jenks Senior Center on January 9 from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Enjoy dancing to the favorite melodies played by Dick Brogna and his band. Light refreshments are available.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

In his large new book, "Secrets of the Temple: How the Federal Reserve Runs the Country," journalist William Greider attempts to penetrate the mystique of the Federal Reserve Board and examine its unique role in determining all our economic futures. He concentrates on the economic upheavals of the 1980s culminating in the stock market crash of October 1987.

A quasi-independent and non-partisan arm of the federal government, the Federal Reserve Board seeks to stabilize the economy by buying or selling treasury securities and/or foreign currencies and by lending funds to business at varying interest rates to head off inflation or impending recession.

Greider views the position of "Fed" chairman as the "second most powerful" officer of government and he focuses on the enormous influence of Paul Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board from 1979 to 1987. In many ways the enigmatic and strong-willed Volcker embodies the characteristics of the institution he headed — secretive, private, independent and powerful.

Greider also discusses the found-ding of the "Fed" 75 years ago and examines the issue of the Federal Reserve Board as "the crucial anomaly at the very core of representative democracy," part of the national government and yet deliberately set outside the electoral process, sharing power with Congress and the President.

"The American system accepted the inconsistency," he goes on to explain. "The community of politicians acquiesced to its power. The private company responded to its direction. Private capital depended on it for protection. The governors of the Federal Reserve decided the largest questions of the political economy, including who shall prosper and who shall fail, yet their role remained opaque and mysterious." Greider's book takes us inside this elusive institution and shows us how it actually works — independently setting the course for the American economy and the world's.

"Secrets of the Temple: How the Federal Reserve Runs the Country," by William Greider, is available in the new books section of Winchester Public Library and can be reserved for you by a librarian. For more information, call 721-7171.

Fight over controversial water hookup continues

Selectman Robert Deering disputed Sopper's assertions. The legislation was for taking of land to improve water supplies, he said. The land is for passive use, he said. Whether the town has a connection or not, there will still be skiing and other use of the land, he added. The Middlesex Fells Reservation has been a state park since 1912.

If the MDC uses the land more, they will also provide maintenance and policing, he said. "We didn't enter into this with the idea of giving up our reservoirs," he stated. Deering noted that the town asked the state for this connection a decade or so ago. "It's not just something that has come out of the woods," he said.

Selectman Thomas Schmitt, who sat on the committee that made the pro-connection recommendation, said that hydraulic engineers on the Pipeline Study Committee as well as others concluded that a major pipeline connection was necessary to the town in case the reservoirs become contaminated, or there is a large fire requiring pressure beyond what the current system can deliver.

Schmitt, who has skied the trails in the reservation, said that they are all in either Stoneham or Medford anyway. He stressed that passive use of the land tends to keep illicit activities down.

He said last weekend he saw hundreds of skiers "in there," and met MDC personnel in uniform who were taking people's names for a mailing on recreational activity and "seeing to it that the laws were respected."

"The state does in fact own that land," he said.

On the question of the illegality of the hookup, Schmitt says the issue will be resolved when the town makes its formal application to the MWRA; authority lawyers will determine the state's interests at that time. Schmitt said in a later conversation that hookups like Forest Street have been made before and it is not in Winchester's interest to question or even mention the legality issue.

Selectmen Chairman Judith Muglia asserted that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Quality Engineering both have rules to protect watersheds, and said she believes these group and the MWRA are "sincere in their support for maintaining every drop of water we have."

"Throughout the state we must make use of every resource," she said, and posited that the state is working to "not damage the watersheds."

When the vote to reconsider the previous vote was taken, Sopper and Lombardi were in favor; the others were opposed.

As a postscript, Lombardi suggested that Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh make a report to the board about state plans to protect the reservoirs in the event of increased park usage. Lombardi said Saltmarsh had already indicated a willingness to do so. "If we get no plan, they may want to take it over," he said.

Schmitt said the MDC should be asked to attend the same meeting.

Housing problems trouble Witt

But housing problems come about for more reasons than just prejudice. Witt used the example of a housewife with children whose husband dies, becomes unable to work or leaves the family. "Unless you have a huge nest egg, you're in trouble," he said. For a woman in that situation in Winchester, paying the taxes on her house may be too big a burden to handle.

"The system is really messed up," he said. "We can't continue to go on the way we're going. A lot of people are awakening to that when they find out their kids can't afford to live here (in Winchester). The price of houses in Winchester and communities like Winchester is scandalous."

The assistant rector believes part of the problem is that housing pressure on the metropolitan area comes not just from the city, but from Routes 128 and 495 as well. Boston workers who want to move out of the city to find a cheaper place to live are competing against MetroWest workers who want to be closer to the city. The same is true between 128 and 495. The college population and the strong economy add to this demand.

But what can be done to assure that everyone has satisfactory housing? Witt has a general idea of what he wants to see done. "We've got to find ways to take housing off the market. To make housing not a commodity."

Witt admits this prospect scares most people, especially those who own homes or who invest in real estate. "We need to do a lot of consciousness-raising to meet people where their fears are," he said.

In the next year the parish will focus its attention on which of the possible programs would best suit Winchester and how the parish task force can make sure that the next step is taken. In the meantime the assistant rector will continue to educate the parish and discuss the issues that he finds so important.

Partnership board digs right in suggested that environmental issues and the impact of development on schools and particular neighborhoods should be of paramount importance.

Rosensweig was charged with the task of evaluating Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia's study of open land in town.

Although against setting quotas for affordable housing by precinct, Carter said it is "important to spread it around."

"I hope that what we end up with is nice units," member Maryann McCall-Taylor said. She said that the board should consider that it wants to create units that fit in with the neighborhoods and enhance them, "not that everybody has to take the bitter medicine."

While everybody wants to build quality housing, Polari reminded the HPB that the state will only pick up some of the tab and that Winchester, working under the constraints of Proposition 2½, will have to furnish the rest.

Schmitt told the board that the town had written and submitted a grant to the Executive Office of Communities and Development to fund a housing consultant. That consultant's duties will be discussed if the town gets the grant.

The board decided to meet the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month. Its next meeting will be Tuesday, Jan. 12, in the Public Safety Building.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

Now 'Fat Magnet' Diet Pill
Guarantees Fast Weight Loss

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

No Dieting—Eat Normally
Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You will start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested.

Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.

"Pills Do All the Work"
According to the doctors, the fat-magnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs.

It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public

If you need to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W 14, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call anytime 24 hours, toll free (800) 527-9700, ext. W 14.

What To Do

Story by Karen Buckley

Pets make good companions Consider adopting a dog or a cat

If a dog is man's best friend, then a cat must be...well, they make good pals, too. For young and old, singles and families, pets bring joy to daily life.

Studies have shown that a pet can provide the companionship many people need to brighten their lives and make them feel good. And there are plenty of homeless pets in need of the love potential owners can give.

Friendly greetings

Rascal Tabor of Franklin, Mass., has been part of the Tabor family for approximately 2½ years. A West Highland Terrier, Rascal is always a welcome sight at the end of the day, says owner John Tabor.

"It's nice to have somebody greet you at the door when you come home," Tabor said. "He gets crazy and jumps all over you. He's real good company for my wife and me."

Easy to adopt

There are many avenues for adopting pets in the Boston area. The Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (MSPCA) has numerous animals in its shelters available for adoption.

Cats and dogs

Patches and Ti Anderson of Woburn were adopted by Betty Anderson and her husband Harold through an MSPCA shelter. Patches, a dog, is 7½ years old while his feline friend, Ti (short for Tiger), is 8.

The Andersons decided to adopt through a shelter because "we figured there are a ton of them out there that need to be adopted. They're like our kids because we don't have any...and they know it."

"They get along super," Anderson said. "He's [Patches] very protective of her [Ti]. She's like a mother. She keeps him going."

According to MSPCA Director of Shelters Carter Luke, the program seeks to "place pets into permanent, responsible, loving homes."

It is recommended that people interested in adopting a dog visit a shelter first. The visit can help the prospective owner decide for sure to adopt.

At most shelters it is necessary to fill out an application form.

"We look at it very much as an adoption, not a sale," said Luke. The shelter reviews the application to be sure a prospective owner can provide the responsible care a pet needs.

According to Luke, the shelter reviews a person's living circumstances to be sure there is enough room for the desired animal.

"We also look at a person's past experience with pets," said Luke. If someone has had a pet that has died of a disease, a waiting period may be necessary before introducing another pet into that environment."

Luke stressed that attitude is very important in adopting a pet. Adopting a pet for companionship purposes, said Luke, is okay. "That's our goal. We're in the companion/pet business."

However, he added, "Pets make bad gifts," because often the receiver is unable to give the care that is needed, or may not actually want a pet.

Donation required

Adopting a pet through the MSPCA requires an adoption donation. For this donation, an owner receives a pet, the first set of shots, and a spay/neuter operation if it is done at an MSPCA facility. If an owner decides to have the operation done by their own doctor, they are refunded a portion of the adoption donation when the operation is completed. The MSPCA requires that all pets adopted from its shelters have the applicable operation.

Luke emphasized the seriousness of the potential-owner-review process.

"A lot of people are refused because their circumstances are not appropriate. We make a judgement if we feel a permanent relationship is not likely," he said.

To adopt a pet through the MSPCA, call 522-7400.

Dedicated to good matches

The Northeast Animal Shelter in Salem has dogs, cats, puppies and kittens available for adoption. A non-profit organization, the shelter is the largest no-destroy animal shelter in New England, according to Manager Ellen Mark.

"We are very dedicated to making sure the animals are matched up properly with families," said Mark. She added that the shelter looks carefully into the background of the animal, and screens potential owners to be sure a good match will be made. "We try hard to make sure the match will be permanent," she said.

Adopt from a shelter

The shelter asks for a donation from adoptive families. For this donation, spaying or neutering is provided for all animals, as well as the pet's first shot. Northeast Animal Shelter places approximately 4,000 animals per year.

According to Mark, the shelter urges people to adopt from a shelter rather than purchase a pet in a pet store. "Pets bred for pet stores tend to be very poor quality. Pet stores are out to make money rather than be sure a pet is placed in a good home," she said, adding that pet-store-pets often have health problems. "Pet stores don't back up health."

Dogs make wonderful friends.

Poor gifts

Mark agrees that pets make poor gifts. "People really have to be involved in the selection of their own animal. It's like a new baby — you have to devote a lot of time and energy to a pet," said Mark. Otherwise, "the animal ends up suffering."

Goats can be good friends too, if you can stand their perfume.

What To Do

Cat makes a great companion for horse owner.

They don't get the right home, the right care. . ."

Health benefits

For those people who do choose to bring a pet into a loving home, the benefits are tremendous, said Mark. "It has already been proven that it is very beneficial healthwise to own a pet," Mark said. "People are living healthier, happier lives with a pet."

Free adoptions

For people over 60, Purina's Pets for People program provides one avenue for pet adoption. Through this program, pets can be adopted free of charge, complete with collar, leash, water bowl, and a starter supply of pet food.

According to public relations coordinator Terrie Bierig-Neyland, the project, sponsored by Ralston Purina, began in 1984 in an effort to increase the number of pet owners, and provide the psychological benefits of owning a pet.

Relieve depression

"Owning a pet can lower high blood pressure, distract from worries, and relieve depression," said Bierig-Neyland.

Anyone over 60 years of age is eligible to participate in the Pets for People program.

Pets for People offers cats and dogs for adoption and provides free spaying and neutering as well as initial shots and veterinary examinations.

Owning a pet

Prospective pet owners are oriented to the responsibilities of owning a pet before the adoption takes place. The program usually provides adult dogs or cats which generally require less training and physical exertion on the part of the new owner.

More information about Purina's Pets for People program may be obtained through the Animal Rescue League of Boston, P.O. Box 265, Boston, Mass. 02117 (426-9170).

Special breeds

For those people looking for a specific kind of dog, there are organizations which cater to different breeds.

Greyhounds

Greyhound Friends, Inc. in Cambridge, Mass., seeks to place retired greyhounds in loving homes.

Until recently, dogs which were no longer fast enough to stay in the competitive circuit were either killed or used in laboratory experiments. However, Greyhound Friends, Inc. now takes these young, healthy, friendly dogs and

Dogs help hearing impaired

The concept of pets as companions has a whole different meaning for the deaf. Dogs provide hearing impaired people with a link to the hearing world.

Red Acre Farm in Stow, Mass. trains dogs to aid hearing impaired people with their day to day responsibilities.

Founded in 1903 as a home for old horses, Red Acre Farm currently carries out projects which are mutually beneficial to both humans and animals.

Dogs are chosen for the program from shelters and are examined by a veterinarian before being trained. A dog must display intelligence, an out-going, people-oriented attitude, and be highly responsive to sound. Most dogs selected are approximately one year old.

The training period generally lasts four months. In a home-like setting, dogs are taught to respond to common sounds such as an alarm clock, a smoke detector, a door bell or knock, and a telephone/TTY. When a sound goes off, a dog makes physical contact with the owner and leads him or her to the source of the sound.

During the training period, the owner maintains contact with the program and works with the dog.

When training has finished and a dog is placed in the home, a counselor supervises the first week of home life, and makes progress reports and follow-up visits for three months to insure that things are working out.

The relationship is made permanent after three months of satisfactory performance. An identification card, orange collar and leash signify that the new owner may enjoy the same legal rights as the blind and their guide dogs.

Participants in the program are asked to contribute what they can financially to the program. However, no applicant is denied access to a hearing dog based on his or her inability to contribute to the cost of the dog.

For more information about the hearing dog training program, contact the center by writing to Red Acre Farm Hearing Dog Center, 109 Red Acre Road, Stow, Mass., 01775, Box #278, or by calling 897-8343 (voice/TTY) or 897-5370 (voice only).

A horse can be a good pal—someone to go on long rides with/on.

The Classical Quartet

Ronald Knudsen

Quartet performs early music

Classical Quartet performs

The Cambridge Society for Early Music presents the Classical Quartet in their Chamber Music by Candlelight series, performing an all Mozart program including the Quartet in F major for oboe and strings with guest artist Marc Schachman on oboe.

Founded in 1979, the Classical Quartet was the first string quartet in America to perform the masterpieces of the classical era on instruments of the late 18th century.

Some of their most notable concerts have been at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, the Boston and Houston Museums of Fine Arts, the Smithsonian Institution and the Mostly Mozart Festival at Lincoln Center.

In the words of the Quartet, "There is a wide spread feeling today among performers on period instruments that the composer's message, the ability to stir the listener's emotions in an intimate way, is best realized when the performers use the instruments the composers knew, and play them in a style and setting intended when the music was written."

The settings are perfect; halls seating an average of about 120 people. On January 19 the Quartet appears at the Goethe Institute, 170 Beacon Street in Boston and on January 25 at the Swedenborg Chapel, 50 Quincy Street in Cambridge.

Other appearances will be in Carlisle, Weston and Ipswich during the week. Seating is limited and reservations are strongly suggested at: 489-3613 or 864-5530. Tickets are $8, $5 for students.

Father and Son due to perform in Newton

Ronald Knudsen, music director and conductor of the Newton Symphony Orchestra, is joined by his son, Sato Knudsen, a cellist, in a performance of the rare Vivaldi Concerto for Violin and Cello, at the Jan. 17 subscription series concert of the Newton Symphony.

Sato Knudsen also performs Bloch's Schelomo, a Hebraic Rhapsody for cello and orchestra. The Mendelssohn Scotch Symphony No. 3 in a minor will complete the program. The concert takes place at 8 p.m. at Aquinas Junior College, Walnut Park, Newton.

Both father and son are members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the father as a violinist who has been with the BSO since 1965, and the son, Sato, a member since 1983. They are the fourth father-son combination to be members of the BSO at the same time in the orchestra's history. The performance by father and son, together with orchestra, will be their first in the greater Boston area. Prior to their orchestral debut, they may be heard live on WGBH-FM's Morning pro Musica, with host Robert J. Lurtsema, Monday, Jan. 11 at 11 a.m.

Robert Knudsen has been music director and conductor of the Newton Symphony Orchestra since 1982. Prior to that time, he served as concertmaster and associate conductor of the Orchestra for three seasons. In addition, he is currently in his fourth season as music director and conductor of the Brockton Symphony. In 1987, he conducted the Worcester Orchestra, with guest soloists, Rudolf Nureyev and members of the Paris Opera Corps de Ballet.

Knudsen senior has been heard frequently as a soloist, as well as in chamber music recitals, throughout his years in Boston. He has appeared as soloist with the Newton Symphony and with the Brockton, Wellesley, and Worcester Orchestras, and with the Boston Pops. He was the original violinist with the contemporary music ensemble, Collage, and played with that group for ten years. Since 1970, he has been active with the Curtisville Consortium, giving numerous chamber concerts each summer in western Massachusetts. He is a former member of the Tanglewood Young Artists faculty.

Sato Knudsen, who was born in Baltimore in 1955, joined his father as a member of the BSO in 1983. Prior to joining the BSO, Mr. Knudsen was the associate principal cellist of the San Antonio Symphony (1980-83), and the principal cellist of the Newton Symphony (1979-80).

During the summers of 1974 and 1975, Knudsen was a fellowship student at the Tanglewood Music Center, and during the summer of 1977, he was a member of the prestigious Piatigorsky Seminar in Los Angeles.

In 1985, Knudsen was a soloist with the Brockton Symphony Orchestra, and in 1986, he appeared with the Boston Pops. In addition, he has been heard as cello soloist on tour with the Ohio Ballet Company and has made frequent appearances throughout the New England area, including as a member of the New Hampshire Symphony, the Worcester Orchestra, and the Boston Opera Company Orchestra.

Knudsen is an active chamber music participant, appearing frequently with his BSO colleagues as part of the BSO Prelude Concert Series. He is a member of the Curtisville Consortium and the newly founded Richmond Performance Series, a winter chamber music series in the Berkshires.

Tickets for the NSO Jan. 17 concert are $12 and may be reserved in advance by calling 965-2555, or may be purchased at the door, the night of the concert.

August Wilson to read his work

On Monday evening, Jan. 18, the Huntington Theatre Company presents An Evening with August Wilson featuring this year's Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright reading favorite selections from his poetry and plays.

Perhaps best known as a playwright, Wilson, whose dramas have a highly lyrical quality, began his writing career as a poet. His poems have been published in numerous magazines and anthologies including Black Poets of the Twentieth Century. The author of four published plays: Ma Rainey's Black Bottom, Joe Turner's Come and Gone, Fences (which received this year's Pulitzer Prize, Tony Award and New York Drama Critics Award) and the Piano Lesson. Mr. Wilson is currently at work on another play in his cycle of dramas on the black American experience (this one set in the 60's), as well as another piece set outside of the cycle.

In his December 10th review of The Piano Lesson, Frank Rich, Chief Drama Critic of the New York Times wrote: "August Wilson has vowed to write one play about each decade of black American life in this century. Mr. Wilson's historical cycle is half completed, and he is still boiling over with stories and ideas he's bursting to tell. This century doesn't have nearly as many decades as this remarkable dramatist is likely to have plays."

An Evening with August Wilson will be held in Studio 210, upstairs from the Huntington Theatre at 264 Huntington Avenue. Tickets for the reading, which will be followed by dinner and cocktails, are $50 and include a $20 tax-deductible contribution to the Huntington Theatre Company. For tickets or additional information, Please call 353-3320.

Boston Shakespeare New Theatre

The Boston Redevelopment Authority (BRA) has granted tentative designation to the Boston Shakespeare Company as co-developer of one half acre, located at the Northeast corner of Massachusetts Avenue and St. Botolph Street, one block from Symphony Hall.

The tentative designation insures a home for the Boston Shakespeare Company. The Company was founded 14 years ago and in 1984, Tina Packer was named artistic director. Packer is also the artistic director of Shakespeare & Company in Lenox, MA, the company she founded 10 years ago at The Mount, former estate of Edith Wharton. In July, 1986, Shakespeare & Company merged with the Boston Shakespeare Company.

Starlight is great fun for the whole family

WHATTA SHOW! WHAT A SHOW! Even the most jaded will be mesmerized by Starlight Express!

Andrew Lloyd Webber's futuristic fantasy about railroad trains features a cast of 27 decked out as trains, whizzing along tracks on roller skates at break-neck speed (up to 30 mph). Along with Richard Stilgoe's insightful lyrics, Webber's pulsating scores runs the gamut, from Country and Western to boogie, hard rock to urban jazz, blues and ballads, gospel and electronic disco.

Arlene Phillips' dances are wild, unbridled and the entire cast, without headliners, will knock your socks off with its break-dancing, body-popping, and terrific roller-skating! Add David Hersey's psychedelic lighting and Martin Levan's synthesized sound design and the entire spectacular entertainment, directed by Trevor Nunn with non-stop momentum, is a light and sound show like you've never seen! Best of all, it's great fun for the entire family!

But the transcendent ingredient here is the genius of John Napier and his dazzling $2.5 million set which dwarfs anything that has ever appeared on Broadway! For this production ten rows of seats, six steel beams, and the entire proscenium stage arch were removed! Four 20-by-20 holes were cut in the walls of the Gershwin Theatre allowing for a 150-foot breadth! Skating circuits were built on two levels, laminated wood runways suitable for high speed roller-skating, all encapsulated in a stadium-like structure with a maze of girders extending skyward to the stars!

The trains run amid a kaleidoscope of optical and mechanical effects, constructed of 1000 feet of fluorescent tubing, 7000 sheets of plywood, 120,000 pounds of steel and 22 miles of fiber optics! Ten computers coordinate the sound and lights and everything is synchronized, not only to the pounding, driving beat of the music but also to the way the various ramps and bridges meet the trains and deliver them onto their next lap. Suspended over the stage is a colossal girder bridge which revolves, dips and raises to give the skaters access to the various circuits...an amazing feat of hydrolic wizardry!

No less eye-boggling are Napier's costumes with their predominance of glittering silver studs and actors fitted with helmets, shoulder and elbow pads, chest and back plates, hip pads, and knee and shin guards!

Starlight Express utilizes the animated cartoon concept of giving the various trains human attributes and characteristics. A mother's voice is heard calling to her little boy to put his trains away, turn off the lights, and go to bed. Asleep, the youngster dreams of the championship race to find the fastest train in the West. At the end of the rainbow is the Silver Dollar, the trophy now held by the host team, the Union Pacific (the United States).

Greaseball (Robert Torti) is the mighty and arrogant deisel engine (an Elvis clone) who boasts "That streak of lightning you just missed was me!" Electra is an ultra-sophisticated electric engine (androgynously enacted by Ken Ard in Bowie-like fashion). He makes a stunning entrance with colored lights flashing, resembling the lift-off of a space ship. Rusty (Greg Mowry) is the nostalgic steam engine who bemoans "slow corrosion is eroding my frame" and recalls the time "when they first lit my fire mainline coaches streamed behind." He's cautioned, "You mustn't go on racing...you're not tough enough!"

Among others we meet are Ashley, the smoking car; Buffy, the kitchen car; Dinah (Jane Krakowski), the dining car; Dustin, the coal car; freight cars Rocky I, II and III ("Freight is great!"); the Red Caboose (Barry K. Bernal); Belle (Janet Williams Adderley), once an elegant sleeping car compared to the Orient Express and the Vanderbilt's private, but now "a fallen star...the belle of the nation way below her station"; and Pearl (Riva Rice), the spanking new observation car who deserts Rusty to hook on with Electra.

The first heat pits teams from Germany and Russia (including the Red Caboose) against Greaseball and Dinah, and Electra and Pearl.

Ten free trees

The National Arbor Day Foundation is giving ten free trees to each person who becomes a Foundation member during January.

The free trees are part of the Foundation's effort to promote tree planting throughout America.

A sugar maple, white flowering dogwood, pin oak, white pine, red maple, birch, American redbud, silver maple, red oak and Colorado blue spruce tree will be given to members joining during January.

These trees were selected to provide benefits every season of the year: lovely spring flowers, cool summer shade, spectacular autumn colors, and winter berries and nesting sites for songbirds, according to the Foundation.

The six to twelve inch trees will be shipped postage paid with enclosed planting instructions at the right time for planting this spring. The Foundation makes its spring shipments between Feb. 1 and May 31, depending on the local climate and this year's weather.

The National Arbor Day Foundation, a nonprofit organization, is working to improve the quality of life throughout the country by encouraging tree planting.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, a $10 membership contribution should be sent to Ten Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Ave., Nebraska City, NE 68410, by Jan. 31.

What's On the Boards?

The two qualifiers are Greaseball (the winner) and Electra, but when Dinah accuses Greaseball of dirty tactics he throws her off the team. Dinah is devastated and in the pretty ballad "There's Me", the Red Caboose picks up Dinah's spirits by offering his friendship.

Britain is scratched and the second heat pits twosomes from Japan, France and Italy against Poppa (Steve Fowler) and Dustin. Poppa is an old steamer but a true champion and in this roller coaster of a race, prone with accidents, Poppa emerges victorious but collapses at the finish. He suggests that Rusty take his place, but Rusty insists that steam is too old for racing. "Oil is the work of the deisel himself!" Poppa persists. "Try to find a new power...Starlight Express hears your distress." And Rusty calls out to the higher being of trains, the Starlight Express, for help.

The Red Caboose pledges allegiance to Rusty and joins his team. Greaseball is coupled with Pearl, and Electra, with Dinah. Dinah feels "U.N.C.O.U.P.L.E.D." and the other coaches offer advice on how to win Greaseball back.

The final pits Greaseball and Pearl vs. Electra and Dinah, Japan's twosome, and Rusty and Red Caboose. There's a crash at the inception due to foul tactics. The tracks are cleared and a rerun scheduled. Rusty knows he can't win if he plays it cleanly but then the Silver Dollar Express comes to him and tells Rusty that he must believe in himself. "You have the power within you!"

But there's more! After the finals the Silver Dollar is stolen! There's a chase to run down the culprit! And finally, as Poppa says, "There's a light at the end of the tunnel...Starlight!"

In fine voice are Greg Mowry, Ken Ard, Janet Williams Adderley, Janet Krakowski, and especially Steve Fowler as Poppa/Starlight Express. At curtain, the jam packed house clamored for more!

What's Healthy?

Kids can be anxious

What is school phobia, and why should all parents know about it?

As kids go back to school after the Holiday Season, it might be good to look at a phenomenon known as "school phobia." Even though your first reaction might be to laugh at this term, it's actually a legitimate psychological problem, and as many as four percent of American children suffer from it at some time in their lives.

Let me first define this condition. School phobia is a type of separation anxiety that is caused by a child's fear to leave home and spend the day in school. It typically causes physical symptoms, such as stomach aches or headaches that seem to appear in the morning when the child is leaving the house. The symptoms may disappear by 10, well after school has started. The symptoms often disappear entirely on weekends.

As pointed out in an article on the Duke University Health Line, school phobia is not the same thing as fear of taking a test or fear of participating in some school activity. If a child experiences anxiety about a test that he or she is unprepared for, that's realistic and normal apprehension. School phobia is a more severe, more extreme type of anxiety.

Often, parents will bring the child with school phobia to a pediatrician or family physician to treat the physical symptoms. The doctor finds no physical cause for the symptoms, and generally returns the child to school. This experience is enough to cure many children, but in some, the symptoms start again.

In those cases, psychological help is often sought. Sometimes, mental health professionals recommend desensitization treatment. This is when the parent accompanies the child to school. At first, the parent sits in the classroom with the child, then later moves out to the hallway outside the classroom. Eventually the parent moves down the hall, and then begins leaving the school building for longer and longer periods of time.

Some therapists also recommend additional treatments, such as one-to-one counseling for the child or family counseling. Once school phobia is diagnosed, the child should not be allowed to stay out of school.

Again, I stress that school phobia is generally best treated in a professional, caring way. Forcing an upset, crying child to go to school day after day usually doesn't lessen his or her anxiety, and can often make matters worse.

Drs. Maureen and Robert Norman have a family practice in Arlington and are associated with Symmes Hospital. Questions can be addressed to them at 22 Mill St., Suite 109, Arlington, 02174.

Surprise. Your four-year-old is the grandfather of 173.

If your male dog or cat hasn't been neutered, he's one of the sexually active housepets responsible for some 13.5 million unwanted dogs and cats being put to death each year. That's the cost of not having your pet spayed or neutered. Fixed.

That's the only way to reduce the sad number of ownerless dogs and cats destroyed this year. And it will also increase your pet's chances of living a longer, healthier life. That responsibility is yours alone.

You can't stop your pets from acting naturally. But if you love them, you'll have them fixed.

There are certain steps you should take if your car is not going to be used for more than two weeks. Wash the car to remove excessive dirt. If the weather is cold, be sure to check the level of the radiator coolant as well as the protective capacity of the antifreeze. Put the automatic transmission selector in park or a manual transmission in first gear. Do not apply the parking brake; it left engaged, the brake may freeze in that position. Disconnect the positive battery-cable to avoid fire as a consequence of possible faulty wiring. Close the windows and lock the car. If the car is not to be stored in a garage, protect it with a securely tied plastic cover.

Preliminary budget hearing set for tonight

By ROGER L. KAY
Star Editor

Uncle Winchester wants you! He's looking for recruits in the fight against inflation and the rally point is the Jenks Senior Center tonight at 7:30. There the preliminary budget will be discussed. Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia has emphasized the importance of heavy participation by all voters — Town Meeting members in particular.

At stake is a potential loss of 32 municipal and school positions. That is the number of people that would have to be let go to meet the $1,270,380 projected deficit in the worst-case option.

In a carefully-prepared analysis recently mailed to all Town Meeting members, Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer defines the problem, demonstrates the available options and makes several recommendations.

One thing the analysis makes abundantly clear: this is no joke.

Maurer's projections of both revenues and expenses were off by less than one-half a percent last year and the numbers don't lie. There isn't enough in the pot to feed everybody this year.

Total revenue is projected at $32,976,332, up 4.8 percent from last year. Total expenses are envisioned at $34,246,712, up by 8.8 percent over 1988.

Roughly 70 percent of the town's revenue comes from real estate taxes and that source is severely constrained by Proposition 2½. Maurer's projections assume that the town draws real estate taxes to the levy limit, which is $22,860,417 in fiscal 1989.

Other sources, state and federal subsidies, excise taxes, free cash, reversions, water and sewer fees, other fees, the sale of land account, the stabilization fund and other miscellaneous revenues, will contribute more than ever before, but not enough to cover the jump in expenses.

Excise taxes are estimated to be up by 18 percent, a result of what Maurer calls the "yuppie factor," a major increase in new, upscale cars being registered in town.

Water and sewer revenues will be up substantially, but this reflects only a pass-through from the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority. Water and sewer expenses will be up by the same amount.

Federal monies have dropped to under $100,000 from $400,000 in 1986 and will disappear entirely in fiscal year 1990, but the Cherry Sheet allocation from the state will be up by about $200,000 in fiscal 1989.

Other revenues are projected to be essentially constant.

Out of available funds, the Sale of Land account was depleted in fiscal 1988 and the projections show aggressive use of free cash.

On the expense side, the picture is pretty grim.

Roughly 68 percent of expenses on the combined town and school sides of the municipal budget are personnel costs. This ratio has been fairly constant in recent years.

Maurer points out that small percentage increases in personnel costs translate to large jumps in total expenses, and all five town bargaining units are up before the selectmen this year for contract renewal.

At the present time, the average employee costs the town $37,272, including benefits. The average salary is about $31,000.

There has been little growth in municipal employee levels in recent (Please see BUDGET, page 18)

Potential conflict of interest keeps two off Loop committee

By ROGER L. KAY
Star Editor

The Woburn Loop Advisory Committee is off to a limping start with one seat out of five filled.

The selectmen interviewed three potential candidates Monday night, appointed one and asked the other two to come back after certain issues are clarified.

The committee is intended to represent citizens' interests in decisions made on the disposal of the Woburn Loop, a piece of abandoned railroad right-of-way the town purchased in 1984.

At this time three large developers that have properties abutting the Loop have submitted plans to acquire most of the northern section of it near the Woburn line. Small homeowners have a potential interest in the strip behind their houses and up until now have had no public forum to express their desires.

The selectmen appointed George MacMillan of 10 Farrow St. without questions or comment. Farrow Street falls in Precinct Eight, in which the northern section of the Loop also lies, but MacMillan's property does not abut the Loop.

MacMillan has served in Town Meeting for a total of 10 years, according to a letter he sent the board. He works "in the building trade," he said during his interview.

The other two applicants were Peter Toland and Lillian LaRosa, a couple, both lawyers, who live on 17 Russell Road.

Their property does abut the Loop. They said they had never received notification in writing about the disposal of the land, an issue that has been the source of some cries of foul play as the process has evolved, but Toland and LaRosa said they had a "keen interest in what happens" to the Loop "since it abuts our back yard."

During their interview Selectman Francis Sopper asked them if they had an interest in purchasing the portion of the Loop behind their house.

Toland said they might. Town Counsel Douglas Randall pointed out that their service on a public committee might preclude them from purchasing the strip behind their land.

According to Randall, the state Ethics Commission has ruled that "you cannot put yourself in an official position where you may affect an outcome in which you have an interest."

"You may preclude yourself from ever being a purchaser of that property," he told the couple. "You should know that at this juncture."

The couple decided to consult the Ethics Commission and the board agreed to hold the committee open until the commission rules.

Toland, reached later, said that he and LaRosa are more interested in what actually happens to the land (Please see WOBURN, page 12)

Perrotta admits guilt in fraud case, will testify for state

A Winchester resident has turned state's witness for the upcoming trial of Gerard Indelicato, who is charged with scheming to defraud the state of $70,000 in adult education funds.

Antonio B. Perrotta of Brookside Ave. pleaded guilty Tuesday in U.S. District Court to charges of fraud and perjury before a grand jury.

Perrotta's change of plea comes a week after another defendant in the case, John Gaeta of Revere, also pleaded guilty and agreed to testify for the prosecution.

Perrotta admitted to giving Indelicato checks from the Center for Community Education in Roslindale totaling $22,000, which Indelicato allegedly deposited in a personal account, according to a report in the Boston Globe.

He also said he lied before a federal grand jury last October when he repeatedly denied that he had paid any money to Indelicato, according to the report.

Prosecutors have agreed not to recommend a prison term for Perrotta. His sentencing has been postponed until after he testifies at the Indelicato trial, which is scheduled for Feb. 22.

Neither Perrotta nor his attorney, Cambridge lawyer Joseph Monahan, were available for comment before the Star went to press Wednesday. The prosecutor in the case, Assistant U.S. Attorney Ralph Gants, also was unavailable for comment.

Moore to go to Nicaragua Town activist will risk life to assess situation

By DON CUMMINGS
Special to the Star

Many local residents fly south in the dead of winter. But few go where Marjorie Moore is headed this year.

From Jan. 21 through Feb. 1, Moore, a Winchester citizen and veteran community volunteer, will visit Nicaragua as one of 21 participants in the Witness for Peace program.

"Witness for Peace is an organization that has sent 2,700 North Americans down to Nicaragua, where they visit in war zones, hoping their presence will lend protection to the civilian targets of Contra terrorism," Moore explains.

"It's my belief that our group will be standing beside two North American doctors who are administering tubercular tests in the northern countryside near the town of Yali."

Past participants, during long or short-term visits, have planted crops, helped with harvests and offered construction and resettlement assistance.

"I have been told to bring work gloves and wear nothing that looks military," adds Moore.

Most volunteers have strong church connections as does Moore, whose trip is being sponsored by the First Congregational Church of Winchester.

"Our [government's] involvement in Nicaragua has continued, more and more, to horrify me," Moore says, "and although I have been aware of the Witness for Peace mission for some time, it was only in church on the Sunday after Thanksgiving that I realized I could become involved."

During the service, the minister announced that the church wished to sponsor a member of the congregation as a participant in the Witness for Peace program. With her deep convictions and passable knowledge of the Spanish language, Moore volunteered.

"Three days later I found myself enrolled in a group with 21 others, including six ordained ministers," she says. "We will meet for an orientation in Miami on Jan. 19 and then fly to Managua on the 21st."

While in Managua, the group plans to meet separately with representatives from the United States embassy and the Nicaraguan government. Afterward, her mission to Yali begins.

Of the 2,700 volunteers who have taken part in the program, all have left unharmed. But the risks are obvious in any country besieged by civil war.

"My husband and children support my decision to go, but my mother is not too happy," says Moore before adding, "and I have left my affairs in order before I leave."

She is scheduled to discuss her experiences at the First Congregational Church in Winchester on Monday, Feb. 22.

Schools requests meet 2 ½

By SUSAN ROTH
Special to the Star

The school budget weather seemed benign at Monday night's public hearing on the 1989 budget, sharply contrasting with the dark clouds looming over the town's full municipal budget. Although no new programs have been suggested nor any existing ones expanded, only one program was cut in the superintendent's proposed budget now under review by the School Committee.

What appears to have been careful, conservative planning on the part of the school administration may shore up the schools in the face of the coming budget storm. The $12.9 million proposed budget represents a mere 2.2 percent increase over that of fiscal year 1988, while the 1988 budget had increased by more than 3 percent above 1987's.

MDC, Whip reassure Winchester

By ROGER L. KAY
Star Editor

If state officials are to be believed, there is no danger to Winchester's water supply from increased recreational use of the Middlesex Fells Reservation.

At their Monday meeting, the selectmen heard pledges to that effect from Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh and three of Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) employees.

The MDC is in charge of the state-owned land that surrounds Winchester's reservoirs in the reservation.

Saltmarsh told the board that 1987 was the first year the MDC has taken an active interest in the parks under its control. He said Gov. Michael Dukakis has set aside money to "do something" with the Fells.

He stated that the MDC has a two-fold responsibility: one to the reservoirs and one to the neglected park. No significant work has been done there to improve drainage, clear fallen trees or repair roads in a long time, he said. (Please see MDC, page 12)

Dole to visit Winchester

Republican presidential candidate Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas has scheduled an appearance in Winchester on Sunday, Jan. 17. The Senate minority leader will attend a reception held in his honor at the Jenks Senior Center.

The reception, hosted by Jan Preus and the Dole for President Committee of Winchester is one of several stops the senator will make during a day of campaigning in Massachusetts. Republicans, Democrats and independents are all invited to come and hear Dole at this free reception.

POLICE LOG

Sunday, January 10

At 8:37 a.m. police responded to a call reporting an attempted burglary at the Old Colony Gas Station.

An employee who got to work at 8 a.m. told police he saw a front window smashed and the sliding window open, according to police reports.

The man said he didn't think anyone got inside the building and nothing was missing, police said.

Saturday, January 9

At 5:04 p.m. police were dispatched to Main Street because of a report that a woman was smashing her car into the wall of a garage.

When the officer arrived at the scene, he saw a woman behind the wheel of a red Buick and another officer at the rear exit of the garage, according to police reports.

Flames were coming from the front of the under carriage of the Buick. The officers told the woman, who they knew as a Main Street resident, to get out of the car because of the fire, but she did not respond, police said.

The woman also resisted the officers' efforts to assist her. The police then forced her out of the car and carried her away from the scene of the fire, which had already engulfed the engine, according to reports.

The officers called the fire department, which put out the car fire, and an ambulance for the woman.

The woman was transported to Choate Hospital for treatment and evaluation, according to police reports.

After being treated for minor cuts and bruises, the woman was arrested on charges of malicious damage to property over $100, police said.

The rear wall of the parking garage had a six-foot by four-foot square of damage to its brickwork.

The Buick had damage to its front end, according to police.

At 12:41 p.m. police investigated a possible breaking and entering at 251 Swanton St.

Abdul Rana, the owner, told police that two screws had been removed from a hinge on a door leading to the cellar. Rana said he thought someone may have entered the cellar through an unlocked door and forced open the door leading to the first floor.

The entrance may have been gained to a room Rana rents. The tenant said nothing was missing. A window was broken in the cellar last week, according to police. Rana expressed concern that neighborhood youths may have been involved, police said.

At 8:04 a.m. a case of larceny was reported at 3 Loring Ave.

Someone broke into a 1988 Audi parked in the driveway.

Damage was done to the dashboard and about 20 Greek tapes were taken, according to police.

Friday, January 8

At 5 p.m. police found an abandoned vehicle on Shore Road.

The blue Mazda carried a registration that had expired in October, 1987, and had been parked there for almost two weeks.

The owner was traced to Salem on the police computer. Mail belonging to a Winchester Place resident was found in the interior, according to police.

A neighbor claimed the car belonged to the local resident. The car was towed.

Correction

Last week in the article that announced Mark Lombardi's run for reelection, the Star printed a statement that said, "If elected he will begin a third term, an honor shared by only four others before him."

Evidently, the information received from the candidate was not correct because former-Selectman Ed O'Connell telephoned the Star to set the record straight this week.

According to O'Connell, only three selectmen have served three consecutive terms thus far: John Sullivan, from 1968 to 1977, Arthur Dunbar, from 1971 to 1980 and Ed O'Connell, from 1976 to 1985.

Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh was the first to have a second term, O'Connell says, and Paul Amico was the first to serve two consecutive terms. Neither served a third term.

ABOUT TOWN

MWRA praises firm's efforts to save water

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority recently sent a letter of commendation to a Winchester company which exhibited leadership in water conservation practices and public education.

MWRA Executive Director Paul F. Levy said, "We are very pleased with the initiative such companies have shown. Not only have they taken measures to reduce their own water bills, they have also helped to educate the public about water conservation. We urge other businesses to adopt these practices."

McCord-Winn-Textron and Grava Chrysler-Plymouth have demonstrated that water conservation is cost effective and keeps our water supply from being needlessly depleted," Levy said.

McCord-Winn-Textron, of Winchester, and Grava Chrysler-Plymouth, of Medford, will be the first two members of The Quabbin Club, a 1988 recognition program for conscientious water-conservation activists. Both companies will be formally honored in the spring for their efforts.

McCord-Winn-Textron, a manufacturer of auto parts, will be honored for their "closed loop cooling system" which recycles water used for cooling machinery. A spokesman for the company estimates they have saved more than 90,000 gallons of water a day by re-using water.

Volunteers sought for Campership funding drive

The Mystic Valley Campership Coalition needs volunteers to help organize and direct its annual campaign to raise money for local special needs children who want to go to summer camp. The Winchester-based coalition, which also covers Arlington, Burlington, Lexington, Wilmington and Woburn, has conducted a campaign each year since 1981 to provide an essential camping experience for local children in need.

Some of these children are physically and mentally handicapped; others are emotionally and developmentally disabled. In each case, however, summer camp is a necessity for growth. The alternative would be for these children to regress in their emotional and social development due to a lack of services and social isolation.

Because of the recognized benefits of summer camp, the Mystic Valley Campership Coalition receives many requests for help. In order to meet these requests, the coalition seeks contributions from local churches, fraternal organizations, businesses, and private citizens. One hundred percent of all contributions are applied to camperships, no administrative costs are deducted. Contributors can request that their donation be applied to a specific town.

The children helped by this annual fund drive would not be able to attend camp without the help provided by the coalition. These children have included: a four-year-old girl who needed to learn sign language to communicate with her two hearing impaired brothers; a boy who is multi-handicapped, blind and non-verbal; a girl who is developmentally delayed and confined to a wheelchair.

The coalition, which is sponsored by the Mystic Valley Council for Children, raised $3,187 last year and provided camperships to 50 local children. This year, the coalition hopes to help even more special needs children.

To do this, however, the coalition needs additional volunteers to help run the fund drive, to review the applications, and to distribute the camperships. If you are interested in contributing some time and energy to this effort, please attend the Campership Coalition's next meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 27 at 7 p.m. at the First Congregational Church in Winchester. The time commitment will not be great, but the feeling of satisfaction and accomplishment will be.

For additional information, please call Community Representative Daniel Barry at 729-4350.

Schools, churches and groups lend hands to needy

Winchester schools, churches, civic organizations and individuals were among those who made the holidays a more joyful time for families in need. Contributions to the Woburn Council of Social Concern, which serves people in 20 area towns, were made by these organizations:

The First Congregational Church of Winchester, which provided food baskets for 25 families in need and delivered them. Winchester High School students, led by Jennifer Ciotti, who "adopted" three families and provided food and holiday gifts.

McCall Junior High School students and faculty, who collected a large donation of food to be used for the Council's holiday food baskets and year-long food pantry for families in need. Lynch Elementary School students and faculty, who collected food and gifts for distribution to those in need.

The Winchester Unitarian Society, which contributed mittens and scarves from their "mittens tree" as well as a donation of food. Masonic Lodge, whose members helped the Council staff with transportation of food baskets, and who "adopted" three families in need and provided help for holiday gifts.

Muraco Elementary School

Brownie Troop 1468 and their leaders are all smiles as they deliver food donations from the Lynch Elementary School to the Woburn Council of Social Concern's food pantry.

McCall Junior High School students, from left, Robert Laberatore, Chuck Chute and Robert Barille bring donations of food from the school to offices of the Woburn Council of Social Concern for distribution to needy families. They and teacher Jim Maconochie made several trips to deliver boxes of donated food.

students and parents, who collected and donated a generous sharing of food items and basic paper products. Immaculate Conception Church, which made a large donation of food and children's gifts. St. Mary's Church, which provided several boxes of toys. And Faith Fellowship Ministries, for their special outreach assistance to those in public housing.

"It is only through the caring of our neighbors that we are able to help those who are going through a difficult time right now," said Council Executive Director Dean Solomon. "Our Winchester friends joined others from throughout this area in a truly heartwarming example of caring in action."

He said that the Council also appreciated the work of many individual volunteers from Winchester, who helped to sort canned goods, pack the baskets, and deliver food and gifts, and to individuals and families who made donations for this program.

"Not only at holiday time, but throughout the year, we have enjoyed and appreciated the friendship of Winchester residents, expressed through their sharing with others," he said.

The Council serves persons of all ages with children's day care; senior citizen programs; outreach to the Hispanic community; youth counseling, education and emergency shelter; home-sharing coordination; and an emergency food pantry. It is the only multi-service social service agency in the area.

NEWS NOTES

Town election season begins

Town Clerk Carolyn Ward announced that nomination papers for the 1988 town election are now available. "With the holidays behind them and with only twelve weeks remaining until the annual election on Tuesday, March 29," said Ward, "candidates are now making their campaign plans and thinking about taking out nomination papers."

Town wide offices to be filled this year are the one-year Moderator's seat, two three-year terms on the Board of Selectmen, Planning Board and School Committee, one three-year term on the Board of Library Trustees, Board of Assessors and Board of Health and one five-year term on the Housing Authority. This year, because of a vacancy on the Housing Authority, there is an additional two-year term.

Candidates for town wide office are required to obtain the signatures of 50 registered voters in order to have their names placed on the ballot.

In addition to the town wide offices, one-third of the membership of the representative town meeting is up for re-election.

Town Meeting member candidates need to have only 10 registered voters in their precinct sign their nomination papers. Incumbent Town Meeting members do not have to obtain signatures, but must notify the town clerk in writing of their desire to become a candidate for re-election.

The last day to take out nomination papers at the Town Clerk's office is Thursday, Feb. 11. Candidates have until Feb. 16 to submit signed papers to the Board of Registrars for certification.

For more information on running for town office, potential candidates are urged to contact the town clerk.

Cablevision ups certain charges

Continental Cablevision announced increases to Winchester customers in three one-time charges. Effective Feb. 1, customers wishing to have an additional cable outlet installed, to relocate an existing outlet or to transfer service within Winchester will realize a one-time charge of $9.95 instead of the $7.50 charge currently in place. Continental also announced the introduction of a new service option, custom installation. Beginning in February customers with special requirements such as in-wall wiring or pre-wiring will be able to coordinate that work through Continental. The charge for custom installation will be $39.95.

All cable television customers in town will soon be shifted into a new billing cycle that will make inquiries to Continental Cablevision much easier. According to Drew Bouldin, Community Services Manager at Continental, the shift in the due date of the bills will translate into more evenly distributed phone traffic and easier access to Continental's customer service staff.

"Presently all of our customers are billed from the first of the month through the end with a due date of the third of each month," Bouldin said, "however, the March bills will run from the eighth of the current month through the seventh of the following month." Due date on this new cycle will be the tenth of the month.

Winchester customers will notice that their February bills may appear to be larger.

Authority offers rental assistance

The Winchester Housing Authority currently has two rental assistance programs. One is a state-aided 707 Rental Assistance Program, which provides for low-income families to pay no more than 25 percent of their adjusted monthly income towards rent. The remaining 75 percent is funded by the state, through the Winchester Housing Authority. Currently, nine families are leased up under this program. Additional funding has been requested for the authority to assist more families.

The second rental assistance program is the new H.U.D. Section Eight voucher program. This provides rental assistance to families so they pay no more than 30 percent of their adjusted monthly income towards rent. The remaining 70 percent is paid by the federal government through the Winchester Housing Authority. Presently there are twenty-five voucher holders. As soon as these families find housing, the authority intends to apply for additional voucher funding.

The Winchester Housing Authority also has two units of 705 Family Housing under management. The authority is planning to go to bid for five more additional units of 705 Family Housing. The 705 Housing Program consists of properties owned by the Winchester Housing Authority and rented to low-income families. Once, again, the families pay no more than 25 percent of their adjusted monthly income towards rent.

In addition to the rental assistance programs, the authority has under management 112 units of elderly and handicapped housing. With the addition of the Rental Assistance Programs, which began two years ago, the Winchester Housing Authority has increased the amount of families served by 37 percent.

Now you can catch three varieties of fresh Florida seafood all in one spot.

If you can't find your way down to your favorite Florida fishing spot this winter, don't worry. We'll give you a taste of what you're missing. Because from January 19th to February 28th, we'll be featuring fresh Florida seafood at our Upper Crust restaurant.

With our cold, stormy New England winters, fresh fish is hard to come by up north. Which is why we've gone south for ours. And if you've never tasted fresh Florida seafood, you're in for a treat. Our featured specials include Jumbo Gulf Shrimp, Fresh Red Drumfish and Stone Crab Claws.

So, if you'd like a little taste of Florida this winter, there's only one spot to go. Take a short trip to the nearby Upper Crust restaurant. There are no palm trees, but just think of what you'll save on the airfare.

Special to the Star

While some people dream of starting their own businesses, others like Winchester resident Mike Marrocco, offer advice in order to make those dreams a reality.

Marrocco, a retired senior advisory manufacturing engineer from General Electric, is a member of the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE), a free business counseling organization sponsored by the US Small Business Administration.

"A lot of people have good ideas for a business," Marrocco says, "but it's amazing what they don't know about the realities in getting started."

Since he became a counselor in November, his clients have included an upholsterer unaware of the transportation needs needed to establish an upholstery business, and a budding agent in the musical world, who, although acquainted with a number of musicians, possessed little familiarity with music itself.

"Basically we're trying to help people help themselves," Marrocco explains. "And if I can't help them, I'll refer them to a counselor who can."

Marrocco's own professional specialty involved dealing with vendors in the manufacture and acquisition of aircraft component parts. His colleagues at the Boston chapter of SCORE include retired company presidents, senior consultants, corporate recruiters, C.P.A.s and marketing sales managers. The program began in 1964 and has become the largest volunteer business counseling service in the country. Membership numbers 12,500 at more than 592 locations. In Massachusetts, 380 counselors lend assistance from 22 offices. Marrocco is the only volunteer living in Winchester.

"It's always rewarding helping people," he says. "Plus, it provides me with a stimulating outlet."

Volunteering has given Marrocco other stimulating outlets as well. He served on the alumni board of directors at the Massachusetts Maritime Academy, and he umpired Little League baseball in the local area for more than 15 years.

After his retirement from G.E. in 1986, he worked as a private consultant and continued his association with the Academy via a position on the Advisory Board of Visitors.

His duties with SCORE involve a commitment of five days every month. While in the office, he is one of six counselors available. He usually spends an hour of counseling per client.

Marrocco advises those interested in exploring entrepreneurial realities to visit their nearest SCORE office. For Winchester residents that means the O'Neill Building on 10 Causeway St. in Boston. The hours are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Monday through Friday. Visitors may call for an appointment or simply stop in.

Advice from a range of SCORE experts is available at day-long conferences, which are scheduled on two Thursdays each month. A $10 registration fee is required. For people interested in volunteer opportunities, counselors are accepted for service by a board of SCORE members after a favorable review of the applicant's resume and interview performance.

Early Deadline

Deadline for the submission of material for publication in the Jan. 21 paper will be moved back a day as a result of the Martin Luther King Day holiday.

Copy received by 4 p.m. Friday, Jan. 15, will be considered for publication the next week.

The normal 4 p.m. Monday deadline will be back in effect the following week.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

As he set sail in 1492 on the voyage that would culminate in the discovery of the New World, Christopher Columbus resolved to "write down everything that I might do and see and experience on this voyage from day to day and very carefully." True to his promise, he kept a daily account of his adventures, which he presented to Queen Isabella upon his return to Spain in 1493.

The original log in Columbus's own hand is lost but, using original copies of the log and information from a family history written by Columbus's son Ferdinand, author and translator Robert Fuson has carefully reconstructed the famous voyage.

Columbus's physical progress day by day and other details of the voyage are interspersed in the log with meticulous descriptions of the people, landscapes and plant and animal life.

Columbus encounters. The log entries reveal much of Columbus's personality; his wonder at his discoveries, his insights on human nature, his style of leadership and his religious faith.

The log of Christopher Columbus has been sensitively translated and is a readable as well as scholarly piece of research. With the Quincentennial of the Voyage of Discovery approaching in 1992, we can expect to be bombarded with information about the event which literally changed the world, but there is no better place to start than with Columbus's personal account of his achievement.

The Log of Christopher Columbus, published by International Marine Publishing Company of Camden, Maine, is available in the New Books section of Winchester Public Library and can be reserved for you by a librarian. For more information, call 721-7171.

SENIOR NEWS

Intergenerational concert scheduled at Jenks Center

By LEONOR RICH
Special to the Star

As one activity of the year-long celebration of the 350th anniversary of the history of Winchester, an intergenerational concert will be held at the Jenks Senior Center on Feb. 3 at 1:15 p.m. in the Meeting Room following the noontime "Eating Together" program.

The Winchester Music School, the Winchester High School Music Department, and the Jenks Senior Center will combine their talents in a concert that features choral singing by high school students, instrumental wind ensembles, two chamber groups, the senior recorder class, the Jenks Senior Center Glee Club and participation by students from the Winchester Music School.

Parents are invited to attend this intergenerational musical program. Seniors are urged to sign up for the noontime luncheon, especially this one that is scheduled on Wednesday, Feb. 3, to show support and appreciation for the efforts of the performing musicians whose age range covers a wide span of years.

Encouragement from seniors for developing a vital interest in cultural activities is an important obligation in educating tomorrow's citizens. Outstanding talent is found among the young in our schools and must be nurtured to reach the high levels of capability.

Winchester Home and Garden Club offers a challenge

The Winchester Home and Garden Club is opening a "Challenge Class" at the Jenks Senior Center on Feb. 18 from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. in the Craft Room at the lower level as an activity in celebrating Winchester's 350th anniversary.

The class will plant seeds at least three months before participating in a Standard Flower Show at the Jenks Senior Center on May 25 in order to be eligible for being judged. The Challenge Class is a feature of the Horticulture Division of the Winchester Home and Garden Club, growing specific plants from seed.

Such things as a special variety of tomato, marigold, and/or coleus, all of which may be grown on a windowsill or under lights, will be planted. Margie Lamar will conduct the workshop on seed planting in the Crafts Room at the Jenks Senior Center, lower level of the building. The Winchester Home and Garden Club will supply seeds, pots, soil, etc.

Accept the challenge! Grow some plants for the Flower Show Workshop and have the results judged by a Winchester Home and Garden Club committee. Sign up for the workshop with the Jenks Senior Center receptionist before Feb. 16.

Notice on closing

The Jenks Senior Center will be closed on Jan. 18 in observance of Martin Luther King Day.

Italian class resumes

Dr. Salvador Jacobs will return to the Jenks Senior Center to continue instructions in the Italian language class on Jan. 19 at 1:30 p.m. The interruption of classes was occasioned by his recent hospitalization.

Now that his health has improved, he is eager to pick up the instructional reins again with the goal of helping class members to achieve some fluency in speaking this musical language.

Crafts and stichery

Jayne Norberg's Crafts and Stichery Class at the Jenks Senior Center is turning its attention to the project of quilting on Wednesdays from 1 to 3 p.m.

More people are encouraged to avail themselves of this opportunity to work collectively on a quilt with a selective design.

Health benefits

counselors program

The invitation of the Jenks Senior Center Health Benefits Counselors Committee was accepted by Mr.

Robert O'Byck for Friday, Jan. 22, at 10:30 a.m. He is the Medicare Beneficiary Education Coordinator at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Massachusetts.

Mr. O'Byck will update the audience on recent changes in Medicare and will indicate impending changes in 1988. The Bowen Plan will be reviewed, dealing with the "Catastrophic Illness Proposal" now being considered in Congress.

The variety of health service programs continue to shift and adjust with frequency. Following Bob O'Byck's presentation, there will be a question and answer session during which time he will respond to problems in the minds of members of the audience.

This is the second appearance of the speaker at the Jenks Senior Center. About two years ago, he gave much valuable information that was helpful to all who attended the meeting. Make a special effort to attend this worthwhile presentation.

Men, come dine at the Eating Together lunch

On Wednesdays, three groups of men meet at the Jenks Senior Center:

the For Men Only Cribbage group, the Chess group, and the Men's Discussion Group. All who participate in these activities are urged to join the "Eating Together" lunch period to enjoy a good meal along with the sociability of the noon hour program.

Signing up by 11 a.m. on the day preceding the meal is required since Elaine Di Pietro, site nutrition manager, has to call the Minute Man Home Care Corporation to give the number of meals to order for the following day.

Menus for the next two weeks are as follows:

Friday, Jan. 15
Knockwurst w/mustard
Sliced American Cheese
Frankfurt Roll
Beef Vegetable Soup
Potato Salad

Wednesday, Jan. 20

COMMENT

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

There's no problem like your problem

The budget dilemma has been prowling around the town like Grendel the mythical Nordic beast. No one wants to acknowledge it, but once in a while it drags a screaming resident off into the night.

There will be some very real casualties very soon if Town Meeting members don't grab the beast by the arm and tear it off the way Beowulf did.

This week Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia expressed concern that she had not received many calls about tonight's public hearing. Usually when an issue is hot the phone is jumping off the hook, she says.

Objectively the issue is hot, no doubt about it. The town faces a substantial loss of services or severe personnel cutbacks or both. Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer projects that in the worst-case scenario, 32 workers will be cut from the fiscal 1989 roster. Another alternative would delete the capital spending program in its entirety. These are Draconian measures.

But town officials are worried that townspeople are not worried. The turnout tonight will be a measure of how important the issue is in the perception of the general public.

One possible reason for the lackadaisical attitude could be that Maurer's preliminary budget overview, mailed to all Town Meeting members, reads like the telephone book. There are people who like to read the telephone book, but most of them are foreigners trying to learn English.

Finance people like tables of numbers. How else could the Wall Street Journal sell so many copies? To those trained in money matters, tables tell stories, sometimes eloquent tales of glory or woe.

Maurer's dry report belies the pain that it represents. Winchester's bylaws require the town manager to submit a balanced budget, and these days under 2½ that is nearly impossible.

Most of the $1,270,380 shortfall comes from increased costs beyond the town's control. Maurer points out that without these uncontrollable costs, the operating budget is in balance.

The town's leaders have known since 2½ was implemented that this day would come. Wages, which make up more than two-thirds of the total budget, rise more than 2½ percent every year. Union negotiators don't settle for those kinds of numbers. But not to put the unions on the spot, no one else settles for those kinds of numbers either. If an executive gets a 2½ percent raise, he or she starts looking for another job.

So the inflation to break 2½ was always there; it just took a while to catch up. We got a nice eight-year run out of it, but the fun is over. If in 1980-81 we had had the courage to carry 2½ to its logical limits, everyone would have agreed to wage restraints as well as tax restraints, but there's no use crying over spilled red ink.

The insurance craze has certainly exacerbated the problem. Everyone's penchant for suing everyone else has created a bonanza for insurance companies, a lot of aggravation for the rest of us and higher costs for the municipalities.

Another possible reason for the lukewarm interest in the town's budget problem is that the federal government has almost convinced the population that deficits are a good, even necessary, tool of financial management. If the feds can do it, why can't we?

Well, the feds can't do it and nor can we. The U.S. has very deep pockets, much deeper than Winchester's, and there is no big 2½ in the sky that keeps Washington from gobbling up the farm, but the change in financial weather is now proving that even deep pockets have a bottom. We all have to live within our means.

The point of all this noise about citizen participation in the budget process is that there are some very real choices to be made, and if the outcome is not pleasing to some, they will have only themselves to blame for not having voiced their opinions. This is what participatory democracy is all about.

Switzerland, a very old participatory democracy, does not get the vote out. In typical cantonal elections and referenda, 30 percent of the people vote. The country runs exceedingly well, and most people don't perceive an urgency in questions put before the public.

The result is that a few activists make all the decisions, and that puts the country right back on the road to the fascism it supposedly spurned when the French Swiss convinced the German Swiss not to join the Third Reich.

Maurer is ready to play hardball. His Option 1 does not need any voter's approval. He just cuts the programs and that's it. For this year. Then he does it again next year.

His Option 3 requires only a vote from the selectmen, so combining the two, six people can make the decisions for the whole town. However, Option 3 only nets another $200,000 in new fees, not enough to cover the shortfall, and we're back to cuts again.

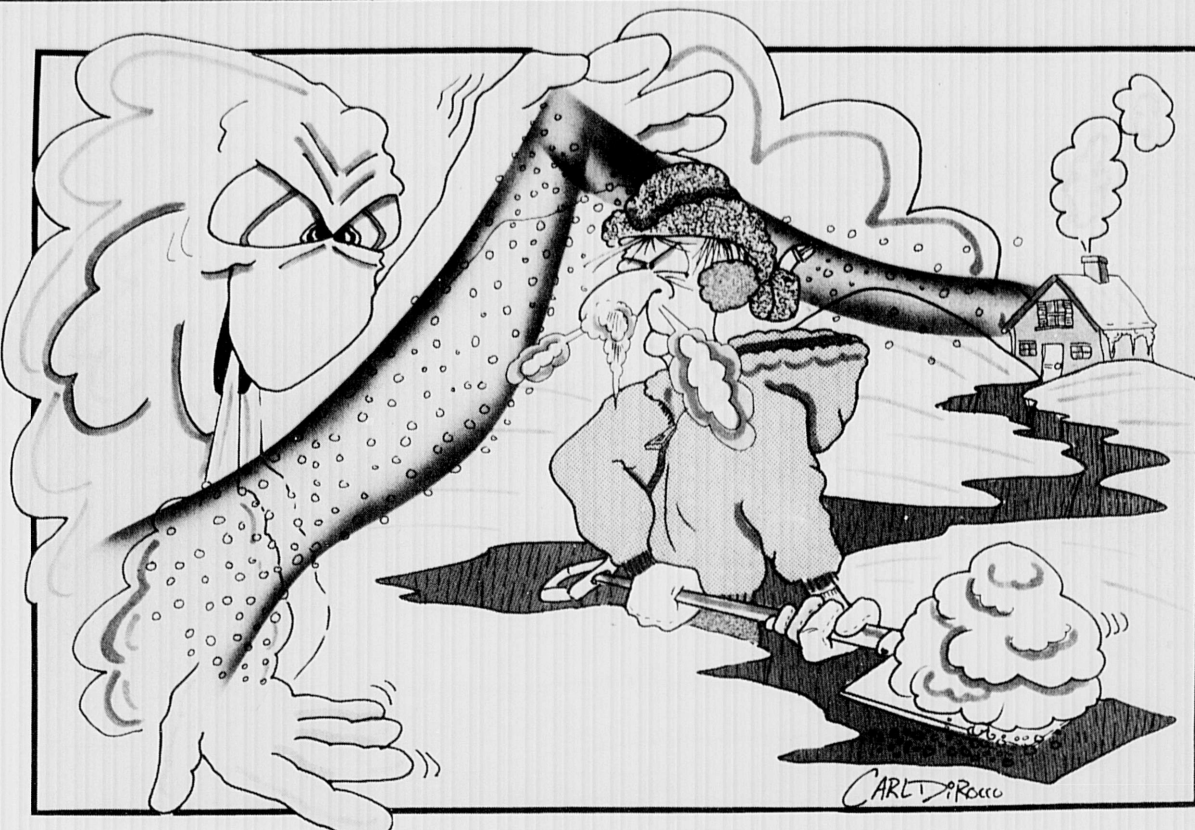

Option 2 takes a Town Meeting vote and gains $500,000, but that's new taxes, folks. In the form of fees, but new taxes. Does Town Meeting have the political will to enact new taxes? Go to the meeting tonight and find out.

Option 4 take a two-thirds vote of Town Meeting, a still sterner test of bullet-biting capacity that gains only $200,000. The good news is that it's $200,000 each year for three years. The bad news is that when it's over, it's over.

Option 5, the granddaddy, is worth $800,000, but requires a four-fifths selectmen's vote and a town-wide referendum.

The choice is up to you, folks, and no choice is a choice.

- Roger L. Kay

Old Man Winter finally hit last week for real, bringing the first major dig-out of the season.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

There never was a waiting room

TO THE EDITOR:

Had I not been shivering in the cold (9 degrees above zero), I would have been amused to hear that "the town maintains a waiting room for commuters."

We may as well have a liquor store at the train station; a bottle of good Scotch probably would keep us as warm as the locked waiting room which faces cold commuters each day.

Nook and Cranny Antique Shop closes

TO THE EDITOR:

We have decided after 25 years in business, we will close our antique shop as of Jan. 31.

We would like to take the opportunity to thank our wonderful friends and customers for patronizing us over the years.

When we had the fire at the our shop at the old George Murray building four years ago, we were ready to call it quits, but our many friends and customers all urged us to reopen, which we did.

We thank all who placed so much trust and confidence in us. Dealers as a rule are not the chosen breed. This is too bad, as there are more honest than dishonest dealers in the business. Our suggestion to anyone going into this business: be honest to the best of your ability and you will be successful.

It has been a most rewarding experience and really a fun business.

As we close, if we can be of any help, please feel free to contact us.

And so we bid a "fond adieu" to all.

In closing — a heartfelt thank you to those who touched our lives for 25 years. It was really fun!

It is never too late to enjoy reading

By TERRY MAROTTA

It is Tuesday. We sit, this sunny fall morning, in a peaceful snooze-inducing corner of the public library, a couple of law students, judging by the size of their tomes, myself, and a staff of two or three, who manage in the paradoxical way of all librarians to look both brisk and bored at the same time, both slightly disapproving and enormously helpful.

The morning itself is no longer young. In the schools, milk-and-cookie time has passed and pencils are starting to drop, nudged nearer desk's edge by fingers eager for recess.

I sit just now alternately reading, writing, and doodling in the dreamy state I love best to inhabit, when two people at a table nearby catch my attention.

They are senior citizens, evidently engrossed in some project. She wears a sweatshirt, jeans and sneakers, and two rings apiece on each of her ring fingers. He is in chinos, sneakers too, and a soft amber-colored shirt. The expression on his face is one of intense concentration; the expression on hers one of patience and a certain fixity of purpose.

They talk earnestly together, handing small cards back and forth between them. As I work at my own table, their activity drifts in and out of my awareness.

There is so much to look at and think about here: inside, the sight of people sustaining and enriching themselves at this free and accessible font of knowledge; outside, a birch tree shivers, bare now, looking like a young girl undressed for the bath. Across the street, a church pushes square red-brick shoulders toward the heavens, its style neither Gothic nor Romanesque but something in the middle, with a dash of 19th century Schoolhouse thrown in.

And the couple again, looking so pleasant and earnest.

Now I can hear parts of their conversation.

"S-O-M-E," says the man looking at one card. "I know that: some."

"And how about this one?" asks his friend.

"V-A-N-I-T-Y," spells the man. He looks at it, pauses.

"Take it slow," the woman says softly. It has a couple of meanings.

And then it strikes me: the woman is a teacher; her companion with the handsome head of white hair, a pupil. He is learning to read.

They go on. "Perhaps" gives him trouble as does "bother." As they discuss each word, it is clear that though he cannot yet read as well as the average third-grader, he speaks well, with the easy command of an adult vocabulary.

A small regiment of nursery school students canters by, out on a field trip, it looks like, a pair of harried-looking grownups hot on their heels.

"Jennifer!" screams one of the tykes. "Teacher said no wunning!"

"This looks easy," says the man, back at his table. "Let me have a crack at this sentence."

And he does.

"Now here is a list I'm going to give you," says the woman. "Take these words and study them. Then you'll always know them when you see them."

"Okay, fine," says the pupil. "V-A-M-P. Vuh, a mm, puh. Vamp! Now there's a word I haven't heard in a while!"

"You see? Soon you won't need me. Soon you'll be reading War and Peace."

Sighing, the law students gather up their coats and break for lunch.

Outside, a priest emerges from the church, dons a beret and steps briskly into the slow eddies of foot-traffic. The clock in his steeple strikes twelve.

We all look up, surprised to find the hour so late, and the morning so soon gone.

But is it too late then? Ah no, it is never too late.

McCall earns certification

At the 102nd Annual Meeting of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston, schools and colleges receiving initial institutional accreditation in 1987 were recognized by Robert A. Skiff, president of the association and president of Champlain College, Burlington, Vermont.

At a special breakfast gathering,

President Skiff and newly elected President Robert B. McCarthy, special assistant to the superintendent in Brookline, presented a Certificate of Accreditation to Evander French, Jr., principal of McCall Junior High School and Eugene Prior, chairman of the McCall Steering Committee who were representing McCall Junior High School of Winchester, Ma.

The New England Association of Schools and Colleges is an independent, voluntary, nongovernmental organization of educational institutions. The association is dedicated to the establishment of cooperative relations among colleges and school, to the development, maintenance, and improvement of sound educational standards, and to the promotion of interests common to both colleges and schools. Institutional members of the New England association represent public elementary, junior high/middle, high schools, vocational secondary schools, independent schools, postsecondary technical and career institutions, and two and four-year colleges.

Accreditation by the New England association followed an in-depth self-study conducted by the staff. The self-evaluation document was then submitted to a visiting team whose assignment was to validate the self-analysis, develop a written document identifying strengths of the institution, and prepare a series of recommendations that once implemented will enhance the quality of education for the students enrolled.

Regional accreditation indicates the receiving institution is in compliance with the association standards of membership, has satisfied the institutional self-study requirements, and that a peer group of educators has visited the institution. The association monitors accredited schools and colleges carefully to ensure that standards of membership are maintained between comprehensive evaluations.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Volume 13-Report No. 52
Massachusetts House and Senate
December 21-25, 1987

The House and Senate. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on 10 roll calls and local senators' votes on 5 roll calls from the hectic weeks preceding the end of the 1987 session.

Census (H 3654). House approved 144-6, Senate approved 36-0, a proposed constitutional amendment abolishing the state census and providing for the use of the federal census to determine state representative and senatorial districts.

Supporters, noting the state census is costly and inaccurate, said this will save $7 million.

Opponents claimed the federal census is loaded with inaccuracies and urged improvements in the state census.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Representative Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes.

Senator Richard Kraus voted yes.

Smoking (H 3697). Senate 21-18, refused to reconsider its earlier approval of a bill regulating smoking in public and private buildings. Provisions included requiring state colleges to reserve some dormitory rooms for non-smokers and requiring a no-smoking section in restaurants which seat 75 people or more.

Bill supporters said the measure is another step to protect the rights of non-smokers.

Opponents said the bill goes too far and claimed owners of private restaurants should decide if they want a no-smoking section.

A Yea vote is for reconsidering passage of the bill. A Nay vote is for the bill.

Kraus voted no.

Health Care (S 2164). Senate 33-4, gave near final approval and sent to the House a new version of the so-called "universal health care" bill increasing access of the uninsured to health care. The lengthy 77 page measure requires all Massachusetts employers to offer health insurance by 1992 or pay into a fund which would make the coverage available. Other provisions provide that the state provide to cover some uninsured patients and offer incentives and tax breaks to small businesses to encourage them to offer their employees health insurance. The bill also includes a new hospital cost control mechanism and provides up to $50 million annually in state reimbursements to make up for losses due to federal Medicare cutbacks.

Supporters said the bill is a fair (Continued on page 14)

AND YOU

By Dick Murphy
The Bixby & Porter Co. Realtors

STRUCTURAL INSPECTIONS

If you have a house for sale, your buyers will probably include a contingency in the contract asking for some time to get a structural inspection. They will hire an expert to look at the way the house is built and to check out the major systems and any appliances that convey.

A professional structural inspector will help your buyers get to know your house and feel comfortable with it. It's not an inspection that results in a pass or fail grade. The buyers will learn important things about the house. How do they find the water cut-off valve in an emergency? Are there any cost-effective energy conservation investments they might want to make after settlement? How should they set up a budget for repairs over the next ten years? Buyers rarely back out of a sale after a structural. Even if there are problems, you have an opportunity to negotiate a compromise early in the transaction, helping to avoid problems that could threaten the sale if discovered later on.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate professional at Bixby & Porter are ready to serve you. Call us at 729-7000 or drop by our offices at 33 Thompson Street in Winchester.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

New 'Fat Magnet' Diet Pill Guarantees Fast Weight Loss

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

No Dieting—Eat Normally

There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested. Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.

"Pills Do All the Work"
According to the doctors, the fat-magnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs. It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public
If you need to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W 14, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) and Bennett Hammond. It will be the third event of 1988 geared toward the 350th Anniversary celebration.

The history of Winchester may not tell us what music the first settlers brought to this region, but we can still know and relive our musical heritage, since the music itself survives, some of it written down, some of it passed down in the New England folk culture. Some of that will be presented in concert in Chidley Hall of the First Unitarian Church, where Lee and Hammond perform.

The year 1638 was part of the Stuart era, when music was in transition between the Renaissance and the Baroque. To a great extent it was the Elizabethan era (the direct predecessor of the Stuart age) which the colonists brought with them and passed down to succeeding generations. Not only tunes in our folk culture, but also melodies in our church hymnals may be traced back to these early eras. The tune of "Star of County Down," on Lee's album "An Evaluation of Dulcimers," is, for example, one many would recognize both as a traditional folk melody and as the hymn tune, "Kingsfold."

Our musical heritage includes more, however, than the Tudor and Stuart influence. Succeeding settlers brought music of later cultures and of other parent countries.

The repertoire of Lee/Hammond concerts ranges from early Celtic tunes to blues and contemporary, includes traditional music as well as original pieces, and reflects a variety of influences from American and European traditions. Lee's recordings, for example, have included transcriptions of Elizabethan dances, Irish harp tunes, French Baroque suites, and a variety of traditional melodies. The enduring vitality of this repertoire has been attested to at her many concert appearances, most recently including, with Bennett Hammond, concerts at the S.M.U. Eisteddfod Festival, Cambridge River Festival, Somerville Theater, Hasty Pudding Club, Passim's, Blacksmith Folk Festival, and First Night.

Lee and Hammond are both string performers.

The MDC would like to see an increase in "passive recreational use" of the Fells, Saltmarsh asserted. MDC representatives defined passive as physical activity that is individual, (organized sports are not acceptable) makes minimal use of equipment (cross-country skiing is acceptable) and does not require motors.

The MDC is ready to step up the maintenance of parks over which it has jurisdiction. Whatever is done by the MDC, the water will be protected, Saltmarsh said.

"I would like to go on record," he stated, "I will do anything that you feel is necessary to protect that water supply."

Dorothy Volpe-O'Malley, director of public affairs at the MDC and a resident of South Border Road, said, "We absolutely care about the quality of the water."

She told the board, some members of which have expressed suspicion about MDC activities in the Fells, that the reservations were set aside in the 1890s for public passive use.

Marcey Beitel, north regional supervisor of the MDC, said that the MDC intends to protect not only Winchester's reservoirs, but also those of Melrose and the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority's (MWRA's) Spot Pond reservoir, which are also in the Fells.

Beitel asserted that the MDC helped combat many fires in the Fells last summer and worked closely with the Winchester fire department during dry season.

Chip Norton, supervisor of the Middlesex Fells for the MDC, said that the commission's priority right now is educating the public about the history and use of the land.

MDC employees emphasized that increased passive use would discourage illicit use of the reservation.

Selectman Francis Sopper called the area around the reservoirs "sacred territory" and said the water bodies should be fenced to keep out the trespassers who surely would come with increased recreational use of the land.

"You can't keep people out of an unprotected water supply in the heat of July," he asserted.

Saltmarsh said that fencing exists in some places on the east side of the reservoirs and that it would be economically impossible to fence the entire perimeter.

Volpe-O'Malley said that, while there had been no patrolling before, there is now a mounted policeman in the reservation during the warm weather. She also said that the cross-country ski trails that have disturbed Sopper were not new trails, but simply old logging roads that had been cleared and marked.

In the one case where the route had been changed, it had been moved farther from the water, she said.

The reservation has "always been open to the public; it's just been mismanaged or unmanaged," she added.

Beitel said the MDC is not trying to draw thousands of people out of the city, but to create a "quality of experience" for park users. The commission's nature walks draw 20 people on a good day, he said.

Access is controlled by parking and parking will remain severely limited, he claimed.

"We all agree we want to protect the water supply," Saltmarsh summarized. He promised to look into selective fencing. He called for two mounted patrols during high season daylight hours. He pledged to see that the parking lots are controlled with the installation of gates that are closed at night.

He called the 2,000-acre reservation "one of the greatest resources we have in Winchester."

Selectman Chairman Judith Muggia asked Saltmarsh to report again to the selectmen in March and make available to the board correspondence between the MDC and MWRA.

Volpe-O'Malley informed the gathering that a master plan for use of the Fells will be drawn up this summer and that a citizens' advisory committee will be formed that will give Winchester residents a voice in the future use of the land.

Woburn Loop committee still needs four than in taking possession of it. If the commission does rule that a conflict exists, Toland says he is "inclined to go with the committee option."

The committee was originally set up to have three Town Meeting members from Precinct Eight and two from any other precinct, but the selectmen have opened up the pool to include any voter registered in town.

Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia indicated in a phone conversation that although any voter may volunteer, Precinct Eight residents are particularly welcome, as the outcome of Loop decisions affect them to a greater degree.

Latin Club

fetes Saturn

TO THE EDITOR:

As a member of the WHS Latin Club, I would like to thank Kathy McGillicuddy, a fellow Latin student and Miss Victoria Loeb, our Latin teacher, for making the 1987 Saturnalia a great success.

The Saturnalia was a Roman festival that commemorated the happy period under Saturn, when freedom and equality reigned and violence and oppression were unknown. Originally it was marked on Dec. 17, but its length was later extended. During the Saturnalia, feasting prevailed and gifts were exchanged, similar to the Christian festival of Christmas.

As in ancient times, our Saturnalia was a feast of sorts. It was held at the domicile of Kathy McGillicuddy, our consul, and many Latin students (some toga-clad) attended. We feasted on everything from M & M's to shrimp, much of which the McGillicuddy family graciously provided.

Miss Loeb brought the makings for holiday ornaments and we all sewed pom-poms and stars on felt wreaths, stockings, and other festive decorations. This ornament making was followed by a round of familiar carols sung in Latin and led by the AP students.

Many caring Latin students bestowed lovely gifts on Miss Loeb who thanked them all with a big smile and hug, and a good time was had by all.

Again, many thanks to Miss Loeb and Kathy for making this year's Saturnalia a wonderful evening. Gratias!

Grapplers knock off Melrose in a squeaker

By CHARLES L. COWEN
Special to the Star

Last Wednesday, the Winchester High wrestling team traveled to Melrose to challenge the top-rated Red Raiders.

Expected to be one of the toughest matches in the Middlesex League this season, the matchup owned up to its top billing. In a 36-35 barnburner, Winchester edged out Melrose handing them their first loss of the season while raising the Sachems record to 7-1 overall, 2-0 in the league.

Melrose, the team chosen in preseason polling as the favorites to win the league, got off to a good start. At 103 pounds, Dave Banks lost a tough bout, 7-2, followed by a Winchester forfeit due to a knee injury to starter Peter Lobur, giving Melrose a quick 9-0 lead.

Senior captain Bill Murphy (119) pinned his man early in the second period for six Sachem points. That was followed, however, by three straight Melrose victories at 125, 130 and 135 lb. weight classes. Picking up points in five of the first six matches had Melrose with a commanding 23-6 lead.

Winchester came roaring back. Roberto Saez (140) started the ball rolling with a first period pin. Chad Haskell (145) followed with another pin. In one of the most exciting matches of the evening, Chris Cholmondeley reversed and pinned his man after being down, 7-2, in the second period. This gave Winchester its first lead of the night, 24-23. Chuck Shannon added six more points by pin at 160.

Melrose picked up a pin of their own at 171 when John Giovino fell to returning state champ Don Gautreau. Ray Bustamante (189) locked up the team upset by pinning his Melrose opponent with only a minute left in the third period.

Melrose won by pin in the unlimited division but by then the issue had been decided and Winchester had emerged victorious.

ter is he let it slip away although he wrestled a solid match. Lowell put out an excellent 187-pounder who nailed down a Lowell victory over Ray Bustamante. Bustamante had to take chances looking for a victory for the Sachems but got caught being too aggressive. Winchester's returning heavyweight, Phil Svahn, is a terrific addition to the Winchester lineup. Svahn got a chance to compete against a fine Lowell heavyweight. His return adds depth to a good Winchester squad.

Winchester ended up losing to Lowell, 41-21, but the returning Selvittelli and Svahn will give the Sachem grapplers the ability to balance their lineup. With only their second loss of the year—both outside the league—Tremblay and assistant coach Ted Neill expressed reserved optimism.

The second match of the day against Newton North was a lopsided 60-12 victory. Banks set the pace with a pin and Mike Jordan followed with his first varsity pin. Murphy and Falcione both pinned in the second period. Doherty pinned in the first and Saez in the third period. Chad Haskell pinned to cap off an impressive week with three wins. Cholmondeley had the most exciting match of the day, pulling out a pin after being handled by a physical Newton North man. Selvittelli got his first pin of the year while Chuck Shannon took his man out in the second. Both seniors, Murphy and Shannon had three pins in their last three matches.

With Svahn helping to round out the heavier weight classes with Giovino and Bustamante, the team heads into the second half of the season. Neill looks ahead to the rest of the season hoping to see more of the maturity to cement itself in the team attitude. "We are watching this group become a team with the challenge of each match," he said.

Sachem girls launch Reading Rockettes into orbit, 53-29

Price and Delaney top scorers in b-ball rout

By CINDY PREE
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls' varsity basketball team emerged victorious after a fast-moving game with Reading last week.

The game started out well for Winchester, as Ritika Bowry made several good shots and passes. This was just the beginning for Bowry, who played an outstanding defensive game as well. Denise Delaney's hard drive to the basket with 4:30 left in the first quarter gave the team momentum, making the score 8-4, Winchester.

In addition to making great offensive plays, the Sachettes kept up their defense. This, coupled with determination and speed, helped them increase their lead to 13 by the end of the first quarter.

All the girls played an excellent shooting game, especially when it came to foul shots. With her two free throws late in the second quarter, Julie Kenerson brought her team up to a 17-point lead over the Rockettes. By halftime the score was 35-16 and the Winchester girls showed no signs of letting up.

Reading scored only three points in the third quarter, a tribute to the Sachettes defense, which remained in control. Both Beth Herlihy and Julie Sexeny played exceptionally well at this point in the game as each scored six points.

The Rockettes did get their offense together somewhat in the fourth quarter. They constructed many well-planned plays and a few layups but they could not catch up to Winchester which, by this point in the game, had increased its lead to 24.

"The man-to-man (full-court) press was our most effective defense in the game," said coach Joe Disarcina. "We also had numerous steals and fast-break opportunities."

The game resulted in a final score of 53-29, making the girls record 5-2. Allison Price was the top scorer in the game with 12 points. Delaney (10) and Kenerson (8) also did well.

The girls hope to continue their winning ways as they take on Belmont, Woburn and Wakefield in the upcoming weeks.

Boys swim team makes it two straight victories as they overmatch Wakefield

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys swim team made it two wins in a row last week when they upended Wakefield, 46-30. The Sachems overmatched the Warriors, which is a team made up primarily of girls.

Winchester began the meet by taking first and second in the 200 medley relay. Alexi Carayannopoulos, T.J. Foley, John Murray and Omar Ali took first while the quadrumvirate of Howie Mahoney, Chris Jervey, Kirk Rosenberger and Brian Romer finished second.

Although they had trouble matching up overall with Winchester, two of Wakefield's female swimmers were particularly impressive. Janice DeSimone and Melanie Paar each won one event and placed second in another.

Bouke Noordzij kept the ball rolling for the Sachems picking up a victory in the 200 freestyle with a time of 2:04.3. Jervey was second in the 200 individual medley while Rosenberger and Mahoney finished second and third in the 50 freestyle.

Winchester took first and second in the 100 butterfly thanks to Foley (57.0) and Mike Bowers (1:01). Noordzij finished second in the 100 freestyle while Brendan MacNeil took third. Adam Laats won the 500 freestyle with a time of 5:29.5 and Mike Fieleke was third.

Brian Romer won the 100 backstroke while Doug Holt won the 100 breaststroke. Noordzij took third in the backstroke and Jervey was third in the breaststroke. The Sachems won the 400 freestyle relay behind the fine efforts of Laats, Fieleke, Mahoney and Pierre Kaiser.

The Sachems next meet will be this Saturday against Melrose at Northeast Regional Vocational School in Wakefield starting at 5:30pm.

Sachem hockey team almost ends losing streak

Winn and Guilderson forced to miss a game

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High hockey team had their chances last week against Lexington but the Minutemen were more opportunistic and came away with the 3-1 victory. Later in the week, the Sachems engaged in combat—literally—with Belmont and won the battle but lost the war, 8-0.

Lexington and Winchester both were winless going into the contest and Sachem loyalists were excited about the prospects of breaking their 43-game losing streak. Both teams had their chances but unfortunately it was Lexington that converted, which was the difference in the outcome. Time and time again the Sachems streaked in alone on the Minutemen net only to be denied by goaltender Dave Coughlin or by their inability to get a shot on goal.

After a strong first period for Winchester, Lexington came back early in the second period to break the scoring ice. The Sachems had some excellent scoring bids but came up empty in the second stanza. The Minutemen put the game out of reach with two quick goals midway through the third period. However, the Sachems did manage to avert the shutout when junior forward Marc Winn notched a goal with an assist going to Makoto Sato. Coach Jack Newhall's team continues to improve with each game but the loss to Lexington was a tough one to take.

The Sachem's frustration boiled over in the third period of their next game against Belmont. Trailing 7-0, assistant captain Greg Winn decided he was not going to take it any more and he hammered a Marauder into the boards. After the referee blew the whistle, another Belmont player charged into Winn, inciting the melee. Assistant captain John Guilderson eventually joined in and when all was said and done, Winchester had lost two players with five-minute major penalties. MIAA rules do not allow players who receive fighting majors to participate in the following game. This means when the Sachems face rival Woburn this week, they will be without their two top defensemen. Pity goaltender Jim McNerny, who already faces an average of 40-50 shots per game.

The road for Winchester does not get any smoother in the next couple of weeks as they face Wakefield and Melrose.

Freshman girls lose opener despite excellent 2-way effort

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High freshmen girls basketball team opened their season last week but unfortunately they fell to Lexington, 32-27.

Kim Davis and Pam Taylor led the way offensively for Winchester scoring eight points each. Amy Poflak picked up four points while Courtney Perkins, Jen Murphy, Erika Gannon and Beth O'Donnell tallied two points apiece.

Coach Richard Trotta got outstanding defensive play from Taylor, Perkins and Brittany Boulanger, while Poflak and Inger Midtkandal did an excellent job of crashing the boards for rebounds.

The freshmen Sachem girls are captained by Davis and Sarah O'Connor. Winchester takes on Belmont and Stoneham this week.

Locals excel on Belmont swim team

Two young Winchester residents are having an exceptional year swimming for the Belmont Aquatic Team.

Tara Juwa has attained six "A" times and two Regional Junior Olympic age group qualifying times while swimming in the 11 & 12 year old age bracket. Her brother, Bryan Juwa, has seven "A" times and qualified for eight events in the New England Championships in the eight-year-old and under age division.

Other Winchester residents who are doing well this year for the Belmont Aquatic Team are Wendy Boerner, Vicky Tobakis, Sheila Driscoll, Jamie Hurlburt, Amelia Hurlburt, Brooke Estridge and Kara Chisholm.

compromise which will begin to reach the goal of insuring everyone in a responsible way.

Opponents said the bill is being rushed through when many senators don't even know what the bill does and claimed it is simply a move to enhance Governor Dukakis' presidential campaign. Some said the bill would hurt low occupancy hospitals in their district.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Kraus voted yes.
Health Study (S 2164)- Senate 32-7, rejected an amendment striking the section of the health care bill which phases in universal health care for the uninsured and replacing it with a section providing for a study by the Department of Public Welfare on the lack of adequate health care in the state.

Amendment supporters said this will allow a careful study of facts, public hearings and adequate legislative consideration of the matter in 1988.

Opponents said the proposal was fashioned following extensive work and input by all groups concerned and is a fair system.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Kraus voted no.
McGovern (S 2164)- Senate 31-7, rejected an amendment changing the names of the health care bill to "The McGovern Hospital and Health Care Initiative."

Amendment supporters said this will insure everyone knows that Senator Patricia McGovern drafted the bill and will prevent Governor Dukakis from taking credit during the presidential campaign.

Opponents said the amendment is anti-Dukakis and noted the bill is the result of the work of hundreds of people.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Kraus voted no.

Work Release- House 127-25, gained the two-thirds vote necessary to suspend rules to allow introduction of resolutions requesting the Corrections Commissioner to immediately suspend the work release program for first degree murderers. Two days earlier, the House favored 81-68, but fell short of the two-thirds necessary to allow introduction of similar resolutions.

Supporters said the public must be protected from these killers.

Opponents said the matter is being studied and urged the House to wait for additional information.

A Yea vote is for rule suspension. A Nay vote is against it. Both roll calls are listed. The first is 81-68. The second is 127-25.

Saltmarsh voted yes on both roll calls.

Furloughs (H 5342)- House 133-22, gave near final approval and sent to the Senate a bill prohibiting furloughs for first degree murderers.

Supporters said these killers are dangerous and should be locked up to protect the public.

Opponents said furloughs are a necessary part of a modern prison system and noted the program has a very high success rate.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

Study Furloughs (H 5342)- House 122-34, rejected an amendment to the bill banning furloughs for first degree murderers. The amendment adds a section establishing a 14 member commission to study the work release and furlough programs.

Amendment supporters said this will allow a complete study of all aspects of the problem.

Opponents said other studies are being conducted and argued that any amendments this late in the session will jeopardize passage of the bill.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Judge's Salaries (H 6345)- House 104-42, refused to recommit to the Ways and Means Committee the bill providing for a 12 percent pay hike for state judges.

Bill supporters said judges have not had a hike since 1984 and noted the raises are reasonable.

Opponents said the bill should be delayed until legislation addressing judicial accountability has been considered.

A Yea vote is for recommitting the bill to Ways and Means. A Nay vote is against recommitment.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Extension- House 110-32, approved an order giving the Public Service Committee until December 30 to make a final report on 30 bills. Debate centered around several bills dealing with 03 consultants.

Extension supporters said the committee simply needs more time to deal with the bills.

Opponents said the bills must be acted upon to correct waste and abuse in the 03 consultant systems.

A Yea vote is for the extension. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

CLUB NEWS

Rotarians plan dinner to honor senior citizens

The Winchester Rotary Club is planning a catered prime rib roast beef luncheon to honor the senior citizens of the town on Feb. 9 at noon or on Feb. 10 at the same hour, if there is a storm. The committee in charge of the meal and entertainment anticipate that at least 250 diners can be accommodated in the new auditorium of the Jenks Senior Center.

Walter Dignam, chairman of the luncheon, says that Rotarians recognize the contributions of seniors in erecting and maintaining the Jenks Senior Center and establishing programs staffed by volunteers for both men and women. Provisions for the many varied interests among the town's nearly 5000 people who are age 60 and over are constantly expanding through new programs. The luncheon is given as an expression of appreciation for the work of seniors in meeting the social, physical and emotional needs of all who want to participate in the activities that are offered at the Center.

The Rotary Club has been generous, not only to seniors, but to philanthropies throughout the town. In 1987, its charitable donations reached both young and old in the community. Among the many projects were the Glaucoma Clinic held at the Jenks Senior Center, support of the town's Christmas decorations, the Town Day celebration, funds for Winchester's playground equipment, Winchester Hospital Life Line, Town Clean-up Day, Youth Sports Night banquet, the High School vocational program, Winchester High School Band for trip expenses, Special Olympics Fund, a donation to the Jenks Senior Center Expansion Fund and other gifts to aid organizations with the major projects.

Rotarians assisting Chairman Walter Dignam with the luncheon for seniors are Richard Salter, Richard Zenga, Henry Clark, Sal Porras, Tony Trigliano, Rev. Walter Davis, Peter Segerstrom, Paul Colella, Esquire, Charlie Doe, Rotary Club president Robert Costello, and publicity chairman of the WSA, Leonor Rich.

When the request was made for servers to function at the luncheon, there was an immediate response of at least thirty Rotarians who volunteered their services.

Tickets will not be issued and the luncheon is free. All seniors who wish to partake of the meal must reserve with the Jenks Senior Center receptionist (721-7136) right away. This will be an extremely popular event and after the first 250 reservations, there will be a cut-off. A waiting list can be drawn on for possible cancellations.

Seniors deeply appreciate the generous and thoughtful acts of Rotarians through the 15 years during which the dream of a senior center became a reality.

K of C sponsors free throw test dribbles, takes aim, and releases the ball. It moves in a perfect arch towards the basket...swish! And another contestant has competed in the Knights of Columbus-sponsored Free Throw Championship.

The contestant comes to the line.

The 1988 competition, running from January through March, looks to be even more successful than last year's. At that time, 1,350 local Knights of Columbus councils hosted contests and close to 106,352 boys and girls between the ages of 11 and 14 worked their way through local, district, regional, and state competitions, with the international winners chosen by the Supreme Council on the basis of scores achieved in the various state competitions.

All contestants on the local level are recognized for their participation and achievement, winners receive awards at all levels of the competition.

Local competition is being sponsored by Winchester Council 210 at McCall Junior High School on Sunday at noon. All boys and girls ages 11 to 14 are eligible to participate. Contestants will be required to furnish proof of age and written parental consent. For entry forms or additional information contact Grand Knight Paul Stevenson at 729-9876.

ABC holds winter bottle collection

Schools budget projected under 2 1/2

remind the public of the serious impact of the town's $1.2 million deficit on all department budgets. He warned that the deficit could result in "a significant reduction in all types of municipal services," depending on the decisions made by Town Meeting members. (See related story)

Maurer noted, however, that his proposed school department budget figure is "very similar" to the superintendent's number. "It's slightly less than what he presented but relatively close," he said. School Committee Chairman William Jervey told the gathering that the schools can't afford to rest on their laurels, though, because the town budget promises to be a continuing problem in the years to come.

Eliminated as a cost-saving measure was the full-day kindergarten program, an expense of $20,000 to $25,000, according to Superintendent Charles Mitsakos.

Gains include a half-time assistant principal at the growing Lincoln School, which Mitsakos said is 50 percent larger than the other elementary schools. The schools will also attain a lower student-counselor ratio, due to the decline in enrollment rather than an actual addition.

Not reflected in the budget are salary increases that will result from this year's union negotiations. Although School Committeeman Edward O'Connell said the committee is "forsworn from predicating a cutoff point" in the percent increase, Mitsakos said past increases have been in the 4.5 to 4.8 percent range.

Mitsakos also noted that the high cost ($10.1 million) of personal services is due largely to the fact that Winchester has "mostly veteran staff at the high school.... (Almost) everyone at the high school is tenured, with master's degrees and 15 to 20 years' experience. That really makes the difference." In her report on the secondary education budget, Committeewoman Alice McCarter remarked that the average high school teacher's salary is more than $34,900.

Utilities were budgeted at the same levels as 1988 because, according to Jervey, cost estimates in these areas were "refined" this year to be more accurate. He said there were some shifts in schools' individual utility budgets but overall they were projected at the same levels. Mitsakos added that "we've been pretty close in our estimates on fuel in the past few years."

Most federal- and state-funded programs will continue as they are, with the possibility of some additional funds for special programs as a result of new state legislation, Mitsakos said. The Education Act of 1985 has been updated for 1988 to allow increased allocations for teacher salary enhancements for initiative in special projects in the Horace Mann program and additional funds for school improvement councils. New grants may also be available to Winchester in recognition of "exemplary programs in the schools" and efforts at creative administrative reorganization, Mitsakos said.

Budget hearing scheduled tonight

years, and school personnel has actually been cut back by 20 percent since 1980 as a response to shrinking enrollment, according to Maurer.

Maurer has projected a 6.21 percent growth in salaries for fiscal 1989, a figure based on the average of the past four years.

Other expense estimates take into account uncontrollable increases in fixed costs, like water and sewer costs, as well as pension, group insurance, debt and interest and real estate revaluation. These contribute an extra $1,509,000 to the projected $1,270,380 deficit.

What can the citizenry do about all this? Maurer has spelled out the alternatives.

Option One, the hardball option, assumes that Town Meeting approves none of his compromise measures. It is an option that he can enact alone within his scope of authority and it is the most traumatic.

Either 32 positions can be eliminated, 14.4 municipal and 17.6 educational using traditional ratios, or the deficit could come out of the Other Expenses and Equipment account, which buys things like typewriters and personal computers, or the entire $1.2 million capital program could be eliminated.

These three suboptions could be combined to reduce the burden on any one area.

Option Two calls for a Town

Meeting vote, which must follow a public hearing called by the selectmen. Under Option Two, water and sewer fees could be raised to cover all costs associated with delivery of these services, including fixed-cost elements now carried in other budgets. This alternative would contribute just under $500,000 toward the balancing act.

The rest of the $774,607 deficit could be made up by cutting 19.5 positions, reducing the Other Expenses and Equipment budget or the capital program by that amount, or some combination of these.

Option Three requires a vote by the selectmen, and added to Option Two, throws another $210,000 at the problem. Option Three calls for raising fees for services other than water and sewer. These include transfer station fees, cemetery fees, ambulance fees, building permit fees, selectmen fees and recreation fees.

If both Two and Three are adopted, only 14.3 positions would have to be cut, or the $564,607 could come from other equipment or capital or some combination of these.

Option Four would need a majority vote of the Finance Committee and a two-thirds vote at Town Meeting. This alternative would use the two previous options and draw down the Stabilization Fund over a three-year period.

If this solution were adopted, the projected deficit would be $364,607, implying a cut of nine positions or reductions in the other accounts or some combination.

The last option, Option Five, requires a four-fifths vote by the selectmen and a majority in a town-wide referendum. It would exempt the Town Hall renovation debt from the general budget.

This alternative would relieve the budget of $800,450 in fiscal 1989 and slightly less in subsequent years as the debt was retired.

If all options were used, the town would find itself with a potential surplus of $435,843 and not have to let any employees go.

What actually happens is up to the townspeople. Town bylaws require Maurer to submit a balanced budget, and he will do so with the first option alone if he doesn't get some help.

Muggia has urged Town Meeting members to familiarized themselves with the numbers and attend tonight's meeting to have a voice in the eventual outcome.

MWRA (H 6348)- House 103-46, gave near final approval and sent to the Senate the bill giving the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) legal access to all 12 sites it is considering as locations for sludge disposal facilities.

Supporters said the bill includes safeguards and argued passage is necessary to allow inspections of all sites with the goal of cleaning up a polluted harbor and insuring quality drinking water.

Opponents said the bill goes too far by allowing the MWRA to go on private property without permission of the owners.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Approval (H 6348)- House first rejected 97-56, then barely rejected 77-74, a MWRA bill amendment striking a section of the bill which eliminates the requirement for legislative and executive approval of MWRA takings for the purpose of maintenance or improvement of water delivery service within certain communities.

Amendment supporters said without requiring approval, the MWRA will be able to go into any community and take any land it wants.

Opponents said there are sufficient protections in the bill and claimed the section in question only eliminates legislative and executive approval for routine takings.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it. Both roll calls are listed.

Saltmarsh voted yes on both roll calls.

Fireworks (H 6195)- House first approved 76-72, then rejected 79-56, a bill allowing the sale of sparklers and their use by persons over 21 on private property between June 1 and July 7 from 6 a.m. until 12 midnight.

Supporters said sparklers are safe, and claimed legalizing will reduce the desire for and sale of dangerous fireworks and explosives.

Opponents, citing cases of injuries from sparklers, said they are still dangerous and unnecessary.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it. Both roll calls are listed.

Saltmarsh voted yes on 4 and yes on 5.

Anti-Diet Weight Loss

The New Alternative

SUFFERING IS OPTIONAL.

If you have tried dieting in the past and failed, you are not alone. For many, diet is part of the problem, not its solution.

Thin people don't want to eat more than they should. So how come you do? When you learn to think about food the way thin people do, then you will eat casually and controllably, just as they do.

Based on successful work with overeaters in therapy, this unique, ten-week program was developed to help healthy people to finally control their eating without the need for discipline and the constant struggle against temptation.

WHY WAIT?

This small-class experience is not another diet or food supplement program, but a new opportunity for a permanent change in your relationship with food and your body. You can be happy with both, now.

PREVIEW: To give you a full description of this effective solution to over-eating, we offer a full, two-hour preview at our offices. Admission is $10. Call early to reserve your place, as seating is extremely limited.

What to Do

Story by Susan Roth

Skaters love the Winter chill

Bob Conley knows his stuff.

the ambitious young Bobby Orr. After the first deep freeze, many kids can still be found on local lakes and ponds, the original rinks that served the area well until covered or enclosed rinks began to be built after World War II.

Balance necessary

While many native Northerners learn to skate soon after they learn to walk, those unaccustomed to skating may be intimidated by the thought of gliding around balanced on a sharp eighth-inch blade. Ice skating does involve balance, coordination and control, making it a great booster for children's physical development, but it is not difficult to learn. As with anything else, practice builds skill and confidence, and like riding a bicycle, once you learn to skate, you never really forget.

Hats helpful

Rosemary Cloran, co-director of the Bay State Ice Skating School with Carol Butterworth for 14 years and skating teacher even longer, offered a few suggestions for novice or rusty skaters. "At the first class, we always tell people what to wear and how to lace their skates, and we check skates for support to the foot and fit. We ask that children 6 and under wear helmets to protect their heads, hats and gloves or mittens, as well as other flexible, warm clothing," Cloran said, explaining that hats are particularly important because so much body heat escapes through the head, and "being warm makes the muscles work better."

The school also recommends that people wear only one pair of socks under skates. "People think extra socks keep the feet warmer, but the extra bulk only takes away the support of the boot so it doesn't hold up the foot as well," Cloran said.

Skates should fit

A common mistake she warned against is buying skates that are too big. Skates should fit snugly, with movement only in the toes; ankles should be firmly supported and held by the boot. Skate sizes run larger than their regular shoe size, and more for hockey skates, which run even larger. "People will buy skates off a shelf in their shoe size and then put on extra socks because they're too big. This is the worst thing they can do. People need to be fitted for skates. If they fit well, people learn to skate very quickly," Cloran asserted.

Cloran strongly disapproves of the cute double-runner skates many parents buy for their preschoolers. "We don't allow double runners (at our classes)," Cloran said. "They just slip and slide; they don't grip the ice like single blades do. They give you no control and don't help your balance. They're a waste of money. Fortunately, we see less of them each year."

For the fastest learning and greatest enjoyment, she reckoned that parents invest in a decent pair of fitted single blade skates, in the figure or hockey style, even for young children. They do come in small sizes, and prices start at about $45 to $50. Full hockey regalia, including helmets, special pants, shin guards, elbow pads and more, can run over $200.

And don't forget that skates need to be sharpened after a couple of visits to the rink. They dull quickly, and dull blade are dangerous. It only costs about $2 to $3 to have them sharpen at sporting goods stores or at a few of the rinks.

Stay sharp

After advising on clothing and skates, the Bay State school teaches the basics—falling down and getting up again, so people will be less fearful of falling on the ice. Falling down may cause a nice bruise, but falling properly avoids strains and broken bones.

The school takes students from age 5 to adult, and classes are taught in groups of seven to 10 per instructor. Students are grouped according to ability, with adult-only classes taught in the evening. Children-only classes are scheduled in the afternoon, and mixed age groups are on weekends. The classes are held as a half-hour lesson followed by a half-hour practice. Depending on the rink hours, there may be additional time before or after the lesson for practice.

For parental convenience, the school tries to schedule different levels of instruction in each class period. "So if you have more than one child in classes the they're on different levels," you can get it all done at once, Cloran said. She said adult students are "more fearful, but they're mentally keener and can absorb more information." Children, meanwhile, are "fearless and pick up quickly," but are not as coordinated.

Classes are designed to teach the basic skills of recreational skating, "to encourage a lifelong love of the sport and to make skating a fun social activity," Cloran said. Students who are more advanced or show greater interest in figure skating are recommended Friends enjoy an afternoon of skating at Flynn Rink.

When a winter chill is in the air, the thoughts of many a New Englander turn to outdoor winter sports. No need to go inside, says the hardy Yankee; there are many ways to keep warm with style in the great outdoors. Although skiing has grown more popular in recent years, ice skating remains a much-loved recreational sport among young and old alike. Whether it's competitive figure skating, hockey games or just for fun and socializing, skating is a great way to enjoy the nippy weather.

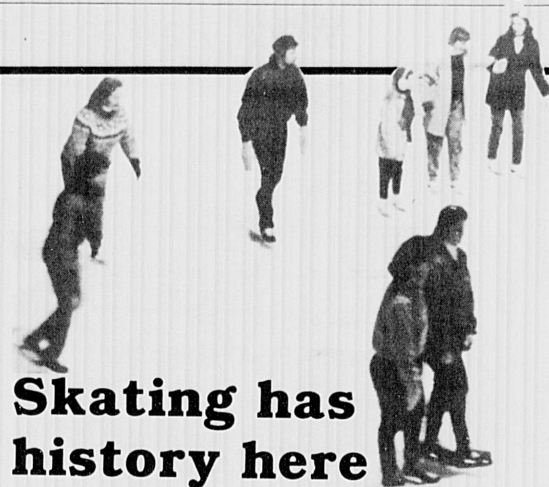

No shortage of rinks

And there is no shortage of skating rinks in the greater Boston area, with public skating hours to accommodate almost every schedule, plus skating lessons for the young or inexperienced and myriad youth hockey leagues for

What to Do

There is more than one way to enjoy the ice at the Arlington Sports Rink.

Skating has history here

What images come to mind when you think of ice skating? Peggy Fleming or Tai Babilonia (depending on your age) dancing at the Winter Olympics? Bruins games? Or just gliding along a frozen pond in the quiet woods?

If that last romantic winter scene comes to mind first, you would have enjoyed skating here years ago, when thousands flocked to the area's scenic ponds and lakes on Sunday afternoons. Fresh Pond, Hill's Pond, the Mystic Lakes, Symmes Pond, the Arlington Reservoir and especially Spy Pond were all scenes of social gatherings, according to Leonard Collins, a longtime Arlington resident and community historian.

Between church and Sunday dinner, everyone walked to the ponds (before the automobile age) for a day of skating and socializing with friends and neighbors. Coffee and hot dogs were sold to chilly skaters for 5 cents. In addition, Collins has noted that the Arlington Fire Department used to flood playgrounds all over town so people could skate closer to home.

The flooding is no more, but people still skate on some of the local ponds when they freeze over. "Natural" skating is not recommended by the authorities for safety reasons, however. Nor is it recommended for the inexperienced skater, because there are all sorts of natural obstacles that can literally trip you and no railings to hold onto.

But Sunday afternoon remains the most popular time to skate and socialize, be it at the ponds or the rinks. If you're a little rusty or unsure of yourself, better to find an evening session, when there are usually more adults than children and teenagers. In keeping with the town's traditional enthusiasm for skating, the Arlington rink was particularly chaotic on a recent Sunday—this skater would recommend it only to the fearless!

Below is a listing of a few of the rinks in the immediate area, but there are many more public and private rinks in surrounding towns and in Boston proper. The Metroparks division of the MDC operates 22 rinks in the Boston area, 21 of which are currently open (The Cleveland Circle rink is closed for repairs this season.) through March 12. Skating at these rinks costs $1 for adults and 20 cents for children and seniors during public sessions. Rental of an entire rink costs $65 per 50 minutes.

For a complete brochure on the rinks, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Public Information Office, MDC, 20 Somerset St., Boston, 02108, or call the office at 727-5215 for further information and schedules.

Private rinks generally cost more but may or may not provide extra conveniences and safety assurances; some are more posh than others. If you're unfamiliar with the area or with skating itself, try out a few different rinks and look for the services you prefer. Most importantly, look for safety measures, especially staffing and guards on the ice who can really help to maintain order and make your session more enjoyable.

An after-school program called Ice Plus is aimed at grades K through 6. Kids can skate or participate in supervised games and activities off the ice. Ice Plus is held during public skating hours after school at a few of the MDC rinks. For more information, contact program director Kathy Winter at 698-0722.

Public, private and parochial schools can sign up to use MDC rinks free of charge from 9 a.m. to noon on school days, and adults accompanying children under 10 are allowed in free on weekday mornings and afternoons.

The MDC has also recently begun an experimental program at the West Roxbury rink to help parents with preschool children. Deputy director of public information Leanne Del Vecchio told What's Up. "We've set aside a room for children too young to skate where we have games and activities supervised by MDC personnel. It's for really small kids who would just be waiting for their parents," she said. This way the children can play while their parents enjoy an hour or two of skating. The new service is free of charge and Del Vecchio said many people have begun taking advantage of it.

Skating classes

Figure skating lessons are available for a fee every Saturday and Sunday from 12:30 to 1:45 p.m. at the West Roxbury rink through the Metropolitan Figure Skating School. Interested skaters should contact Regina Mackenna at 245-6195 for more information. Private rinks also provide classes, private lessons and hockey leagues for various ages and abilities at varying fees.

Enjoy the cold

There are lots of reasons why ice skating is so popular in these parts. It's invigorating, exhilarating aerobic exercise, and easy to learn. And once you learn, "you have it for life," as Rosemary Cloran says. The more you do it, the more you can relax and enjoy it. Just imagine yourself a skating star as you glide gracefully around the rink, listening to the music and skating to the beat. Dress warmly, and jump right in!

Free services

The MDC Metroparks division, which runs the rinks, also provides several free services and special programs for skaters. There is a free learn-to-skate program for children aged 4 to 6, held from 11 to 11:45 a.m. on Wednesdays at the Simoni Rink in Cambridge and on Thursdays at the Bryan Rink in West Roxbury (see box for addresses and phone numbers).

Orton Farce at Lyric

The Lyric Stage begins a five week engagement of Joe Orton's brilliant comedy, What The Butler Saw, this week and continuing through Feb. 14.

This production of What The Butler Saw includes the original ending by Mr. Orton, which has never before been seen in the Boston area!

Mr. Orton, who was the subject of last year's successful movie Prick Up Your Ears, sets What The Butler Saw in a lunatic asylum where a psychiatrist lusts after his pretty secretary; his wife arrives with a reluctant bellhop in her amorous tow, and the State Asylum Inspector unexpectedly inspects it all!

What The Butler Saw is a wild comic melee of disappearance, disguises and discoveries as each tries to cover his philandering tracks from the other!

Gillette is a brilliant ensemble effort

GILLETTE, a drama in two acts by William Hauptman; directed by David Wheeler; sets by Loy Arcenas; lighting by Howell Binkley; costumes by Catherine Zuber; sound design by Stephen Santomenna. With John Bottoms, Andrew Mutnick, Harry S. Murphy, Pamela Gien, Dawn Couch, Bernadette Wilson, Priscilla Smith, Thomas Derrah, Michael Balcanoff, Marty Lodge, Henry DiJohn, Neil Bradley and Patrick Curry. Presented by the American Repertory Theatre at the Loeb Drama Center, 64 Brattle St., Cambridge. Continues through Jan. 22.

Gillette may be a boom-or-bust town, but there's no question that with their season's opener of William Hauptman's powerful, insightful play about the new American West the American Repertory Theatre has brought in one helluva gusher!

Admirably directed by David Wheeler, and with a brilliant ensemble effort topped by a towering performance by John Bottoms, Gillette moves along briskly and seamlessly, capturing the rich, authentic flavor of the crazy, unrealistic life on one of the country's last frontiers.

Within this modern-day, oil strike boom town, Hauptman has fashioned a brawling comedy of disenchantment, focusing on friendship and freedom, love, and coin. While frightening in its realism, it is certain to tickle your funny bone.

Gillette was first produced in the A.R.T.'s New Stages series in 1984 as a one-acter. Now expanded to a full-length play, it has been totally revised and further developed, introducing four new characters and seven new scenes. Original characters are more fully drawn and new material adds greater dimension and far broader scope to the action — the conflict between friendship, self-interest and depth of ambition in an atmosphere of intense competitiveness and sexual rivalry.

Gillette is an actual town in northeast Wyoming that was a wide spot in the road until oil was discovered during the oil crisis. By 1978 all boom-town hell had broken loose. It was besieged by unqualified young roughnecks who came to do the hard, filthy work. They were recruited out of the bars and off the streets and still jobs went begging. Many wells were lost and crewmen killed.

Hotel rooms were rented out in 12-hour shifts and people lived out of their cars or pitched tents. Vice ran rampant and men turned into lustful animals in the process. A harmless little cow town, where the population of 3000 mushroomed tenfold in a decade, became a prefab city.

Mickey Hollister and Bobby Nobis are down-on-their-luck drifters who arrive in this forlorn, rotting world of bikers, cowboys, prostitutes and oil riggers, seeking their pie-in-the-sky. Mickey's seen it all before. He's a good ol' boy with a gift for life, a great storyteller who knows how to be a man's man and also a woman's. He's really gifted but has no outlet for his talents. . . not at forty! Gillette is his last chance for a big score, his last shot to make enough "coin" to go to Alaska, buy a fishing boat, and start life anew.

Bobby is an innocent young kid just out of college and an aspiring musician. It's his first trip out of his home town, his first taste of freedom and life in the real world.

At the Silver Dollar Lounge, a dingy formica-laden watering hole, they make a move on the hostess, Doreen, who lets them know up front that there's fifty men to every girl in town, that each one, regardless of age, "is a perfect '10'!" Bobby sticks out like a sore thumb and Mickey advises, "Put your thumbs in your pockets and pick your nose!"

Tough, paranoid Booger McCoy, boss of an oilrigging site, bemoans the fate of two of his men who've been torn up, and Mickey jumps at the chance to sweet-talk his way into the jobs. The outcome is settled in a hair-raising arm-wrestling match between Mickey and Booger, which finds Mickey triumphant.

Mickey and Bobby find living quarters in a motel. During Mickey's absence, an urgent pounding on the door and cries of distress results in Bobby giving refuge to young, attractive swinger Jody, who's being beat upon by her Hell's Angels' boyfriend, Sonny. Bobby makes big-time cowboy talk. . . and a pass. But brutal, intimidating Sonny smashes through the door, humiliatingly nails Bobby to the floor, and rips off all of his and Mickey's worldly possessions.

With work near completion, Booger announces that only one job is available at the new site and offers it to Mickey. He refuses to sign on without Bobby and the pair are fired.

No longer able to pay rent, they set up housekeeping on the open prairie. Bobby frets about no women and wily Mickey concocts a wild scheme; they wait outside the jail and pick up two newly-released hookers, Brenda and Cathy, who had the misfortune of propositioning the town sheriff.

Under their tough exteriors Brenda and Cathy are sensitive human beings, not just pieces of meat. Life's knocks have made them self-protective and strong-minded. Jokes Cathy, "We're sitting on the greatest commodity in the world! You sell it. . . you still got it!"

For Brenda and Mickey there's a strong and sincere mutual attraction.

During the play's most memorable scene, a gorgeous moment, Mickey waxes poetic, and later, like a dog yowling in the wind, he plays the Roy Orbison record "It's Over" and accompanies the vocal. "It's my youth!" he reflects. "There's something inside me that's bigger and better than I ever was!" But Mickey is fearful of commitment and, like the storm that thunders down, things go sour. When Brenda asks him about marriage he retorts, "I've got nothing against it, but it's a life without hope."

In the end, when push comes to shove, it's self-preservation first, and the struggle for survival turns friends to foes. It's a savage fight to the finish!

John Bottoms' portrayal of Mickey is spellbinding, one of the outstanding characterizations you will see this or any other season! Harry S. Murphy is wonderfully sadistic and vicious as Booger, and Michael Balcanoff's Sonny is so menacing and savage as to be frightening! Andrew Mutnick is perfect as the starry-eyed Bobby, and Dawn Couch as Brenda and Pamela Gien as Cathy bring warmth and honesty to their multi-faceted roles. Bernadette Wilson is strongly convincing as Jody, Priscilla Smith is great as the wise-cracking Doreen, and Thomas Derrah is just right as the not-so-honest sheriff.

What About Art? By Meredith Fife Day

Forceful line, aggressive value play and dynamic shapes characterize the big charcoal drawings of Tama Hochbaum, on exhibit at Habitat's gallery in Belmont.

Drawing on nature's energy

Tama Hochbaum's drawing has a sculptural quality. Although she interrupts conventional reading of the pictures' space by collage-like drawn inserts, the imagery insists on a weight, substance and volume that denies flatness.

Sixteen of the artist's recent oil pastels and charcoal drawings are on exhibit through January at Habitat Institute for the Environment in Belmont.

The imagery itself in these works is drawn primarily from nature. But Hochbaum's nature is not the tranquil view that invites reflection and meditation. Her forceful line wraps itself around angular pods, stems and flower petals to form taut contours that are kinetic with the energy of growth and change.

The darks hover close to those contours and most often describe the mass of objects by giving them thickness, or, aided by value changes near the contours, act as a contrasting ground. Objects are pushed out, giving them the weighted mass of sculpture. The same strong, aggressive play of lights and darks that describe form also flicker in rhythmic alternation across the surface of the drawings. Hochbaum handles black and white with both control and risk, and her three big charcoal drawings in the show are charged with the excitement inherent in that duality.

A drawing such as Larkspur Prospect is rich with the density of its value configuration; yet not overly busy. A wry twist of pictorial space allows the viewer to look through the oversized botanical forms into a surprise landscape, complete with rolling horizon and puffy clouds.

The liveliness of Hochbaum's value changes in these charcoal drawings sometimes overwhelms in her oil pastels. Combining a full, intensely-hued palette with a complete value range, with a plethora of collaged-like images often blunts the impact of any single one of the components.

There is, however, one grouping of five small oil pastels, hung together in Habitat's gallery, that have an overall cohesiveness and more nearly unified color structure. Especially notable among these works are Voyage Out and Lotus Lily. Here, an emphasis on the vertical and horizontal, as opposed to the more dynamic diagonals in many of the pictures, contributes toward a stability and ordering of the formal elements that allows the imagery a quieter, fuller impact.

The carefully drawn pods in both pictures are framed by rectangles of subdued hue, which aid in organizing the pictures' shapes while providing a means of focusing on the delicate intricacies of the pods. The pictures have all the various images of the others — small figures in pod-shaped boats (which, explains the artists, represent "some passage in time, some trip through significant waters."), flowers, leaves, trees and a recurrent gate motif — but they are put together in a way that gives harmony the edge over discord.

Habitat gallery is located at 10 Juniper Road, just off Route 2. See Tama Hochbaum's work 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, varying hours weekends, and by appointment. Call 489-5050.

When replacing tires, make sure both tires mounted on the same axle are the same size. If you replace only one, be sure it is identical in size and similar in tread type as the other tire on the axle. Even when you replace all four tires, it is a good idea to stay with the same size tire that originally came on the car, unless you are intentionally trying to improve the performance in a particular area. Many people like the appearance of bigger tires, but selection must be done carefully. You don't want to end up with more problems that it solves. Changing tire size is often done in conjunction with a change in wheels.

Remanufactured parts are better than "rebuilt" or "reconditioned" parts. They may even be better than original parts since technical advances are often incorporated into the remanufacturing process.

Each unit — alternator, water pump or one of over 300 other parts — is disassembled, cleaned and tested to exacting standards. During reassembly, parts that do not meet these standards are replaced. Then the assembly is tested again to make sure it works as well as the original in every way.

Our remanufactured parts carry the same 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty as new Audi Parts. * The only thing that isn't like new is the price.

Robert Dole's wagon halts in Winchester

By SUSAN ROTH
Special to the Star

Winchester showed its political spirit Sunday when a crowd of more than 400 showed up to see Republican

It was a stereotypical, perfect campaign event. After arriving fashionably late at about 6:15 p.m., Dole spoke for a half hour, peppering his patriotic speech with jokes and anecdotes. He took some questions from his audience, and then pressed hands, kissed babies, signed autographs and smiled for the many popping flashbulbs on his way out.

Residents of Winchester and some surrounding towns began arriving at the center at 4 p.m. although the event was scheduled from 5 to 8. People hobnobbed with the local bigwigs who attended and enjoyed the abundant spread set up by the Dole for President Committee of Winchester — wine and cheese, veggies and dip.

The local Dick Brogna Band tooted away at show tunes in the background, but when Dole arrived they played "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Adding to the festive atmosphere were balloons, home-made banners, buttons and glossy flyers in the proper political style.

After joking that "I didn't think there were this many Republicans in Massachusetts, so it's nice to get you all in the same room," the senior U.S. (Please see DOLE, page 18)

Markey explains, defends programs

Wednesday evening, Jan. 13, Congressman Edward Markey (D-Mass.) finished a Brigham's grilled cheese sandwich and frappe and went to the Jenks Senior Center. In the next two hours he gave the group there, whose opinions and interests varied as widely as their ages and occupations, challenges Markey watchers can monitor during the next Congress.

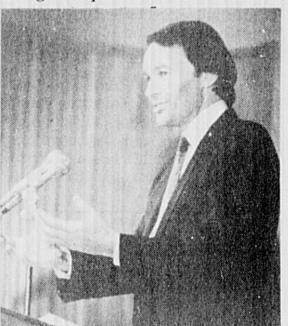

Markey acknowledged local politicians, posed for pictures and moved directly to his concerns about our nation's economy and his conviction that the military expenditures do not assure our strength.

His first subject, finance, gives Markey watchers plenty to monitor. This spring his Telecommunications and Finance Committee will study October's "Black Monday." Stating, "We have been living on the credit card and now we will have to pay it back," Markey said he is convinced "Reaganomics has created underlying debt conditions in our society which are beginning to come due and must be faced," and promised to "start updating national financial laws to make them responsive to current market realities."

In response to "regulatory black holes" caused by computer program trading and futures trading on commodities exchanges, which allegedly creates especially volatile securities markets, Markey wants to combine the Securities Exchange Commission into one regulatory agency for trading all stocks.

Markey recommends a 50 percent margin requirement on stock and futures trades. He also says unifying options, equity, and futures clearing houses will simplify the credit process in trading.

He proposes establishing "circuit breakers" in market trading by limiting the amount prices can move in prescribed time periods. When the breakers are triggered, trading ceases.

Finally, he says proposed revision of the Glass Steagall Act to remove the separation between types of banks "goes right to the heart of the way our financial institutions are structured," and added "The pressure I am receiving from the banking community may not be in the best interests of the country."

Concerning Seabrook, Markey stated his distress that the region's population is torn apart because regulatory agencies licensing Seabrook waived the requirement that an escape plan be ratified before construction of the plant began. Stating that there had been a "betrayal of their good faith," he said the issue which forces a choice between using a plant you have already paid for and the potential health and safety of families will result in a Supreme Court case.

Central America, always a hot topic in political discussion, sparked several rounds of debate. Markey stated his conviction that the United (Please see MARKEY, page 18)

Hearing targets land use

Winchester residents want to maintain the character of the town and develop a practical long-range land use policy. Selectman Robert Deering concluding from a land use hearing Tuesday night.

"We need a driving force to pull all our resources together," Deering said. "I think the selectmen would be willing to do it."

Representatives of the School Committee, Winchester Housing Authority, Conservation Commission and Planning Board all outlined their often contradictory land-use priorities.

"The housing authority has always been in favor of housing," member Joseph Riga started out. The WHA plans next to build a mixed-use development for both families and elderly housing. Riga said he would like the town to hire a full-time planner to help define a long-range land use plan.

"Open and excess land should be defined," Riga said. "The last time we went through the selection process for open land it was chaotic."

Elaine Vreeland spoke for the Conservation Commission, and in con-

Developers are already trying to bring proposals to the Housing Partnership Board (HPB), even though that body is still organizing its programs to help make more housing space available in Winchester, some of it for low- and moderate-income residents.

At their regular meeting Tuesday night board members decided to adopt a list of criteria for use in evaluating housing development proposals. Gloria Rosensweig will present draft criteria to the rest of the HPB at its Jan. 26 meeting.

Budget hearing draws big crowd

Despite cold, Town Meeting members, employees turn out

By SUSAN ROTH
Special to the Star

A majority of those who came to last Thursday's preliminary budget hearing would like to put a referendum vote to the people of Winchester asking for an override to Proposition 2½. This move would bail the town out of its financial troubles in fiscal year 1989, according to proponents of the move.

Participants at the hearing expressed approval for either a general override or a limited one to exempt a specific town debt.

Despite bitter cold outside and a damp chill in the unheated Jenks Senior Center, more than 80 residents, many of them department heads or town meeting members, showed up and stayed the duration of a two-hour meeting on the complex subject. The turnout pleased Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer, one of several town officials who expressed fear last week that people did not realize the serious implications of the town's $1,270,000 budget deficit.

Those at the hearing appeared to be aware of the situation. They listened to Maurer present an overview of the $34.2 million budget and five options the town administration has developed to deal with the shortfall, and then asked questions or offered viewpoints on the override issue.

If the town does not act on the options to raise fees, use the stabilization fund and/or override Proposition 2½, Maurer would be required by law to reduce town spending to balance the budget. The $1.2 million reduction would add up to a loss of 32 positions, the equivalent amount in services and equipment or a total elimination of the capital improvement plan.

Warning against the cut of the capital improvement plan was Curtis Jones, a Town Meeting member from Precinct 5 and member of the Capital Planning Committee. "You're kidding yourself if you think we can maintain the facilities of the town" with a capital budget of $1.2 million, he said. "That's not scratching the surface of what the town needs."

The three selectmen in attendance responded to a question on their personal opinion on the options. Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia said she found the prospect of $1.2 million in cuts (Option A) "unacceptable." She said she was personally against a general override of Proposition 2½, but might favor the debt exemption option. In any case, Muggia said she would vote to allow the taxpayers to decide on a referendum, noting, "as a citizen, I would want a crack at it."

Selectman Mark Lombardi remarked that he has always been a supporter of Proposition 2½ because he felt it has worked. He was against an override, saying the town could live with the cuts. "It's like in a household. You put on your suspenders and just don't blow as much money," he said.

Selectman Thomas Schmitt said he is undecided about the override issue, but added that he opposes us-

Winchester's celebration of Martin Luther King Jr. birthday grows a little more each year.

On Monday night, the Winchester Inter-Faith Council celebrated Martin Luther King Jr. Day with an ecumenical program at the Unitarian Church.

The Rev. Charles Stith, pastor of the Union United Methodist Church in Boston, was the featured speaker. The theme of the evening was "From Charity to Justice," and the reverend's message was an economical one.

Martin Luther King Jr. Day is a federally recognized holiday. According to Janice Hart at the citizens information service, the holiday was adopted in Massachusetts in 1974 as federal Chapter 493 of the Act of 1974, which makes Jan. 18 a non-restrictive holiday. This means that federal and government employees have the day off, but businesses don't have to close.

"We have come a long way in 30 years since the time when Martin Luther King Jr. spoke of his dream," said Stith at the event. "Martin Luther King changed this country politically. Our challenge and our call is to transform this nation economically."

Stith stated that the changes that are needed can be initiated from within our communities. Stith suggested that to promote economic changes for minority groups, we must continue activities such as the one held Monday.

"You must expand the numbers you reach," he said.

He also urged local organizations, such as the churches, to use their powers to "continue to advance, to balance the scales and make real issues of justice in our time."

"There is something wrong in a country where so little attention is paid to the homeless and the hungry," he asserted.

According to Stith, in this country, the average black family is worth $3,200. The average white family is worth $39,000. Over half of the black and Hispanic children in this country live in poverty "in this land of plenty," he said.

Stith noted that some entry-level service jobs now pay $240 per week. They have replaced manufacturing jobs that once paid $470. "People can't live on these kind of wages," he said.

Stith noted that our presidential candidates are "spending 75 percent of their time in Iowa and New Hampshire." He urged us to "impress the need to make the poor in our midst the focus of policy agendas."

According to Stith, four years ago the city of Boston noted that it had a severe problem with the employment of minorities. "The case has not yet been solved. It is important that we raise the issue of where the minorities are in department structure," he said. (Please see STITH, page 18)

He witnessed civil rights activist's death

By SUZANNE PERLITSH

Rev. Clark Olsen of Central Street understands what it means to die for one's beliefs.

Last Sunday, Rev. Olsen, vice president for programming and planning for the Unitarian Universalist Association, spoke at the Unitarian Church.

In the spring of 1965, Olsen traveled to Selma, Ala., to participate in one of the various marches to protest the unfairness of voter registration processes for black people in the south.

The protesters' intention was to get a civil rights voting bill passed. That evening proved fatal for a fellow minister who also had joined the crusade for civil rights.

When Olsen arrived in Selma at the Brown AME Chapel where he "met a gathering of marchers on the front lawn of the church," Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was addressing the marchers in front of the church. He invited them to regroup later that evening to march.

"I spotted two other Unitarian Ministers, Rev. Orlan Guller and Rev. James Reeb," Olsen remembered. The three dined in "the black section of the town."

On their way back to the church they realized they had made a wrong turn when they were confronted by three white men. One was carrying "what seemed to be a pipe or a baseball bat."

"Of course we were afraid. The three men came from behind. Jim was hit with a strong blow above his ear. The sound of the blow was just (Please see OLSEN, page 18)

He police he dropped his car off at the Main Street Texaco Station for repair work at about 12:30 p.m. January 17, according to reports.

The car owner told police he had been in the Sons of Italy hall when he was approached by a man who said he wanted to see the Needham man in the parking lot.

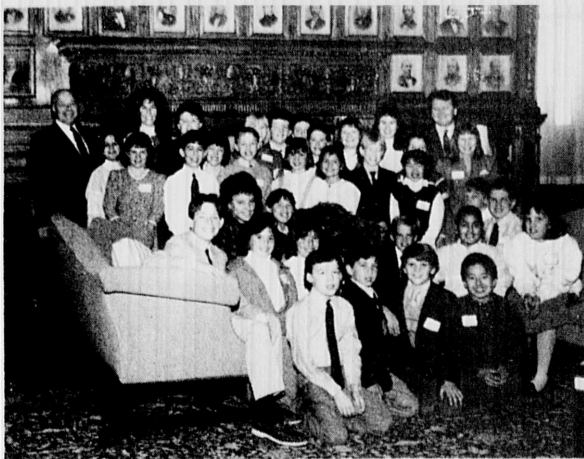

When he went out to the lot, he told police, he found that his 1985 Ford LTD had sustained damage to the left headlight, directional light and grille.

Police investigate assault on woman

Police are now investigating an assault and battery that took place Dec. 17 just before midnight on Mt. Vernon Street.

At 11:53 p.m. a woman was "knocked unconscious" while unloading groceries from her car, said Lt. Joseph Perritano, who is charged with the investigation.

The woman was hospitalized with serious injuries, according to Per-ritano. There was "no apparent robbery," he said.

The police are awaiting lab reports to establish whether the woman was sexually assaulted.

Perritano indicated that the evidence sexual assault accumulated so far is inconclusive, and that it "may never be established."

The investigation continues.

Annual Yield

There are distinct advantages to investing in a 6-Month Certificate at Winchester Savings Bank. You'll earn a high rate and have total peace of mind in knowing your deposits are federally insured up to $100,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). In addition to FDIC insurance, all portions of deposits in excess of $100,000 are insured to their full amount by the Deposit Insurance Fund of the Mutual Savings Central Fund, Inc. (DIFM), the insurer of excess deposits for state chartered savings banks in Massachusetts.

To open your high rate, risk-free investment, visit any office of Winchester Savings Bank, or call 729-2130. For rates on all our investment opportunities, call the Winchester RateLine at 721-0180.

The effective annual yield assumes principal and interest remain on deposit at the same rate for one year. Interest is computed daily and compounded monthly. There would be a substantial penalty should the Bank consent to early withdrawals.

LWV brainstorm set for Sunday

The Winchester League of Women Voters is holding their annual Brainstorm Brunch. It will be held at the home of Fran Ver Planck, 37 Calumet Rd., on Sunday, Jan. 24, from noon to 3 p.m. (snow date Jan. 31.)

This is an excellent opportunity to renew old friendships, and for potential members to participate in the brainstorming for new programs to be recommended to the National League of Women Voters in Washington, D.C.

A welcome is extended to all. For further information, call Candy Margles, LWV president at 729-5600, or Ann Bailey-Berman, 721-2000.

Library exhibit's Barnes' paintings

The Winchester Public Library will show paintings by Frank T. Barnes called "Oil Impressions — Still Life — the Landscape — the Sea," from Feb. 2-28.

Frank Barnes is a long-time resident of Winchester. For about 20 years he has been painting in oils — much of the work done on Cape Ann, in Gloucester and Rockport. Marietta B. Cornwall, his sister, a prominent Boston commercial artist and later a portrait artist in Rockport, encouraged and guided him until her death some years ago. His work shows the influence of the American Post-Expressionist school of the early 20th century.

He has been a member of various art associations including The Winchester Art Association and The Copley Society of Boston. He has exhibited in Massachusetts at The Copley Society, Boston City Hall, The Winchester Gallery, the Annisquam Gallery on Cape Ann and the Farnsworth Gallery in Rockland, Maine.

Barnes' paintings may be seen in many homes in this area and elsewhere along the eastern seaboard.

Nursery school holds open house and registration

On Monday, Feb. 1, at 8 p.m., the Winchester Cooperative Nursery School will hold its annual open house and registration for the 1988-89 school year. The open house will be held at the school facility located at 478 Main St. and Mystic Valley Parkway. The evening will include an informative discussion of the school's programs, supplemented by a slide presentation arranged by Director/Teacher Jean Mortensen.

Founded in 1968, this non-sectarian school offers a wide range of pre-school programs designed to enhance the cooperative learning experiences for children and parents. For three- and four-year-olds, the school offers two-morning (Tuesday & Thursday) and three-morning (Monday, Wednesday & Friday) classes which will be taught by Jean Mortensen, a four-afternoon pre-kindergarten class (Monday through Friday) class taught by Mary Jo Curley and Judy Andriesse.

The school also offers an extended day program from 11:45 a.m. to 2:35 p.m. each day, under the supervision of Pat Malcolm and her staff.

Over the past 19 years, the WCNS has grown. Its programs are structured to allow parents to participate in the classroom, as well as administering and maintaining the school.

Interested parents should attend the open house to meet the staff, tour the facilities and talk with parents of children currently enrolled in the school. For more information, please call: Phyllis Murphy at 729-6270; Margie Harvey at 729-5611, or the WCNS at 729-2003.

Teens, parents discuss 'pressure'

On Sunday, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Church of the Epiphany, Winchester, the Interfaith Council will present a parent/teen discussion on pressure. Given the recent survey of the Winchester youth, the council believes that this issue is one that requires open communication between parents and teens.

The evening will begin with a film from the "Telling it Like it is" series, made by a Lexington youth group. During the discussion, parents will be separated from their own child but in a group with other teens. In this way, both parents and teens can hear what the other half has to say about some of those complicated issues. The council believes that this open sharing helps parents understand the adolescent world and explore their own value positions, while permitting adolescents to reflect their concerns with other teens and adults. The individual group discussions will be governed by the youth group guidelines of confidentiality. The public is invited.

Young musicians play for charity

Approximately 30 pianists, including four Winchester students, will participate in a recital to benefit Mother Theresa of Calcutta, India, recipient of the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize.

Winchester students participating are: Clare Jacobs, Alex Racioppi, Anjali Koka and Rahul Koka.

Mother Theresa's charities are many. They include orphanages, hospitals, schools, leper colonies, homes for battered women and unwed mothers, and homes for the dying. Mother Theresa has been called the "Saint of the Gutters." She aids the poorest of the poor, regardless of religion, color or race.

The project includes a Playathon and Special Recital. During the Playathon, students will accept pledges from friends, relatives and neighbors of a suggested $0.1 for each minute of practice time during the two week period. After two weeks the practice time will be totaled and the donations collected.

The recital will be held Saturday, Jan. 23, at 3 p.m. at the Follen School on Massachusetts Avenue in East Lexington. The Suzuki Talent Education of Middlesex (S.T.E.M.), will present the piano recital. The public is invited to attend. There will be no admission, but additional donations will be accepted at that time.

All funds raised will be sent to the charities of Mother Theresa. One hundred percent of the money donated will aid the needy.

The Suzuki method of instruction nurtures the self-esteem of each child while teaching the art of music. Musical sensibilities are developed through the "mother tongue" approach to learning music.

For more information please call Elizabeth Landman, director of Suzuki Talent Education of Middlesex, (S.T.E.M.), at 861-7888.

Business women will hear colorists

"Professional dressing with personal color and style" will be the topic to be presented by Phyllis Bowen, Colorgraphs personal color and bodygraphing analyst, and Patricia Goehert, Beauty for All Seasons color and image consultant, at the Winchester Chamber of Commerce's Women in Business, Professional Women's dinner meeting Jan. 26 at 6 p.m. at Maximilian's Cafe.

The presentation includes a discussion of the advantages of color analysis; Goehert uses the "Color Alliance" system by Beauty for All Seasons and Bowen uses the Colorgraphs system of choosing colors "by natural color spectrum." Colors chosen by either method are based on the natural beauty of hair, skin, and eye color. Both consultants believe that the colors you wear can make you feel good about yourself and affect the way others respond to you.

Other components of creating and improving an image will also be discussed, including figure proportion analysis ("bodygraphing") and the selection of flattering clothing styles by Bowen, and wardrobe coordination and accessorizing by Goehert.

Anyone interested in meeting with others to share mutual concerns is invited to join these monthly dinner meetings. Please call the Chamber of Commerce office (729-8870) to make reservations.

Parent-to-Parent panels discuss growing up here

In the spirit of the 350th celebration the Winchester Interagency Council's Parent-to-Parent program has organized two evening presentations on the pleasures and stresses of growing up in Winchester.

On Thursday, Jan. 28, 7:15 p.m. at McCall Junior High School 3rd floor Social Studies Area, Dr. Harry Bakow and Dr. Janet Seide, clinical psychologists with Wallis Court Associates of Lexington and authors of the recently completed social emotional needs assessment at Winchester High, will present an overview of this detailed survey. They will be joined by a panel of local professionals who will give comments and observations based on their work with our teens. Panelists include: Dr. Michael Marcus, specialist in child and adult psychiatry, with Marcus Mental Health Associates of Winchester and Boston; The Reverend Dr. David Purdy, minister, Crawford Memorial Methodist Church, Winchester; and Darcy Fitzgerald, adolescent youth coordinator and new director of community education in town.

The program on Thursday, Feb. 4 at 7:30 p.m. at Ambrose Elementary School will expand this topic of discussion to include the reactions of young children to the pleasures and stresses of growing up in Winchester. The question of how has the "pressure cooker" impacted our children will be explored. Panelists this evening will include: Evander French, principal, McCall Junior High School; Jean Mortensen, director, Winchester Cooperative Nursery School; Dr. Frieda Lang, clinical psychologist, Counseling Resource Center of Winchester; George Flynn, principal, Ambrose Elementary School; and Dr. Richard Briggs, pediatrician with McClean and Briggs Associates of Winchester.

Now in its sixth year, the Parent-to-Parent program continues to offer all activities, lectures, and parent discussion groups free to the community through the support and generosity of the ENKA Society. For more information contact Judy Manzo, Coordinator, 326 Main St., 729-3160; David Margolis, parent group leader, 729-2070; or Darcy Fitzgerald, community education director, 721-7125.

St. Mary's School open house and registration

Parents interested in registering children in St. Mary's School for the fall of 1988 are encouraged to attend the open house held during Catholic Schools Week on Tuesday, Feb. 2, between 9 and 11 a.m. Classroom visitation will take place during this time.

With this year's theme "Share The Spirit," the teachers at St. Mary's School, under the direction of Cynthia Kavanaugh, acknowledge the wonderful talent present in our Catholic school students and invite them to use that talent to create and appreciate the talent of others. These children are provided with a structure of values that helps to inspire achievement and success.

Applications for any openings will be taken in the school office on Feb. 2, 3, and 4 from 8:30 to 11 a.m. for the pre-school (3½ year-olds), the pre-kindergarten and kindergarten programs and for grades one through seven. This year St. Mary's introduces our new pre-school program for 3½ year-olds on Thursday and Friday mornings beginning in the fall of 1988. To be eligible, students will have to be three years old by April 1, 1988.

The pre-kindergarten program will continue to be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday mornings. To be eligible to enter pre-kindergarten, students need to be four years old by Sept. 1, 1988. The kindergarten hours will be from 8:15 a.m. - noon. To be eligible to enter kindergarten, students need to be five years old by Sept. 1, 1988.

Please bring your child's immunization records and birth certificate, as well as a $75 registration fee which is due at the time of application. This fee is applicable to next year's tuition but is not refundable unless the school is unable to accept your children. For further information, please call 729-5515.

Nursery school sponsors opera

On Sunday, Feb. 7, the auditorium at Winchester High School will be transformed into the fairy tale world of gingerbread houses, fairies, and witches when Command Performances presents the opera "Hansel and Gretel." The opera, sponsored by Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School, is one of the cultural activities planned in conjunction with the Winchester Birthday Celebration. The opera, with appeal to a broad audience, will be fully staged and featured costumed professionals singing Humperdinck's famous opera.

Winchester resident, Lianna Potter, will be performing the role of the Dew Fairy and the Sandman in the Production. When asked about the appropriateness of the opera for children, she responded, "Because the story of Hansel and Gretel is so well known and the opera is in English, it is very easy for kids to understand. And the music is one of the most beautiful of all light operas, so parents will love it too!" Ms. Potter, a lyric coloratura soprano, is currently singing with the Longy School of Music in Cambridge and is lead soprano in the School's current production "Gallantry." Ms. Potter lives with her family in Winchester and is a loan officer with Shawmut Bank in Cambridge.

Command Performances, a touring opera company, is affiliated with the New England Conservatory of Music and provides an opportunity for talented vocalists in the Boston area to perform opera professionally. Last year, the group represented Boston in a cultural exchange program with Melbourne, Australia.

The performance will begin at 3 p.m., Feb. 7 and will last approximately one and one half hours with one intermission. Tickets can be purchased through the Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School at 729-8081 or 729-7319.

Third graders present plays

Third graders from Lincoln School under the direction of Instructional Specialist Joanne Benton performed three plays for the kindergarten through third grade the week of Dec. 14.

The students created their own costumes and put many hours into practicing their parts. Morgan Brandt, Ricki Bevington and Kate Bradford performed "How the Rabbit Lost His Tail." Ellen Mastenbrook, Tara Keene, Scott Baun and Kate Bradford starred in "The Miller, His Son and the Donkey," and Daniel Drazen, Jonathan Fischer and Scott Baun performed the puppet show Anansi and the Snake.

Vinson-Owen school news

Having completed two Health Education lessons dealing with self concept, sixth grade classes have done an outstanding job with activities related to self image — personal likes, dislikes, characteristics, future goals and writing biographies. The third lesson, dealing with friendship, entitled "Peer Pressure," has also been completed and the fourth lesson, again dealing with friendship, is scheduled for the week of Jan. 19.

In intramural activities, third and fourth graders have had some rousing games of basketball, newcombe, wiffleball and kickball. Fifth and sixth graders have been involved in basketball and volleyball.

WHS musicians play in festival

Seven outstanding music students from Winchester High School's performing groups played in the Northeast District Festival held at Natick High School Saturday, Jan. 16. Instrumentalists were Marilyn Cummings, senior, clarinet; Phoebe Goodwin, sophomore, trumpet; David McIndoe, sophomore, percussion. Vocalists were Lydia Cooper, junior; Jennifer Davis, senior; Kathy Kingsbury, senior; Margaret Lee, senior. Students were chosen through auditions in October and rehearsed with outstanding conductors throughout the three days of the festival, performing with other talented musicians chosen from northeastern Massachusetts.

Lydia Cooper and Phoebe Goodwin scored high enough on the auditions to be invited to audition for positions in the All-State Festival Chorus and Band, which will perform at the All-State Conference of the Massachusetts Music Educators Conference in Springfield in March.

The District Chorus performed Vivaldi's "Magnificat," the band performed works by Persichetti, Tschernokoff, Pennington and Chance. The orchestra performed music by Reigger, Hovhannes, and Copland.

Spring sports require physicals

All candidates for spring sports at Winchester High School must have a physical by their own physician in order to try out for Spring Sports which begin Monday, March 21, 1988. Proof of this examination must be given to the Coach by the first day of practice.

If the candidate has had an examination after May 1, 1987, this will fulfill the necessary requirements.

Furniture pickup for homeless set

The students of Mrs. Terri Lynch's fifth grade class at Lincoln School will sponsor a furniture pickup on Saturday, Jan. 30. This event is part of a community service project sponsored by the class and the student council to support the Pawtucket Shelter in Lowell. The shelter, which houses seven homeless families in transition, is in need of bunk beds, bureaus, outdoor storage sheds, outdoor toys, etc.

Anyone able to donate such items should contact Mrs. Terri Lynch of Mrs. Laurie Kirby at 721-7017.

Lynch Grandpal exchange to be repeated this season

By LEONOR RICH
Special to the Star

The successful Grandpals program of last year between the Lynch Elementary School's fifth- and sixth-graders and the Jenks Senior Center created an interest in its continuance this season.

A flow of communication by letter gives the pupils practical applications of skills in writing friendly letters. Projecting personalities via mail requires careful thought by both children and adults.

The time span includes activities during a three-month period: friendly letters, an interview of the senior by the student and a get-together to share experiences. The children are enjoyable, curious and polite, and they are looking forward to participating in this project, which gives meaning to correspondence.

More than 50 seniors are needed to be matched with individual students. Following the introductory letters, which include a photograph, there will be a brown-bag luncheon to allow pupils and seniors to make friends during this intergenerational exchange. Before the project is concluded, seniors will be invited to attend a Grandpal luncheon at the Lynch Elementary School.

All seniors willing to be a part of this educational experience for children are asked to leave their names and phone numbers at the Jenks Senior Center information desk as soon as possible. The goal of the school is to match one senior per student to develop new friendships through the vehicle of friendly letters and face-to-face relationships. Seniors who participated in the program last year were most enthusiastic about the project. Many of them, realizing that the intergenerational exchange has far-reaching effects on both pupils and seniors, have volunteered to be a part of the program again this year.

Delve into the art of calligraphy

Dr. Normand Paquette will return to Jenks Senior Center to give a 10-week course in calligraphy, the art of beautiful lettering. He will provide paper and a special pen for a small fee.

The course involves working on the alphabet in both upper and lower-case letters. When the individual becomes adept in producing this beautiful type of writing, a motto or poem will be copied before the series of lessons is concluded.

The Greek work "kalligraphia" means beautiful. Applied to calligraphy, it means elegant handwriting or artistic penmanship. It will be a pleasurable pursuit to become a part of a group that will learn how to explore this field of art.

Plan to save Thursday mornings from 10 to 11:30 a.m. beginning on Feb. 3. There are many uses for calligraphy including personalizing greeting cards and addressing distinctive envelopes.

Join with Jenks Senior Center artists

Now that there is increased space at Jenks Senior Center and a well-equipped craft room on the lower level, Ellen Kimball, instructor of the art class, will welcome new members on Tuesdays from 1:30 to 3 p.m. She gives special attention to all members of the class, encouraging each one to pursue his or her own artistic interests. The media used are pencil rendering, pen and ink drawings, water colors, pastels, and acrylics.

Do not be hesitant about attempting one of these forms of expression. No one is expected to produce the work of a professional artist, but all who participate have the opportunity to be creative, thus providing a healthy emotional outlet.

Marked progress is always noted when individuals make comparisons of their own work from "Painting #1" to later accomplishments. Come and enjoy being a part of this interesting group.

Share-a-life

A writing project during January and February in a McCall Junior High School English class needs the help of about 25 senior volunteers who are willing to be interviewed on a one-to-one basis by junior high students.

Bonnie Holmes, teacher of English, asks seniors to help fill the generation gap by telling students about their heritage, family history, or firsthand memories of times that are just history to these young people.

The time involved will be about 45 minutes to one hour during an interview session at Jenks Senior Center. The interview questions submitted in writing prior to the session will give seniors a change to think about what will be of interest to the students.

Students who have conducted the interviews will write a first draft to enable seniors to exercise editing privileges. Seniors will then receive a copy of the corrected draft to keep or give to their family.

Those who have participated will be invited to a party to share the final projects. This opportunity to be of assistance to youth is one that should be accepted eagerly. Their subject will be: "your life, what gives you a feeling of pride as you think about your background, how you grew up and what you have done with your life."

Seniors who have a special interest in tomorrow's leaders are asked to give their names to the Jenks Senior Center receptionist in order to be a participant in this very worthwhile project.

Videotape cassette recording

Filed in 1981, the video cassette recording entitled "On Golden Pond" is one that has been exceptionally popular in the entertainment world. It will be shown at the Jenks Senior Center at 1 p.m. on Feb. 4 following the "Eating Together" noontime luncheon. The public is invited to view this picture in color.

Katharine Hepburn, Henry Fonda and Jane Fonda gently guide the audience from laughter to tears, making this exquisite film an entertainment rarity. With vivid and memorable characterizations, the movie poignantly deals with conflict among three generations.

Henry Fonda gives a heartfelt performance, a cranky but loveable old man. Katharine Hepburn is radiant as his spirited and loving wife who returns with him to their New England summer home for a vacation.

Menu for the Eating Together Luncheon

The Eating Together noontime luncheons served on Wednesdays and Fridays at noon have sustained regular registrants as well as adding new diners at a modest cost.

In order to enjoy the hot nutritious meals, it is important to remember to sign up by 11 a.m. the day before the meal with the Jenks Senior Center receptionist. Inform the desk volunteer if transportation is needed.

Good nutrition benefits seniors

Good nutrition is essential to staying healthy. Research discussions revealed that older people are very knowledgeable about what should be avoided or omitted from their diet, but they are unable to describe the elements of a balanced diet. They talked about eliminating salt intake, lowering the amount of cholesterol, and limiting sugar and sweets consumption to improve their health.

People are victims of information overload in advertising materials. They are receiving contradictory information about the role of fiber, weight control, vitamins, calcium and what to avoid in diets, leaving them confused. Education must be aimed at making modest changes for both physical and mental benefits.

Sachem boys lose in OT to Spartans

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys basketball team hit a season low last Saturday when they ended a rough week by falling to Stoneham in double overtime, 63-61. Earlier in the week, the Sachems suffered losses to Belmont and Lexington.

Winchester had every opportunity to put the Spartans away but were unable to as the Stoneham team scratched and clawed its way to victory. At one point in the final quarter, the Sachems led by seven points but a run of five straight cut the lead to two before the game turned into a seesaw battle.

Earlier on, Doug Clarke, Eric Emeneau and Matt Howell boosted the Sachems out to an early advantage as they led by three at the end of one quarter, 12-9. Vandy French and Mike Haddad got into the act in the second quarter keying a 12-2 run and Winchester seemed to be in control at halftime, 28-19.

After the two teams traded baskets at the start of the third period, Stoneham made a charge at the Sachem's lead and cut it to five, 46-41, by the end of the quarter. Joe Costello and Clarke made a bid to put the game away early in the fourth quarter with some key hoops but the Spartans would not let Winchester escape.

The game began to reach the dramatic stage when with only eight seconds left and Winchester up, 49-46, a Stoneham player was fouled as he canned a three pointer. Fortunately, he missed the free throw and the game went to overtime.

Eric Emeneau (13 points) helped the Sachems recover from an early overtime deficit with a big basket but then he picked up his fifth personal foul and Winchester had to battle it out the rest of the way without their big man in the middle. Haddad climaxed an outstanding game by hitting a clutch shot to put the game into a second overtime. The highlight for the Sachems was a Costello three pointer in the final overtime but it was not enough to offset Stoneham who seemed destined to win.

The night before, Winchester never had a chance as Belmont raced out to a 10-point first quarter lead and never looked back as they went on to handle the Sachems, 71-51. Scott Garvey led a balanced scoring attack with eight points. French and Mike Morrison chipped in seven points while Costello and Clarke each had six.

Earlier last week, Winchester went up against perennial power Lexington. The Sachems were able to neutralize the Minutemen's highly touted backcourt combination for one half but they exploded in the second half and wound up winning convincingly, 82-61. Coach Mike Boyages got excellent efforts from guard Joe Costello (17 pt.), Emeneau (10) and Matt Howell (9). Haddad, Clarke and French also had good games.

The Sachems will try to get on track this week when they travel to Woburn before hosting Wakefield on Friday night.

This Sachem forward shows the tenacity which Winchester needs to turn their season in the opposite direction. (Paul Drake Photo)

Spartan girls too much

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

Right when it seemed like the Winchester High varsity girls basketball team was ready to make a move for the top, a couple of tough setbacks brought them back down to earth. First, league leading Belmont handled them easily then they lost a tough one to Stoneham, 56-50.

After last week's thrilling one-point triumph over Lexington boosted their record to 6-2, the Sachem girls ran into a buzzsaw Friday night in the form of Belmont sophomore Kristen Sullivan who led her team to a comfortable, 64-37 victory. The three senior tri-captains for Winchester all had good games. Julie Kenerson had 12 points and Ritika Bowry and Kathy Furey each had nine.

Unfortunately, the Sachem girls were without Bowry and Furey when they went up against Stoneham the following afternoon. As a result, coach Joe DiSarcina was forced to juggle his lineup with inexperienced players. Kenerson carried more than her share of the burden scoring 17 points but she could not do it alone. Beth Herlihy, Julie Sexeny, Allison Price and Denise Delaney each scored six points as the Sachem girls tried to dig themselves out of a hole created when they fell behind by 13 points in the first half.

Winchester has been a second half team for much of the season and this time was no different as they dug in defensively and outscored their opponents in each of the final two quarters. However, it just was not enough to offset their inexperience and the shooting of Lady Spartan Barbara Hugo.

Kay Kenney picked up four points for Winchester while Jenna Maconochie, seeing her first varsity action, contributed four points as well.

The Sachem girls have a pivotal game this week against a much-improved Woburn team which should set the tone for the second half of the season.

Gymnasts lose season opener

The Winchester High girls gymnastics team at last got their season underway but unfortunately it was Reading who came out on top in last week's meet at Winchester.

Allison Kessel was a standout performer for the Sachem girls as she placed in all but one event and finished second in the all around standings. Reading outscored Winchester, 102.2-95.1.

In the uneven parallel bars, Kessel tied with Sachemette teammate Colleen Raymond with a score of 5.6. Kessel took third in both the balance beam (6.15) and the vault (7.6). At the end, her cumulative score was 25.6.

The gymnastics team will travel to Stoneham tomorrow night for a meet with Stoneham.

Powers swims for Colby

A former Winchester High swim star is now making waves at the college level. Sheryl Powers, a senior at Colby College, is serving her second year as captain of the undefeated (3-0) swim team.

Swimming in the 1000 freestyle, 500 freestyle, 200 butterfly and 400 individual medley events, Powers has been a leader in the team's success thus far this season, according to Robby MacDonald, her coach.

Powers is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Powers of Thornberry Road.

Boys track team improves record

Girls team picks up win

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys track team blazed through a pair of opponents while the girls team split a pair of meets, hammering Watertown, 50-33, before bowing to Burlington, 66-19.

The Sachem boys began the week by parlaying five first place finishes and a sweep in the two-mile into a 46-40 victory. Paul O'Neill led the sweep for Winchester teaming with Dan Kennedy and Day Davis who finished second and third, respectively. The Sachems went 1-2 in the dash as Albie Cail (5.6) edged teammate Ray Donlon by a fraction of a second. Bill Weylman won the mile while Mike Aldridge led another first-second finish for Winchester in the 1000. Craig Bell won the high jump with a leap of 5'10".

Winchester improved their mark to 4-1 with a big win against Watertown, 55-31. Bell took first in the 45-yard hurdles and Donlon took first in the 300 with a time of 36.4. Aldridge placed first in the 1000 and Weylman tied for first in the 600 run. Kennedy was the winner in the two-mile while O'Neill was second in the mile with a time of 5:19. The climax of the meet came when the Sachems swept the shotput event. Bill Johansen was on top followed by Donlon and Tim Looney.

The Sachem girls began their week with a comfortable win over Watertown. Meghan McKenna ran a 7.6 to win the hurdles while Emily Lewis took third. Kathy Green finished second in the dash while Heather Walsh won the 600 and teammate Katie Doherty was third. Laura Rutherford won the 300 with a time of 41.0 and sister Lana Rutherford took the 1000 in 3:19. Stephanie Keefe won the mile with Suzanne Foley finishing third. Michelle Tadros was second in the two-mile and Cara McLucas and Lisa Donlon placed second in the high jump and shot put, respectively. McKenna, Doherty, Cheryl Kramer and Lewis outdistanced the field in the relay.

The shoe was on the other foot when Winchester went up against the Lady Devils. Senior Laura Rutherford was the only Sachem girl to win an event as she captured the 300 with a time of 40.1. Margaret Cunningham was second in the 1000 and Donlon again finished second in the shotput. Lana Rutherford took second in the mile while McKenna was second in the hurdles. Walsh was third in the 600 while Lewis was third in the high jump.

The boys team will take on Reading this week while the girls will meet against powerful Stoneham.

Sachem grapplers lose two, win one at Commonwealth

By CHARLES L. COWEN
Special to the Star

For the second straight week of the Winchester High wrestling team displayed efforts that shone of greatness and dismayed of mediocrity. The Sachems had a busy week, crushing Lexington, 66-12, on Wednesday before finishing 1-2 Saturday at the Commonwealth Cup team tournament in Marshfield.

Last Wednesday, Lexington came to the Winchester High School gymnasium hoping to pull off an upset. They left crushed. Battered by a team that proved without a doubt why year after year the Sachems are feared contenders for the Middlesex league crown. This was the Sachem team that rose to the occasion and beat top-ranked Melrose a week earlier. This wasn't, however, the same team that traveled to Marshfield on Saturday to the Commonwealth Cup team tournament.

Winchester stated the Lexington matched on a down note as "Jam Master Jareuban" Taylor got caught in a pinning combination he couldn't get out of at 103 pounds.

Senior David Banks started a string of pins for the Sachems that seemed as though it wouldn't end. After taking his opponent down four times Banks pinned him 58 seconds into the second period. After six straight takedowns Senior Captain Bill Murphy pinned his man for another six team points.

In what seems to be becoming a trend, the heavier Sachems follow suit when the lower weights start to pin. The confidence grows, the adrenaline flows and everyone wants to get into the act. Just about everyone did get into the act too, as Winchester pinned 11 times. Greg Falcone (125), Glenn Doherty (130), Roberto Saez (135), Chad Haskell (140), Chris Chalmondeley (145), James Selvitelli (152), Chuck Shannon (160), John Giovino (171) and Ray Bustamante (189) all pinned en route to a 66-12 thrashing of Lexington.

In contrast to Wednesday's strong showing Saturday was greatly disappointing. "The Commonwealth Cup" team tournament is a competition between the top two teams in each of the four Division I Sectionals. As runner-up to Waltham in Division I

Central Sectional, Winchester earned the right to compete in this year's tourney.

Different from other wrestling tournaments "the Commonwealth Cup" tourney pits team vs. team in full squad competitions. Winchester faced off first against Western Sectional Champ Agawam.

Though David Banks started the match off right with a win the team never got any momentum going. With Captain Bill Murphy out with an injured shoulder and varsity 112 pounder Peter Lobur sidelined for a couple of weeks with a knee injury Winchester had lost just enough wind from its sails to never get to wrestling the way they should have and can. Winchester lost their first match, 42-12, despite strong performances by Dave Banks (102) and Roberto Saez (135).

Winchester did manage to pull itself together for the match against next opponent, Brockton, as the Heavyweights John Giovino (171) and ray Bustamante (189) came up with some big points to seal a 31-30 victory. However, Winchester couldn't keep up its spirits enough to prevent Billerica from beating in their final match of the evening, 35-23.

Freshman girls still looking for first win

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High freshmen girls basketball team continues to seek its first win after it was unable to get past Belmont last week, losing 45-37.

Inger Midtkandal was the star of the game for the Sachem girls as she put in a strong effort at both ends of the court. She led all scorers with 10 points and also did a good job snagging rebounds off the glass. Amy Pof-tak also did a nice job rebounding and she contributed six points to the Sachem cause.

Kim Landini had a strong game offensively as she tallied seven points while Pam Taylor had another good game picking up six points and earning praise from coach Richard Trotta for her work on the defensive end of the court. Kim Davis scored four points and Courtney Manning and Jen Murphy each had one bucket each to round out the scoring.

Trotta singled out Courtney Perkins and Brittany Boulanger for their marvelous work on defense. The team will try and snap their winless string when they take on Stoneham and Watertown.

Soccer coaching classes to be held

The Winchester Soccer Club has made it a priority for this year to train new and old coaches and anyone who thinks he or she might possibly want to coach sometime in the future.

A two session training course to be held at Muraco School on Sunday, Jan. 24 and Sunday, Jan. 31 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. has been organized. Those attending both sessions may take a test for an E level coach's license, but are not required to. Those attending only the first session may take a test for an F level coach's license if they wish. This course is put on by the Massachusetts Youth Soccer Association. Those in Winchester who have taken the course recommended it highly.

The fee is $25. Fall 1987 and Spring 1988 coaches and assistants who complete both sessions will be reimbursed by the Winchester Soccer Club.

If you wish to attend, you should do two things. First, call Chris Scanlon at 729-8991 as soon as possible for more details and to let him know whether you plan on attending. Second, come to Muraco School on Jan. 24 at 7:45 a.m. to register.

Coaching Development Organizer Chris Scanlon strongly urges you to attend this course no matter what your level of experience. Very few of the coaches know much at the start but they learn as they go. This is not a course for experts only. Come even if you are not sure you want to coach in the future.

Sachem defenseman John Hackett bails out goalie Jim McNerny who is caught out of position in this instance. The hockey team's tough season continued this week as they lost two more games to Woburn and Wakefield. (Paul Drake Photo)

A STUDENT PERSPECTIVE

Sex education a must in AIDS era

By VICTOR GRIGORIEFF
Winchester High School

Picture this: someone at Winchester High School has AIDS. The entire student body has been attending school with this person, drinking from the same water fountains, sharing locker rooms and breathing the same recycled air. The person is also sexually active, and may have spread the disease to several partners.

The community of Winchester is protected and insulated from social and economic problems that other communities experience, but in no way is this town immune to the epidemic that is spreading across America. Winchester is just as vulnerable to the spread of AIDS and other sexually-transmitted diseases as other towns. Its conservative position on sex education may make it even more prone to becoming a haven for AIDS. In time, Winchester will have a student with AIDS attending school. Then, the life-threatening problem of one student could be shared by every other person in the building.

If a student had AIDS, his classmates would no doubt experience a great deal of fear and anxiety. Parents might keep their children home in an attempt to protect them from the disease that has no cure. When the identity of this mysterious bearer of death was finally revealed, crowds in the hallways would break up upon seeing him. People probably wouldn't bother to talk to this poor victim, and he would suffer a death from loneliness long before his body failed him.

The truth of the matter is that there is no student in Winchester known to have AIDS. This scenario was created to evoke fear and awareness of the disease that will be in this town sooner than we think, maybe even as you read this article. What will happen when the first Winchester student catches AIDS? Will he or she mysteriously disappear, move away, or will this person have the courage to face the environment of the high school when everybody else is terrified of him? No one can say for sure, but if people become more aware of the danger of this disease, how it can and cannot be transmitted, and how to protect against it, maybe the first victim will be able to spend his last months of living in this town.

The reason that Winchester and every other town in this country needs preparation for AIDS is that victims in other parts of the country have been treated like criminals by people who did not know all of the facts. A family in Florida had three sons that carried the AIDS virus, and the hospitality of the town was not overwhelming. A large number of the students at the school the boys attended suddenly became ill. Some nice people set fire to the family's house. The family was forced to leave their home town, never to return. Students should feel ashamed to wear Winchester jackets were the same thing to be possible here.

The only way to prevent panic is through proper education in school. Now the freshmen are required to take a class called "health," where the issue of AIDS is to be brought up, but the students need more than that. I have attended Winchester Public Schools for 13 years, and not once have I witnessed a sex education class. This town is afraid of the concept, as shown by naming a course "health" to avoid having to say the word "sex."

There was a candid program in the form of an assembly offered last year that was helpful and provided the students a chance to ask any questions they had. This year, Winchester Hospital sponsored an AIDS awareness program and provided literature during lunches one day. These programs are admirable, but there needs to be more education. AIDS is a problem that ignorance has no chance of solving.

The fact that AIDS cannot be spread by casual contact such as opening doors, breathing the same air, touching, or even kissing an AIDS carrier. The way that AIDS is transmitted include using the same needles for drug injections, receiving contaminated blood transfusions, being born to a mother with AIDS, or having unprotected sex with a carrier of AIDS. It is quite possible to protect yourself from AIDS. The first step is to avoid sharing needles to inject illegal drugs. The next thing to worry about is having sex. Prayers do not protect from AIDS. Abstinence and condoms are the only alternatives. The facts go on and on, and they are available to anyone who asks. People are afraid to ask about AIDS, when the true fear should result from not finding out what needs to be known.

AIDS will have claimed 50,000 lives by the end of next year. The virus will continue to spread as long as it is allowed to flourish, unchecked by education and action. Hopefully, enough interest can be generated to make some more progress in the fight against the most deadly disease of the future. Many people think that they are immune to this disease because they aren't homosexual minority intravenous drug users, but AIDS does not look at skin color or address when it strikes. The students of Winchester are in at least as much danger as anyone. Education is desperately needed. It is important to remember that learning about AIDS means nothing to a student who will only live six months after being diagnosed as having the AIDS virus himself.

Three named to Woburn Loop Advisory group

The Board of Selectmen appointed three precinct 8 residents to the Woburn Loop Advisory Committee at a brief meeting Tuesday night.

Patricia Papetti of 101 Wendell St. told selectmen she had been following the Loop proceedings and wanted to participate in the process. Her home is directly across from a Loop parcel.

Michael Landry of 111 Sylvester Ave. said he thought he could be helpful to the committee because he works for an architectural firm and could offer some insight into the development negotiations.

Peggy Scheicher of 22 Lochwan Street had previously talked to selectmen about the Loop disposition. She said she did not feel that enough information on the Loop had been made available to the town.

The committee will have no power to negotiate with developers, but will act as advisor to the Woburn Loop Committee. The Woburn Loop Committee will meet with developers at 5 p.m. this evening in the Public Safety Building.

Selectmen okay honor roll move

The Board of Selectmen voted to create a committee to move the honor roll to Wadleigh Field from Town Hall land.

Charles Tseckares, a member of the Beautification Design Review Committee, said that group was in favor of the move with certain restrictions. The Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion posts in town are also in favor of the move, according to Tseckares.

The committee wants the honor roll to remain short, so that the open space will not be diminished. It also wants the monument to be placed at the end of the land closest to Mt. Vernon Street. Tseckares said there should be enough room in front of the honor roll so that gatherings in front of it would not spill out onto the street as they do now.

The selectmen also voted to support the move, but could offer no financial relief. Selectman Chairman Judith Muggia suggested that the committee raise the funds for the move itself and get town departments to help with the move when feasible.

COMMENT

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Winchester keeps Martin Luther King's memory alive

The federal holiday just past, Martin Luther King Jr. Day, provides an opportunity to assess the state of race relations in the town and the nation.

This past week in Winchester various expression was given to where we are, where we have been and where we have yet to go in order to achieve a moral standard of which we can be proud, a standard to hold out to the rest of the world as an example.

The church groups banded together to hear a black pastor address the combined congregations Monday. Rev. Charles Stith spoke of the economic inequality that still exists throughout the nation in front of an audience of about 100 attendees, most of them white, at the Unitarian Church.

Sunday, Rev. Clark Olsen, vice president for program and planning for the Unitarian Church, recounted his experiences as a direct witness to Southern racism in the 1960s. He saw with his own eyes a white civil rights activist clubbed to death with a lead pipe in the hands of a reactionary Southerner.

Winchester High School's social studies program, in which 80 percent of the student body participates, examined King's "I have a dream" speech for its social and historical impact, according to Carly Jane Watson, an instructional aide at the school. There was, however, no school-wide assembly to honor the fallen leader, as there was last year.

McCall Junior High School held a special program on minority music a week before King's birthday. Planned by the Parents Association Enrichment Committee, the program featured two presentations of Semenya McCord's "Journey into Jazz," a look at the evolution of the musical form from early slave music to modern times.

McCord spoke and sang, backed up by three musicians on piano, bass and drums (and the braver members of the audience).

In addition, McCall Principal Evander French Jr. asked social studies teachers to speak about King's contributions in their classes.

In the elementary schools each classroom did something different to honor King, according to Richard Young, Vinson-Owen's principal, but all students were exposed to the basic story of King's life.

Young said the King program was managed by Maura Albert, an instructional specialist for V-O and Lynch, who sent out ideas to each of the teachers.

Some of her ideas were: interview parents on their memories of the King years, write essays that begin "I have a dream," post a Martin Luther King bulletin board, produce a King play.

According to Young, sixth-graders read, "Don't think like a slave," a story about a young black man who went on to become a national leader.

The fifth grade read Christine King Farris's, "Martin Luther King Jr.: his life and dream." Farris is King's sister. The class also listened to a taped biography provided by Albert. A class discussion of equal rights for minorities was held, and the question, "Where do we go from here?" was addressed.

In the fourth grade, a "mini-unit" that highlighted black Americans' heritage was taught. A map of Africa was used to describe the slave trade. The teacher explained life on the plantation and the Jim Crow laws. Sketches of prominent black Americans were presented, and students' brains were bent by crossword puzzles that required matching the name of important black leaders with their achievements.

"I'd have to give a little credit to the superintendent," Young said. "Before he came here we didn't focus of the historical holidays as much as we do these days."

Reached at his office, Superintendent Charles Mitsakos said an attempt is made in the school system to honor the holiday in a variety of ways that are "age appropriate."

He emphasized that focus on "the meaning behind the holiday" is as important as honoring the holiday itself. Civil rights belong to all minorities, not just blacks, he said.

"We are dealing with a generation today for whom [King] has no direct meaning," he added.

St. Mary's School organized an educational program to remember the assassinated black leader the Friday before his birthday.

All schools were closed for the holiday itself, as were town offices and the post office.

In its third year, the celebration of Martin Luther King's birthday has become an institution in Winchester and much of the rest of the country.

Attempts have been made to give the generation that did not live through the turbulent '60s some idea of what happened, not only the unfolding of events, but also the creation and development of ideas.

As Stith pointed out, there is still a long way to go. While there stands hardly a law on the books that is specifically racist, there are still many hidden and partially hidden barriers to full equality for blacks and other minorities.

The remaining obstacles are mostly economic. For every Bill Cosby there are a million impoverished inner-city dwellers with no way out of their plight. As King said, they can't do it alone. White activists are still needed to level up the playing field.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Chairman lauds hearing turnout

TO THE EDITOR:

On behalf of the Winchester Board of Selectmen, may I take this opportunity to sincerely thank the 80 and more hardy souls - Town Meeting Members, board and committee members and department representatives - who braved zero-degree weather to attend the budget hearing, Jan. 14 at the Jenks Center.

The newspaper and cable coverage, along with the town manager's and Finance Committee mailings, elicited the interest and response we were seeking to assure all Winchester residents an informed and thoughtful fiscal town meeting in May.

The manager's presentation, comments by key committee members and department representatives, provided the basis for the questions, discussion and "sense of the meeting" votes. The Board of Selectmen received the guidance it needs to provide its recommendations to the Town Meeting and to the voters, the choices they want, to participate in establishing our town's fiscal policy for the future.

On Jan. 25, at the regular selectmen's meeting, time will be devoted to a complete presentation of the mechanics and provisions of the Proposition 2½ law and the procedural steps required to present over-ride options to the voting public for their consideration.

Again, our sincere thanks to everyone who participated.

Third-grader thanks selectman

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to thank Mr. Mark Lombardi for taking time out of his busy schedule to talk to me on which it is like to be a selectman in Winchester, also for taking time out to come to my school and talk to my friends and teachers.

Thanks again

Resident congratulates plowing crews

TO THE EDITOR:

Summit Avenue off Mt. Pleasant Street is a dead-end cul-de-sac and has always been difficult to plow in wintertime.

I think it is time for congratulations to the DPW and the plowing crews for a consistently fine job.

Secretary reminds that not all salaries are average

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to respond to the article in the Thursday, Jan. 14 paper regarding the budget status of the Town of Winchester.

As a Town of Winchester employee working as a secretary part-time in the clerical sector, I would like to say, I do not make a so-called average salary of $31,000 as quoted by the Town Manager. My fellow full-time coworkers in the clerical sector do not in any way make this average. Our salary range for clerical staff is between $15,000 to $19,000, which is below the poverty level. Many of these women are living on these salaries as the sole income of the family.

So when the Town Manager states the so-called average town employee salary is $31,000, this figure includes the large salaries of the management personnel combined with the smaller salaries of non-management personnel to arrive at that figure.

Also, the same holds true for the so-called average pay increase of six percent for town employees last year. Our clerical staff received 4.5 percent and not six percent as stated by the Town Manager.

In closing, I would like to say we in the clerical staff do our jobs and do them well and are dedicated to serving the people of Winchester. We are doing it on small salaries compared to the much larger salaries of the management staff working for the Town of Winchester.

Winton Club promotes this year's show

TO THE EDITOR:

I am sorry that you have not had sufficient space recently to be able to let the town know about this year's Winton Show which is currently in rehearsal at McCall School. I am sure that many of your readers have seen the banner depicting "Memories" and the Town Hall steeple over the auditorium entrance. Inside, a talented cast is working on a show that has a unique Winchester flavor and which will be enjoyed by all ages.

We consider the opening number — 1638 Along the Aberration — to be the kick-off to Winchester's 350th celebration. Some other scenes as we follow Winchester through the years depict paroled ladies along the Middlesex Canal, the Enka Fair, jitterbug dancers on the Main Street Bridge and always a backdrop of Winchester scenery, featuring especially the Town Hall. Although the theme of the show is local, the music is familiar Broadway and Hollywood.

This is one of two fund-raising efforts which last year enabled Winton Club to donate $75,000 to Winchester Hospital. This year since we have many more seats available in the McCall Auditorium we hope many more will join us for a smashing evening. Ticket information is available by calling 729-7064. Any remaining seats will be sold at the Box Office on performance nights, Jan. 27, 28, 29, 30.

Sports fans make the difference

TO THE EDITOR:

As you know, we initiated a fund-raising drive to recognize the accomplishments of our State Champion Boys' Varsity Soccer Team. Our efforts have been completed and we were able to honor the team at an awards banquet on Jan. 10. The banquet was well-attended and was certainly a tremendous success.

The purpose of this letter is to thank Winchester sports fans for their generous contribution. It is through this kind of support for our athletic programs that Winchester continues to be the town of champions.

We thank them again for their help.

Resident calls for clarity

TO THE EDITOR:

It is clear that the activities of the new Housing Partnership Board deserve, and will receive, extensive coverage over the coming months.

I urge that you make it Star policy to avoid the use of meaningless terms such as "affordable housing" in reporting the events. Such euphemisms simply cloud the debate, encouraging persons on either side to indulge their wildest fantasies about untoward consequences.

This was evident in last year's controversy over the use of religious symbols in the schools; the Star did not help by acceding to participants' refusal to speak plainly.

The problem of providing housing for people with low-incomes is a very real one in our present economy; debate about the means to that end will be less divisive if all sides are forthright.

GUEST COLUMN

Father's dream grows from nightmare

Last Monday was Martin Luther King Day. A day, we are told, to remember that great man's dream — a dream that one day all people will be equal.

For me, that is a more difficult task than one can imagine. Sunday night my daughter, a 16-year-old Winchester High School student, came home so drunk that she still can't remember what happened to her. My anger subsided during the long, sleepless night; the pain I share with her will last much longer.

My dream is much simpler than King's. I have a dream that one day our children will be able to understand the true value of friendship, when the value of friendship will be measured not by what someone can do for us, but by kindness and sincerity, when the test of friendship will not be based on which "in crowd" one is a member of, but on who is really there to listen when one needs a shoulder to cry on (and recognizes the obligation to reciprocate).

I have a dream that one day our children will have the patience to understand that their place in history will be based not on who they know, but on how they use their talents to interact with those around them, when they learn they do not have to use other people to achieve their goals, but need only their own ability and perseverance.

I have a dream that one day our children will not abuse their bodies (or minds) to be a part of a crowd (any crowd, be it "in" or "out") because their "friends" act cruelly rather than risk their own moment of glory, when they don't feel they pressure to act stupidly just to be accepted, but are able to find a real friend who will be true for life, no matter what temptations others hold out.

I have a dream that one day we parents will act responsibly when our children, in their attempt to be accepted by their peers, bring out the booze, when we will show the courage to scream "stop!" rather than boast about the number of "friends" that come to our child's parties.

I have a dream that one day we parents will stop pressuring our children to strive for only the ivy, when we will recognize the unnecessary strain we place on them to be what we are not, and can support them in all of their endeavors, however simple, when we will recognize that they are their own beings, individuals with a heart and soul, not clones of what we, in the wisdom of our advancing age, think we could have been, when we will see that they are learning to be just like us.

My daughter is not an alcoholic. Like many of our children, she wants (no, needs) to be accepted, or to be treated by her friends as she endeavors to treat them. Her friendship is deep and sincere. She is always ready to lend a shoulder when someone calls to talk about a fight she (or he) just had with her (his) parents, or boy (girl) friend, when the same has happened to her, her "friends" are too busy, and I share her pain.

As she and her "friends" approached 16, she organized, or helped organize, surprise parties for each of them; on her 16th birthday, they all had other plans, and I shared her pain. Sunday she looked forward to going out to dinner with her "friends." Despite being used to driving them home from the mall, she was asked not to go to dinner because one of the other girls doesn't like her, and I shared her pain. Last night she went to a party and decided that to be one of the crowd she had to have a drink. . . and another. . . and another, despite knowing that she would be punished. Her "friends" ignored her, and I shared her pain.

At the same party, the host's parents turned a deaf ear to the barfing in the other room; my daughter — and maybe yours, too — had to come home to face the music, and I shared her shame.

What's worse, though, is that I, like King, can only watch my dream turn into a nightmare. When we can't even teach our children the true meaning of friendship, how can we ever expect them to treat others equally? When we refuse to share the blame, how can we expect them to be better — not more successful financially — than us?

There is something wrong with a society that teaches its offspring that success can be achieved by stepping on others. Although I admit that probably it is easier than making it on your own, in the long run it is never as rewarding. I have shared, and will always share my children's pain, and sometimes their shame. I only hope that the lessons they learn as children are carried forward throughout their lives. And more than anything, I hope each and every one of our children will, one day, have one good friend.

Laughter is important for survival

By TERRY MAROTTA

Recently one of my kids received as a gift a copy of The Ha Ha Bonk Book.

The Ha Ha Bonk Book, a collection of jokes such as elementary school kids love to tell, takes its title from the one that asks, "What goes Ha Ha Bonk?" "A man laughing his head off."

It comes to mind this morning because it reflects so nicely the intimate braiding on this earth of the humorous and the hideous, the funny and the quease-inducing.

How like life the Ha Ha Bonk joke really is; in this house especially, how very fitting.

We laughed ourselves silly two weeks ago when the cat got involved in the paint project and emerged sporting hot-pink whiskers and fluorescent eyebrows. A half-hour later, we stopped laughing when a major pipe backed up in the cellar and sent the whole history of our laundering and nutritional activities scudding across the floor.

We've had a hard time here in the last month: known loss and known sorrow; seen the year hit bottom, and watched the sun start to set, as it seems, moments after noon. We are in a weakened state.

I have a spouse of 20 years named David. He woke at five one morning last week. Unable to find again the furry path back to Dreamland, he reached under the bed to fetch forth the reading lamp, one of those tiny inventions that casts a bright cone of light into an otherwise-darkened room. Attempting to set it on the bedside table, he misjudged the distance.

It slipped. He caught it mid-air, and somehow in the process sliced clear through the flesh of his wrist, laying bare the minute circuitry of that joint's inner workings.

He leaped from the bed. At this point I woke too, and followed the red wet blossoms of blood as they led to the bathroom.

There I found David, attempting with a bath towel to tourniquet the wound.

"Get my pants," he directed as I wove into view. Emergency Room, we were both thinking.

I got them.

"Put them on me," I bent to do so.

He stepped in, like a man into an elevator; I pulled the elevator to the top; and fainted dead away in a great clattering of bones on the icy tile floor.

"Be right with you," I assured him, partially coming to moments later. He paced, oozing. "Sit down a minute 'til we see if it's the artery."

Then still reeling, I crawled back to bed, with the idea of recovering the more quickly there.

"How are you?" I called feebly into the john. And then fainted again, falling out of bed this time, striking whole new chords as my sorry skeleton hit the wood.

David came in then. He started laughing. It was the Ha Ha Bonk Book all over again.

It wasn't an artery, we'd decided by then. We lay in bed together, chalk-faced, and watched the sky lighten.

In an hour, we rose to take on the day.

He promised to drive to the hospital and see about some stitches. Instead he drove to work, consulted the guys in Production and stuck on a Band-Aid in the Men's Room.

At days' end, he limped back in the door and indicated his wrist. "It hasn't closed yet. It's like a little guy's mouth. Look, I can do ventriloquism." And he peeled back the Band-Aid.

But it had closed — barely — so the show was over.

He didn't bleed again. I didn't faint.

We'd laughed all right, but we'd done it with a certain rueful quality.

On this side of Eden, is there any other way?

Biologist wins research grant

Gloria V. Callard of Winchester, a professor of biology at Boston University, was awarded a $587,000 five-year grant by the National Institute of Health to continue her research into the role of hormones in sperm production.

Conducting basic research which has implications in the field of human fertility, Callard has pioneered in the use of animals less complex than man to increase the understanding of the early stages of sperm development. "We are trying to identify the crucial point at which hormones trigger sperm growth," Callard says.

A former Fulbright scholar, Callard joined the Boston University Biology Department in 1982. Previously, she had been an assistant professor at Harvard Medical School Laboratory for Human Reproduction and Reproductive Biology. In 1986, she was named Boston University Teacher-Scholar of the Year.

In December of last year, she was a panel member at a meeting of the American Society of Zoologists in New Orleans and, in 1982, was elected a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

A 1959 bachelor of science degree graduate in biology from Tufts University in Medford, Callard received a master of science degree in 1962 and a Ph.D. in 1964, both in zoology and physiology from Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N.J.

Austin lauds
McLaughlin

Charles H. McLaughlin, a longtime resident of Winchester, was recently honored by the Board of Trustees and administration of Austin Preparatory School in Reading, having an academic building named Charles H. McLaughlin Hall in his honor. The dedication took place during ceremonies held in the school chapel.

H. Andrew Brodecki, chairman of the executive committee of the Board of Trustees, reviewed the lifelong accomplishments of the man who has served as the chairman of the Austin trustees for the past 18 years. Presentations were also made by Trustee David J. McAuliffe and the Headmaster, Dr. Frank P. Gifune, Jr. The dedication Liturgy was celebrated by Rev. James Flynn, O.S.A. of the Austin faculty.

Following the formal presentations Mr. McLaughlin addressed those who assembled to pay him honor. He paid tribute to the many individuals and groups who have contributed to the growth of Austin Preparatory School, including the Order of St. Augustine, past and present trustees, administrators, faculty and staff members, parent groups, alumni, and students.

Vandals in stacks vex library staff

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

As the Winchester Public Library trustees begin to think about getting the results of the feasibility study on renovations and restructuring they commissioned, a chronic problem surfaces -- vandalism.

Library Director Matthew Sperber called the problem ongoing and discouraging. The library was designed and built in 1932. At that time librarians were the only people who had access to the stacks of books. A patron would ask the librarians, who were positioned behind a desk that blocked off the stacks to the public, for a book and the librarians would get it.

That system is no longer used. Library patrons are free to browse through the books and the building. While browsing is a freedom many people expect when they go to a library, the organization of Winchester's building makes it easy for those who want to take advantage of the situation.

Sperber said the library has had a problem with vandalism since the stacks were opened. Most of the books are housed behind walls and in rooms the library staff cannot see from the reference room or circulation desk. Right now, Sperber said, the only solution is to patrol the stacks or have a librarian stand guard like a sentry over the books.

"The library is efficiently staffed right now," Sperber said. "We prefer to use them to serve the public than to patrol the building."

Thus the library endures graffiti on the walls and in books. The average hardcover book, Sperber estimated, has a 10 to 20 year lifespan, and the library staff would like to see the books live a full life. "We like to be able to buy new books," Sperber said, "and not replace the old ones over and over again."

The vandalism has taken its toll on more than the books. Paintings that once were displayed for the public are now hidden away in locked offices. The bathrooms are kept locked and patrons must ask librarians for the keys.

Because there are two main entrances to the building and many ways to get from one floor to another, the library staff never knows how many people are in the building. "There are a lot of places to hide," Sperber said.

One part of the feasibility study will address vandalism. Sperber said the study will suggest ways to space the stacks and bring them out of hiding. The trustees are looking for a way to give the interior of the library a more open feeling. They believe that those measures will deter vandals and make using the library easier.

REAL ESTATE
AND YOU

By Dick Murphy
The Bixby & Porter Co. Realtors

CAN YOU COUNT ON A SELLER'S MARKET

When it comes time to sell your home, you are probably hoping for, even counting on, a "seller's market." You know that real estate appreciates and it's inherent investment qualities may even have played a part in your initial decision to become a property owner.

Caution and intelligence are always wise prerequisites to pricing your home, however. Do not let tales of bidding wars, multiple contracts, or sales prices well above the listed amount make you overly optimistic about the price at which you can sell your home. It is natural for a healthy marketplace to fluctuate up and down, and many factors can quickly reverse a trend.

Sometimes, for example, interest rates rise or prices creep up to and beyond the point of buyers' resistance. When that happens, good values continue to move rather quickly, but smart buyers pass up overpriced homes. Your Realtor is in touch with the pulse of today's market. He or she can give you good pricing advice with a market analysis of your property.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate professionals at The Bixby & Porter Company Realtors are ready to serve you. Call us at 729-7000 or drop by our offices at 33 Thompson Street in Winchester.

Hospital presents childhood trauma presentation

Imagine a disease that strikes without warning and that can, in a matter of minutes, snuff out a child's life or leave it crippled or disfigured. Imagine that its victims are predominantly young and healthy. Imagine that it's epidemic.

You don't have to imagine it; it already exists. The "disease" is trauma. Trauma can strike anytime, anywhere, any place.

It only makes good sense to be familiar with procedures and practices that might just help in an emergency or possibly save someone's life. Although many lives are saved by prompt emergency care, a great deal of unnecessary trauma could be avoided if adults knew simple prevention and response methods. "Preventing and Handling Childhood Emergencies," a one-evening discussion, was developed as part of Winchester Hospital's commitment to provide educational services to the community.

The public is invited to this free discussion, featuring Dr. Howard W. Rashba, a pediatrician on the active staff at Winchester Hospital, who practices in Reading. The two-hour session will be held Wednesday, Feb. 3 at 7:30-9:30 p.m. in the Kingsbury Seminar Room at Winchester Hospital.

For additional information and registration, please call the Education Department at 729-9000, ext. 3004.

The course meets on six consecutive Thursdays from 6 to 7 p.m. at Winchester Hospital. Sue Powers, R.N., community health educator, and Pamela Cote, R.D., dietitian, will lead the course. Speakers are members of the Winchester Hospital staff. Each week participants weigh in, view films, discuss their nutritional programs, share menus and recipes, and set up individual and group exercise programs.

There is still time to register, which may be done by calling the Education Department. Participants are asked to make an appointment for individualized nutrition counseling with one of the hospital's registered dietitians, and to bring copies of any current diets to that consultation.

Fees are $8 for a 15-minute consultation and $25 for the course. When accompanied by a written physician's order for weight reduction, the consultation fee may be covered by one's health insurance. For more information and registration, individuals are asked to contact Ms. Powers at 729-9000, Ext. 3010.

Ileitis colitis group will meet

The Winchester Hospital Chapter of the National Foundation for Ileitis and Colitis will meet Wednesday, Jan. 27, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Kingsbury Seminar Room.

Weight reduction course to start

Winchester Hospital's Education Department will resume its popular "Weight Away" program tonight.

William Vanneman, M.D., gastroenterologist will speak on "Surgical Options/How to Prepare for Surgery."

Meetings of the group are free and open to the public. For further information, call Margaret Dwyer, R.N. director of ambulatory services, 729-9000, ext. 3253.

Three nurses pass oncology exam

Three registered nurses at Winchester Hospital recently passed the National Oncology Certification Examination. The examination, developed by the National Oncology Society, has the goal of expanding nurses' knowledge, exploring new dimensions and reaffirming nurses' commitment to cancer care.

Lolly Clinton has been a registered nurse at Winchester Hospital for 23 years. For the past nine years she specialized in oncology nursing care. Carol Mitchell, a registered nurse for 18 years and an employee of Winchester Hospital for 12 years, has worked in oncology for five years.

A registered Nurse at Winchester Hospital for 18 years, Susanne Morrison joined Winchester Hospital and the oncology department three years ago.

These three nurses will display their recent certification with the initials O.C.N. (Oncology Certified Nurse). Qualification for the examination included a minimum of three years of nursing experience in oncology. The content of the exam covered basic to the most current information and advance modalities of care.

Gonsalves named worker of month

Ernest Gonsalves of Woburn was named Winchester Hospital's Employee-of-the-Month for December, earning a P.E.E.R. (Pace-Setting Employees Earn Recognition) Award.

Gonsalves has worked for Winchester Hospital for 20 years in the engineering department.

In presenting the award, James Higgins, vice president or administration commended Gonsalves for being a dedicated employee who is "always willing to provide assistance and expertise to any request for service regarding maintenance and always with a smile."

Among the prizes he received as P.E.E.R. Award winner were a check for $200, a season lottery ticket and the use of a reserved parking place.

P.E.E.R. Award winners are nominated and selected by their co-workers.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

New 'Fat Magnet' Diet Pill Guarantees Fast Weight Loss

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

No Dieting—Eat Normally

There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body

The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested.

Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.

Pills Do All the Work

According to the doctors, the fat-magnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs. It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public

Senators have three weeks off before they reconvene for the 1988 session. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) is spending his break touring his district. Thursday, Jan. 7, between visits to Ipswich, Burlington High School, and hearings on the Pilgrim Power plant, he addressed the North Suburban Chamber of Commerce January luncheon at the Ramada Inn in Woburn.

The local and national press were discussing his actions in December that threatened the existence of the Boston Herald, New York Post and Boston's Channel 25. Several people at the luncheon also had strong opinions about his stands on national defense spending. And health-care issues might have raised lively debate. The senator chose instead to sidestep all of these and talk about economics.

At a pre-luncheon news session, the senator restated his opposition to cross-ownership of media and encouraged Rupert Murdoch, who owns both newspapers, to keep his New York newspaper as he kept the Boston Herald. He commented he understands there are purchasers for the Post, and said, "I am not prepared to adjust my position on this matter," but indicated he is willing to discuss his December decisions concerning the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) with Sen. Patrick Moynihan, who publicly expressed displeasure with Kennedy's actions.

During lunch, the senator talked with executives from area defense contractors, officers from Hanscom Air Force Base, officers of the North Suburban Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. Robert Wise, president of Lahey Clinic. During his post-luncheon remarks, he expressed pleasure at seeing Wise, his physician following a near-fatal plane crash 23 years ago and a fellow trustee of Lahey Clinic who, he said, "shares my philosophy about health care."

Kennedy praised area business for its role in the revitalization of the Northeast region. He noted confidence in skills and an attitude of cooperation between public and private sectors has made this area the "envy of so many other states," reversing earlier high unemployment and encouraging traditional industries to remain in the Frost Belt rather than move south to Sun Belt locations.

Then, citing John F. Kennedy's statement that the most important social policy is a sound economy, he said the next presidential nominee must have a firm understanding of economic issues if our nation is to continue to thrive. He commented that the Federal Reserve practice of purchasing dollars to provide monetary stability will keep the economy on a precarious edge. Any dollar slippage resulting in heightened ability to participate in international trade will be accompanied by dangerously higher interest rates.

Next he attacked the concept of a unified national budget, stating that national trust funds, which could carry trillion dollar surpluses in the 1990s, must not be used to fund deficits. He warned they would be totally depleted by 2040 and said their use only "misleads the future generations."

Moving to international issues, Kennedy stated that economic, rather than military, issues are the root of our presence in the Persian Gulf. First he stated that our military forces are in the area to maintain the flow of oil and our allies require rather than to maintain open navigation. Now that our allies share this task, he feels we can reduce our presence there from 33 ships to a more reasonable number.

He went on to say that the U.S. wants to end the Iran-Iraq war because economic stability is vital to our interests. The politics of the region are so complicated, he noted, that we cannot logically support any one country on any issue without offending allies we welcome on others. In order to achieve our primary objective, to limit the Soviet presence in the area, we must simplify the situation.

Finally, comparing the United States with the Soviet Union in light of the recent summit meetings, Kennedy expressed great respect for Mikhail Gorbachev, noting he is the first educated, non-military-trained leader of his nation. He cited recent actions to establish direct discussions, bypassing lengthy negotiations, as evidence of Gorbachev's increasing control and command. Kennedy stated his conviction that the next President must be "tireless in trying to challenge the Soviets," asserting that once the Soviets are economically managed the Chinese will follow easily.

Kennedy's remarks were received without comment or disapproval from his audience. After courteous handshakes and pictures with local dignitaries, he was off to his next stop in Plymouth and his audience returned to their businesses.

Housing board to review plans

chairman of the HPB, said one developer, Ronald Scippa, has already contacted him to set up a meeting with the board to present plans for the Cross Street complex. But Schmitt said he hoped to have a list of criteria in hand before meeting with any developers.

The board also voted to ask real estate developers for a well-prepared set of plans, including drainage design, unit designs and other materials, when they meet with the HPB. This will permit the partnership board to make presentations to other town boards in an organized fashion.

"It is our function to assist the other boards," Vice Chairman Gerald Polcari said, "to make sure they get their process down straight."

There was a proposal by the HPB to send a member to appropriate boards to give input about each developer's plans. Rosenweign asked if the board's job description included recommendations to other boards. Schmitt answered, "We are mandated to recommend."

The HPB submitted a grant to the Executive Office of Communities and Development for consulting services to assist with proposals. The grant was denied. According to Schmitt the board will pursue the request further.

Member David Carter also discussed the nature of comprehensive permits, which override local zoning and allow flexibility in building. According to Carter the permit has become more stringent recently and developers have to work with the town to get the approvals necessary to have a comprehensive permit accepted.

"It is a lengthy process and a lot of material has to be provided," Carter said. According to Carter the cost for such plans could be as much as $100,000, including the architectural drawings and other fees.

Once approved the permit is good indefinitely. Impacts on traffic, schools and the environment have to be evaluated as well as unit designs, site plans, preliminary design and utilities.

A comprehensive permit does not however override building permits or conservation laws. When asked what was considered acceptable in a comprehensive permit, Carter said, "The town is pretty much in the driver's seat." All abutters of any of the proposed sites have to be notified of the permit and the project.

Another issue brought before the board by Rosenweign was the need to ensure the intrinsic value of the community. Rosenweign stated, "The standard of living will be different than the surrounding area, children won't have yards."

She said she hoped the proposed site on Cross Street would blend with Leonard Beach and Aberjona River aesthetically. She wants to try to keep the same quality of life for the residents of subsidized housing as in the surrounding area. She stated that any building the board approves should be "something we can all be proud of and meets the needs of the people that will be living there."

Markey defends positions

States has become embroiled in disputes it cannot resolve without popular support in each country. Some in the audience accused him of being duped by our enemies and acting as an envoy for them, but many expressed the opinion that he had been an envoy for peace in that region.

Markey stressed his conviction that the United States must reduce its efforts to deal with global military and economic issues. "We cannot fight economic and military battles simultaneously," he said.

Markey said that our nation's ability to protect the globe, allowing other nations to develop strong economies, threatens to force our country into second-class economic status and ultimately affect our survival.

As a final challenge, Markey told his audience, "All the guns in the world can't guarantee that your economic partners will trade with you."

Dole comes to Winchester

senator from Kansas outlined his political agenda and told the audience about his humble background. Emphasizing his experience in Congress and understanding of government, he focused on the domestic issues that would impact the voting blocs present — senior citizens and white upper-middle-class families.

"I've been someone who's made a difference," the Senate minority leader said, listing the Reagan tax cut of 1981 and the 1983 Social Security package as some of his accomplishments in Congress. He particularly noted his bi-partisan effort on the Social Security bill that kept the program from going broke, crediting the work he did with liberal Democratic Sen. Patrick Moynihan (D-N.Y.) as saving the program.

Dole pointed out that the Reagan tax cut "probably provided tax relief for some working people in this room." Although he regularly repeated Reagan platitudes, Dole said he would bring a change in management style to the White House. "Instead of sending an aide, I'd go to see [Congress] myself," he said.

First on his own agenda is reducing the federal deficit, Dole told the crowd. "I think the American people can accept a spending freeze," he declared, proposing that the 1989 budget be identical to that of '88 except for programs affecting low-income groups such as Aid to Families with Dependent Children. "It would save $50 billion in one year, and it would send the signal around the world that we're serious about reducing the deficit... That's one thing we haven't come to grips with in seven years."

But, Dole added, "We don't fix [the deficit] by raising taxes. I don't get many letters asking me, 'Bob, can you raise my taxes?'" he quipped. "We wanted to lower taxes and we did it. I'm not going to change the tax rates."

Dole also addressed the need for long-term health care for senior citizens that would provide more care options to the middle and lower classes. He mentioned the demand for federal initiatives in day care as well, and then went on to education.

"Looking forward in education, we need to get back to basics," he said. "There'll be a lot of jobs in 10 to 15 years because the young are not qualified for them." Dole underscored this point again later when he was asked a question about education. He also advocated better pay for teachers — "the most precious commodity we have" — if they are doing a good job.

But Dole said he does not favor any more spending in education than there is now. "We don't want the federal government taking over local [responsibilities]... The money we spend is considerable."

Using his now-familiar "I'm one of you" strategy, Dole related his rural upbringing in Russell, Kan. "I'm proud of my background. I have small town values... My grandparents were farmers who went broke and went on welfare. I'm a real American. I can sit in the Oval Office knowing the people out there." He promised that he would "never get so big and powerful that I forget my roots and stop thinking about the real people who just want to make a living, pay their taxes, educate their kids."

Other remarks characteristic of his campaign were Dole's repeated references to his wife, Elizabeth, the former Secretary of Transportation. "I'm sorry Elizabeth is not here. I know many of you came to see her, not me... She's the best thing I've got going for me."

Dole praised the other presidential candidates, attacking them only indirectly while presenting his own strong points. He did not point any barbs at his archrival for the Republican nomination, Vice President George Bush, though he did note that he has taken a 15-point lead over Bush in Iowa. Dole still lags behind Bush in the Northeast. His one reference to Gov. Michael Dukakis, a Democratic Presidential candidate, brought boos, hisses and jeers from his supportive audience.

Stith speaks at church

ture, from the board room to the broom closet."

Dashun Davis, a resident of the A Better Chance (A.B.C.) house, said that Stith "addressed problems in our society today. Our government should definitely look at them. Stith was inspirational, informative and very articulate."

"I liked his challenge to go out with open hands and minds, his focus on justice within our own groups. Each one of us belongs to the same kingdom," said Sister Rose Marie of St. Eulalia's Church.

Roger Sudbury, from the Unitarian Church, said that Stith "was a dynamic speaker. He put the subject in perspective and dealt with public issues as well as integration in the public spheres."

When the Rev. Jesse Jackson announced his intention to run as a candidate for the President of the United States, he asked Stith to become leader of his Chicago-based educational agency, PUSH, People United to Save Humanity. Stith declined, and has created an organization in Boston called ONE, Organization for a New Equality.

This organization is "devoted to issues of economic policy," Stith said. A focus of the campaign is "to keep issues of employment opportunity on the front burner."

Following Stith's address, those present broke into small discussion groups for the purpose of thinking through ways Winchester might move from charitable acts to altering the structures that perpetuate injustice.

David Purdy, a Methodist minister, introduced Rev. Stith. "Stith is active," he said, "and cares for the religious community and for the wider community." Stith has long been a spokesperson for human justice issues on the urban scene.

The Rev. John Bishop, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, chaired the sub-committee that planned the event. Marilyn Poole, education director for St. Eulalia's parish, led singing during the course of the evening.

The talk by Stith followed a pot-luck supper.

ing the town's $200,000 stabilization fund for balancing the budget. "I think that should be used only for emergencies," Schmitt said. He said he would favor increased user fees, however, because of increased costs.

Challenging Lombardi's view on Proposition 2½ was School Committee Chairman William Jervey, who spoke on the impact of the potential cuts to the school department. "A 2½ percent increase is lower than the inflation rate has been in my lifetime... I don't believe [Prop 2½] has worked. It appeared to work because it was stealing from the future," Jervey said with emotion.

Maurer explained the effect the cuts would have on some of the town departments such as police, fire and public works in response to a question on how the loss of $1.2 million would affect the day-to-day operation of the town.

He then reflected that "we've [also] become accustomed to the services the town provides, such as Town Day, which are really nonessential... but are the types of things you like, that make the quality of life such a positive experience here. It's really a quality of life issue," he concluded.

When a stand-up vote was put to those present, 49 favored the selectmen voting to put the general override on a referendum ballot. Six voted against the override. In the next vote, 40 stood to show their approval of a debt exemption override only while none voted against it.

Olsen saw Reeb get killed

an awful sound. Jim just fell to the ground," Olsen said.

Within 36 hours, Reeb was dead. Miller was kicked and slugged. Olsen was virtually unharmed. "Reeb's death prompted considerable outcry."

The incident of the slaying of a white minister led to the eventual passing of the Voting Rights Bill.

The bill allows federal registrars, rather than local officials, to preside over voting when there is evidence of biased voting patterns. The bill, according to Olsen, "has dramatically changed the shape of politics in the south."

"James Reeb simply wanted to help overcome injustice and better people's lives. He wanted to take direct action, not just talk about it or influence other people to be more caring," Olsen said. "He chose to take a stand." The three men who attacked them were found not guilty.

Since Selma, the Senate has "moved substantially in racial issues. There is much greater acceptance of black and white people living together," Olsen said. "We seem to have come a long way in 30 years, but 'there's far to go yet in economic and racial equality.'" Olsen mentioned the problem of homelessness and noted that it has gotten worse.

Olsen said his and Reeb's message to us is to acknowledge "the crucial importance of focusing concern, of taking action, of doing something other than feel."

"Speaking up, engaging people in issues, willing to go against prevailing prejudices or cultural views, standing in a protest line, it's all part of a piece. The shift from concern to action, it's a great dividing line."

Land use discussed

trast to the housing authority. "Our mission is to maintain open space and acquire more." Two years ago the commission identified six parcels of land for open space. Now, there are 12 left.

"We have to have a balance between open space and housing," Vreeland said. "The more densely populated the town, the more we need open space."

"I don't believe we should give up any of our open space," Selectman Francis Sopper said. He suggested that the Conservation Commission come to the selectmen with a proposal to purchase Horn Pond Brook Road. "That's where the open space is," he said.

Planning Board Chairman Maryann McCall-Taylor said the town has a long-range land use plan already — the zoning bylaws. "The zoning map gives you a fair idea of what the town will look like in 10 years," McCall-Taylor said.

School Committee Chairman William Jervey told the hearing that the school department had done a study of the land it controlled. Jervey said the committee would only consider relinquishing jurisdiction over a portion of the land at the Lynch Elementary School.

League of Women Voters member Debbie Holland said the league had done a two-year study on the issue and found that planned was "very unfocused" and "largely after the fact." The LWV will make the findings of the study available to the town through two public meetings. They will also be published in the Star.

Selectman Thomas Schmitt, who also chairs the Housing Partnership Board, said that board will try to accomplish the dual goals of creating affordable housing and retaining open space. Its first task, already in the works, is to create procedures and criteria for prospective developers. Schmitt advocated town staffing to help with land-use and housing planning.

Sand dunes white with snow

Winter on the Cape is special

The sand dunes were white with snow, the color of the ocean a lapis blue. Late in the afternoon on a recent winter's day, there was some activity just off the Chatham shore. Four boats appeared to be hurriedly heading into the harbor, followed by the ubiquitous gulls, who in spite of the cold, continue to scavenge and follow the boats, knowing that later, there will be food for them.

The other boats in the water

Boat holds a silent winter vigil off shore and memories of a summer volley ball game fade into the snow.

proceeded slowly to some distant port or simply sat still at anchor, dotting the flat blue landscape with colors and dark angles.

In planning a winter weekend, most people think north, downhill skiing and the apreski life. Cape Cod is not a place to plan to visit in the winter, unless snow covered beaches and crunchy morning walks in the crisp, clean air sound appealing.

The Chatham Bars Inn, which looks from a hill onto Pleasant Bay, has something special to offer the winter traveler. Completely restored to its early 1900's splendor with a tasteful contemporary update, the Inn takes the visitor back in time, when vacations were truly leisurely and life was slower all around. Crackling fireplaces, white wicker furniture with brightly colored pillows, and deep comfortable couches greet the visitor upon entering the grand lobby. There are, indeed, many places open on the Cape in the winter, surprising as it may sound. Chatham Bars Inn is one of the more unusual.

From fresh shrimp cocktail to poached salmon to Corvoisier by the fire, an evening at the Inn is nothing but delightful. And a long uninterrupted sleep in the unfamiliar, but comforting silence, broken only by the soft sounds of the ocean, appropriately crowns a jewel of an evening.

Morning brings the unmitigated pleasure of watching, from the warmth of the bed, the sun rise over the sleeping ocean. The air outside is soft and smells of sweet salt.

After a lobster omelette breakfast and three cups of hot strong coffee enjoyed alone in the exquisite dining room of polished silver and intricately folded napkins, this guest set out to further explore the wintery wand that is Cape Cod.

For the robust exercise seekers, there are miles of snow-covered golf courses (and beaches, too, if you prefer) on which to cross country ski. Ice Ice fishing is a popular winter sport on Cape Cod.

Brambles make a pattern in the snow.

Mystery on Martha's Vineyard

Guests are invited to the Point Way Inn on Martha's Vineyard for a Murder Mystery Party, scheduled to take place the weekend of Feb. 5. Each participant is assigned the role of a character and can play that role as sedately or as outrageously as he or she wishes. There's no script and lots of room to improvise.

Point Way Inn is on the corner of Main St. and Pease's Point Way in Egartown. Full ferry service is available to Martha's Vineyard from Wood's Hole throughout the winter. Call 627-8633 for more information.

What to Do

Seagulls survive the winter by spending time with the fishermen.

fishing is another popular winter sport on the Cape. Visits to the Cape Cod Light House, the Chatham weather station, the Chatham village stores are all within a few minutes of the Inn. Or just spend an afternoon in a cozy chair by the fire, with a good book, a letter to write and a cup of hot cocoa.

A slow drive to Provincetown from Chatham takes about a half hour. Once in P-Town, nothing much is open, except the churches, surrounded by the cars of the devout. On the road into town a snow-touched tree is outlined against a white clapboard house with a mansard roof, its white picket fence a broken line surrounding the yard of snow.

On the dock, fishermen unload the catch of the day, the only signs of movement in the village, so choked with humans on a typical August afternoon. No place open for coffee today. Provincetown is taking a much needed hibernation.

The Beach House Grille back in Chatham, a restaurant situated directly on the water, is a popular place for Sunday brunch and its spicy Mexican omlette adequately provides the energy necessary for the two-hour drive back to Boston.

The snow on the evergreens in the middle of route 6 looks like melted sugar on a pastry. The branches unusually loaded with snow are heavy and touch the ground. The ice on the trees sparkles in the afternoon sun and makes the drive home seem dreamlike.

Plenty of time to sleep, relax, quiet places to explore, good food to eat, comfortable corners in which to read, write or just sit and think. A rejuvenating weekend on Cape Cod.

No one has to shovel the snow from this Provincetown fishing boat.

Chatham Bars Inn is celebrating its first winter season with a special vacation offer. For a minimum stay of two consecutive nights on the American Plan, anytime between now and April 30, guests will receive a gift certificate for two free nights on the European plan, to be used during that same time period.

For more information on this unique offer or to find out more about the Chatham Bars Inn, call 945-0096.

Indians lived on Cape Cod

The ancient name for Chatham was Monomoyick which referred to that tribe of the Wampanoags who flourished on Cape Cod and the Islands. The name survives today as Monomoy Island which belongs now to the Massachusetts Audubon Society. In 1712, the town was officially incorporated and the name was changed to Chatham.

Although the Vikings are purported to be the first white men to see this land, it is known that Samuel de Champlain anchored in what is now called Stage Harbor in 1606. He named the harbor Port Fortune, but it was later named Stage Harbor after the stages (or ladders) that were used by Indians in the drying of fish. At nearby Taylor's Neck, Champlain had his "encounter with the savages" and here was shed the first blood in all New England in conflict between Europeans and Indians.

The Pilgrims made frequent trips to Cape Cod to trade with the Indians. The great friend of the Pilgrims, Tisquantum, or Squanto, died in this area on one such trip acting as guide for Governor Bradford in 1662. His exact burial place is not known.

In 1782, during the Revolutionary War, Chatham was the scene of Cape Cod's only naval engagement. A British privateer quietly sailed into the harbor and attempted to seize several boats. The attack was unsuccessful as it was turned away by fire from the local militia. A naval air station was established in Chatham during World War I. It was located on the present site of the Eastward Ho Country Club.

A seaplane from this base engaged an enemy submarine which eventually made good its escape. This same submarine later sank several barges in the town of Orleans. These two engagements are the only actual combat that took place in the United States during World War I.

Baby Steps at TheaterWorks

TheaterWorks opens its season with the Boston area revival of Deborah Fortson's Baby Steps, a remarkable solo performance. Baby Steps is a unique mime-performance piece, in which Ms. Fortson tells the stories of four generations of her family.

Performances are Jan. 21-23 and 28-30, Thursday through Saturday evenings, at 8 p.m., and at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 30. Tickets are $10 for Fridays and Saturdays; $6 for the matinee performance; Thursday nights are "pay what you can" — all donations accepted. Please note that professional daycare will be provided for the matinee performance. Baby Steps will be shown at The Performance Place, 277 Broadway, Somerville. Call 623-5510 for reservations.

Opera Company opens season

The Opera Company of Boston, under the artistic direction of Sarah Caldwell, will open their season with Cherubini's Medee on Jan. 22, and continue for three additional performances on Jan. 24, 27 and 31. Jan. 24 and 31 are Sunday matinee performances.

The opera will feature the English dramatic soprano Josephine Barstow, making her OCB debut, with Boston's Jeanne Ommerle also in the cast.

Caldwell has commissioned the noted Greek jeweler, Ilias Lalounis, to design Medee's jewels and the American sculptor Jon Gardella will create a Greek temple for the set, as well as a French opera drape or scenic drop. Medee is a French opera and its composer, Cherubini, was the first director of the Paris Conservatory. In preparation, Caldwell has access to musical material used at the premiere of Medee in 1797.

The season will also include Dead Souls, a music drama by Rodion Shchedrin based on the satiric comedy by Gogol. The plot, according to Caldwell, concerns the "ultimate tax shelter." Dead Souls will run on March 16, 20, 25 and April 3.

Part of a Boston-wide Russian Festival planned for March, Dead Souls will have a joint Boston-Moscow cast with 13 singers from the OCB performing with a like number from the Bolshoi Opera. Sets and costumes by Val Leventhal will be constructed in Moscow. Caldwell first met Leventhal when he worked with the late Walter Felsenstein in East Berlin. In the early 1970s, Felsenstein came to Boston to lecture at MIT and saw several OCB productions.

For Dead Souls, the Bolshoi Opera will send a music coach to the Hub to work with the OCB singers. Shchedrin and his wife, prima ballerina Maya Plisetskaya, are also expected to come to Boston for the festival.

What's Healthy?

Cocaine can kill

There's been a lot of talk lately about cocaine, but is it really that dangerous? Some answers in today's edition of Family Health.

I cannot overemphasize how lethal cocaine is. Cocaine has for some reason enjoyed something of a romantic reputation. It was the illegal drug of choice for rich, supposedly sophisticated people, who seemed to think it wasn't too dangerous, at least not compared to drugs such as heroin.

But the hard facts are that cocaine is not safe and it never has been, and cocaine use is no longer confined to the rich; the National Institute on Drug Abuse says that about five million Americans use cocaine regularly, and tragically, many of the users are children in high school and even grade school. The popularity of cocaine has in part been due to its dropping price.

Cocaine is one of the most lethal drugs available. In addition, it is addictive, and it only takes one experience with cocaine to kill you. It was reported that when cocaine killed basketball star Len Bias, it was the first time he had used cocaine. But cocaine can kill even an experienced user, suddenly and without warning.

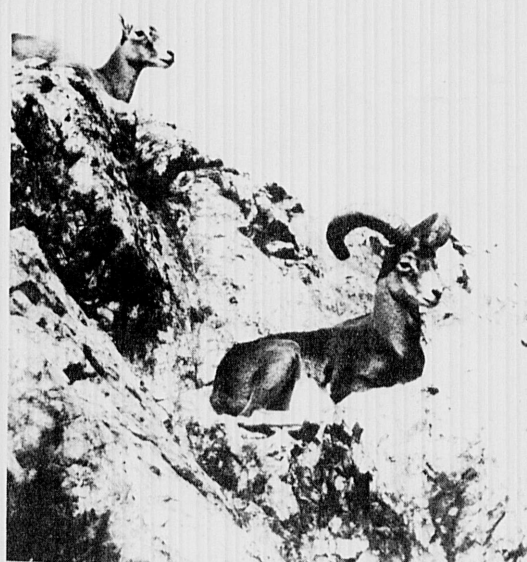

In both the Bias incident and the case involving football player Don Rogers, the cause of death was cocaine-induced heart failure. As is often true in this kind of tragic incident, neither of the two had any history of heart disease.

Cocaine alters the heart rate and causes rhythm irregularities. High doses can have direct toxic effects on the heart muscle itself, producing cardiac arrest. The so-called high that cocaine delivers is sometimes simply too much for the heart to handle. Even people with healthy hearts are taking a risk. Indeed, both Rogers and Bias were superb physical specimens, but they were no more immune to the lethal effects of the drug than anybody else.

The moral of all this is simple: if you don't use cocaine, don't start; if you do, get help immediately. Your family physician will be able to direct you to such help.

Over the long term, I think the best way to combat drug abuse is to change people's attitudes. We must overcome the widespread belief in our society that the use of drugs, including alcohol, is an effective way to deal with problems and achieve certain moods. We cheat ourselves when we adopt this attitude and we indirectly teach our children the same message.

There's more than one litter problem in your neighborhood.

They never asked to be born. But their mother's owners figured the local animal shelter would surely find them good homes.

They didn't realize that most of the 13.5 million unwanted animals put to death each year are not strays. They're puppies and kittens born in nice homes like yours that have to be killed to make room for more.

Having your pet spayed or neutered is the only way to reduce the sad number of ownerless dogs and cats destroyed this year. It will also increase your pet's chances of living a longer and healthier life. That responsibility is yours alone. You'll never stop your pets from acting naturally. But if you love them, you'll have them fixed.

Talk to your veterinarian. Or contact the MSPCA for a free information packet on birth control for your pet.

comes into operation automatically when the engine's cold. A cold engine needs a richer gas-air mixture to get started and to run even-up, and the choke is the valve that makes richer mix-warms up to its normal choke can get out of adjust-malfunction is sticking on and Planners say capital budget cut to the bone

By ROGER L. KAY
Star Editor

Winchester's capital budget, a potential target for annihilation in the town manager's Option A balanced budget, won't even maintain the town's plant and equipment at proposed levels, according to Capital Planning Committee Chairman Peter Van Aken.

Van Aken presented the committee's annual recommendations at Monday night's selectmen's meeting, and using the analogy of a camel, explained the dilemma of capital planning.

The camel, he explained is big and shaggy and comes to the camp for food. The tribe, not having enough to go around, turns the camel back into the desert to fend for itself.

The camel, being tough, survives for another year, but comes back even hungrier and (here the metaphor breaks down) bigger than before. The delay of capital improvement programs, which saves money in the current year, can result in larger costs over the long haul, Van Aken explained.

"The levels we are recommending are inadequate to maintain the capital plant of this town," he reiterated. "That is important to emphasize this year, when it is very tempting to turn away the camel."

"We encourage you not to balance the budget by scaling down this program. It's already scaled down," he told the gathered selectmen.

Out of $4,829,800 the committee received in requests for fiscal year 1989, it forwarded $1,577,600 to the selectmen with positive recommendations. (Please see CAPITAL, page 22)

Selectman shows ways around 2 1/2

By ROGER L. KAY

The capital budget presented to the selectmen Monday night, in its most expansive version, makes use of funds that Winchester does not have under the current levy limit. In order to clarify the town's options, Selectman Thomas Schmitt provided the rest of the board with a succinct summary of Proposition 2 1/2, its terms and definitions, and methods to override it.

The town is facing a projected deficit of $1,271,000 for fiscal 1989. The "tax levy" revenues the town actually raises through the property tax, is projected at $22,860,000. The rest of the $32,976,000 in revenues is expected to come from state aid, excise tax, fees and free cash.

Total expenses are projected at $34,247,000. The town manager is required by the town's bylaws to submit a balanced budget. He has pledged to do so, even if all the difference comes out of program and personnel cuts.

However, the town has the option to raise revenues, or as Schmitt said, stepping up to the plate, "raise taxes," with an override of Proposition 2 1/2, a state law constraining local tax increases.

While the board listened to Schmitt's lecture with equanimity, after the presentation Selectman (Please see OVERRIDES, page 22)

Selectmen seek package before any Loop sale

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

The Woburn Loop Committee will proceed tonight on plans to sell that property to the same abutters with whom the town was working before fall's Town Meeting.

At last week's committee meeting, the first since November, Daniel Lagatta, a member of the Russell Hill Group, said that developer had not changed its plans and was awaiting a decision from the town. Russell Hill plans to build a 20,000-square-foot office building. Their share of the Loop property would go for parking.

Attorney Paul Amico, representing the Russo family trust, said his clients had revised their plan for the land. Instead of 28 condominium units, Russo plans to divide the land into 13 plots and build townhouse-like duplexes.

Amico said Russo changed his plans because there is no guarantee he would get the zoning change he needs to build the condos. The Russo land is zoned general residential, but would need a change to multiple family residential for the condominiums.

Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer said he spoke to Henry Quill, attorney for the third major abutter, Charles Ferrari. Quill said Ferrari is still interested in buying the piece of the Loop he negotiated for and will attend tonight's meeting.

Lagatta questioned the reasoning behind holding up the sale of all the (Please see LOOP, page 22)

Handicapped woman beats the Boston Celtics on the parquet

Maureen Winn of West Chardon Road was instrumental in the passage of a bill through the State Legislature that allows handicapped citizens access to the Boston Garden.

Winn calls this a victory for Boston's handicapped sports fans, and a special victory for herself. She has suffered from multiple sclerosis (MS) for 27 years and is virtually paralyzed by it.

The bill was passed in 1974 with help from the Architectural Barrier Board, but it took 13 years for the law to be enforced through a judicial decision.

The case was brought to the Suffolk Superior Court last Nov. 3. Under the new Boston Garden seating arrangement, "16 spaces with unobstructed views have been made available for handicapped people in the 15,320-seat Garden, which required the removal of 33 permanent seats," according to Ed Quill of the Boston Globe.

The 33 seats constitute 1 percent of the Garden's seating.

Owners of the Boston Celtics had argued that they would suffer "irreparable injury" if they could not sell the 33 tickets to last year's ticket holders. Judge Thomas Morse Jr., the presiding justice in the case, didn't buy their argument.

"We didn't want our seats for free, we just wanted our 1 percent," said Winn.

Winn, who wrote letters and said she was at the State House every day for 15 months during the push for this legislation, said "The judge found for the handicapped, but it should have been done 13 years ago."

According to Robert Williams, executive director of the non-profit Boston Center for Independent Living, there were two main issues that prompted the complaints that led to the passage of the bill.

Handicapped people were not allowed to move freely within the stadium, he said. They were jostled around, and at the 1974 Celtics playoff game, Winn was denied admission to the Garden because of her handicap, according to Williams. "It was time to address the issue," he said.

Winn spoke to Rep. Ray Flynn, now the mayor of the City of Boston, that evening 13 years ago, but "he just kept quiet," said Winn. "I was at the Celtics playoff in 1974. Fire marshals were kicking us (handicapped people) out," said Winn. Handicapped people were forced to sit in the aisles because there were no other provisions for them, and this was a fire hazard, she said.

According to Winn, "Flynn knew about the problem, but never got involved." After a lot of complaints, the Architectural Access Board got involved and "we got our 1 percent," said Winn.

Winn is an avid sports fan. "Living in Boston makes a sports fan out of you," she said. She believes that the Garden's facilities are still not (Please see WINN, page 22)

Hospital faces financial crisis

Loubier says deficit will deepen further, state help is needed

By ROGER L. KAY
Star Editor

Like the town government and the school system, Winchester Hospital has it back against the financial wall. The town's largest employer, according to Hospital President Eugene Loubier, faces a projected operating deficit of $1.5 million in fiscal 1988. The institution lost $650,000 last year.

Although the hospital received an infusion of cash from the state last Friday, it will need a lot more to avoid serious fiscal problems in the coming years, according to hospital administrators.

Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh presented the hospital's Chief Financial Officer and Treasurer Stephen Lavery with a check for $147,865 Friday, a Medicaid payment owed the hospital since 1985. The payment, part of a $40 million clearing of the books, was released by Gov. Michael Dukakis last week. Hospitals that render Medicaid services are normally reimbursed through the state after care is given.

"That's not going to solve the problem," said hospital President Eugene Loubier. "It's minuscule. Fortunately or unfortunately, we don't have a lot of Medicaid cases."

The problem to which Loubier referred is the worsening state of the hospital's general finances. The desperation of administrators reached such a feverish pitch that hospital bigwigs called a "Legislative Breakfast" Jan. 14 to pressure area state representatives for funds.

In fiscal 1987 the hospital lost $650,000 from its operations. Income of $2,630,000 from the endowment was offset by a one-time loss associated with the hospital's bonding process, the rollover of old bonds and issuance of new ones to fund the new birthing unit. The resulting deficit was just under $600,000.

This year, Loubier says, the operating loss is projected at $1.5 million, a three-fold increase over last year.

Barring other extraordinary items, the loss will come out of the endowment's capital. Loubier estimates the endowment's worth to be about $10 million before the loss.

During the Jan. 14 breakfast, Loubier told attending state representatives, including Saltmarsh, that the expenditure of capital to finance operating losses, which are projected to widen, could not continue. "The bottom of the barrel is here," he said. "The system is choking us."

Loubier spoke of a "state of depression" in the Commonwealth's health care system that "does not exist anywhere else in this country."

He asserted that Winchester Hospital is "one of the lowest-cost hospitals in Massachusetts," but still cannot make ends meet.

A hospital spokesperson also at the meeting summarized, "The best health care system in the world is underfinanced."

Administrators asked legislators what could be done to obtain better financing for the hospital. The pleas were heard against a background of confusion as various bills clutter desks on Beacon Hill.

The House had been reviewing a stop-gap funding measure, H.6100, that would have provided reimbursement by the state to 42 "underfunded" hospitals, according to Lavery.

These hospitals were penalized when "the application of payment-for-care formulas based upon...cost...during [the] fiscal 1981 base-year...resulted in severe inequities" in relation to other hospitals in the Commonwealth, according to a document published by the Coalition of Underfinanced Hospitals.

H.6100 died with the old legislative year. At the same time, a Senate bill,

S.2164, was under consideration. This bill, a first try at universal health care, Rep. Timothy O'Leary of Stoneham called "ill advised."

O'Leary voiced scepticism about the intent of the bill because Dukakis is running for President. The legislator indicated that the hoopla surrounding the Senate bill, which was introduced by Dukakis allies, was for national consumption, and that the bill was not for the ultimate benefit of Massachusetts voters. "It's part of his political campaign," O'Leary said.

Legislators agreed that the Senate bill would adversely impact small businesses, which would be asked to pay the tab for coverage of their employees.

That bill also died on the floor, but Saltmarsh indicates that Dukakis has introduced a new version in the 1988 session.

Meanwhile, Winchester Hospital is trying to maintain high standards of health care on a shrinking budget. Health care is always given, Lavery told the gathered legislators. Whatever costs are not picked up by the patients or their insurance companies must be funded out of the hospital's pockets, he said.

With deficits like this year's, the hospital may not last through the '90s, according to hospital officials.

Muggia announces run for board re-election

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

With so many of her projects still up in the air, Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia has decided to stick around and see them through.

Muggia filed nomination papers for her re-election with the Registrar of Voters last week. She has served one term as selectman, including one year as chairman.

"I'm basically an issues and policy person," Muggia said. She said she has been able to accomplish some of the organizational goals she set for herself as chairman. These include running more efficient meetings and getting regular updates from other town boards and committees.

Muggia is particularly proud of the "rap sessions" she instituted for elected board chairmen and on the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority connection with town reservoirs.

If she is elected to another term, Muggia said she will try to consolidate the workload of the selectmen to keep it manageable. "I don't think anyone running for selectman should feel it would have a serious impact on their private or professional life," Muggia said.

Development and land use are also high on her priority list, she said.

Winchester made money on Oct. 19

By ROGER L. KAY
Star Editor

Winchester kept its head when others all about were losing theirs on "Black Monday." As the 508-point loss of the Dow Jones Industrial Average last Oct. 19 wiped out the fortunes of many, the value of the town's trust assets rose by 2 percent.

This fact was revealed in one of the commission reports the selectmen heard last Monday.

Robert Beattie, chairman of the Commission of Trust Funds, explained that on Grey Friday (Oct. 16) the funds' management bought a $100,000 of Treasury securities at 91. Within a (Please see SAVVY, page 22)

SAT, board exam scores down

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

Although Winchester students' college boards and advanced placement test scores went down overall from last year, they are still well above average, according to Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction David Ackerman.

The average verbal score on Scholastic Aptitude Tests in 1987 is 476 out of a possible 800 points, down from the 1985 high of 485. In 1986, the figure was 483.

The national average verbal score was 435.

On the quantitative, or math, section of the SAT, Winchester students averaged 514, down from last year's 521.

The national average on the math section is 476.

Ackerman said he believes the results of the SAT is "valuable in some ways." He added that parents and students should not over-value the test.

Although the high school is not in the business of helping students cram for the SATs, Ackerman said studying for the tests can help. "Students should study for SATs. It may not improve their scores, but the material is certainly worthwhile."

He also recommended that the math department incorporate some SAT-type math problems into homework assignments for 10 through 12 grade students. "The kinds of abilities tested on the SATs are important," Ackerman wrote in a report he presented to the School Committee Tuesday night, "and it would behoove our students to have the benefit of ongoing practice of the thinking strategies required."

The average combined score, 990, is impressive, Ackerman wrote, because 92 percent of Winchester seniors took the exam.

Scores on College Board Achievement Tests were down in seven of 10 subjects, but index scores were higher. The index is calculated by dividing the combined SAT score by the achievement score. It is a rough measure of achievement in relation to ability.

Advanced Placement test results also remained above average. On a scale of 1 to 5, 80 percent of the 110 test-takers scored a three or above; 55 percent earned a four or five.

Ackerman termed the physics results "fantastic" and praised the dramatic improvement in French test scores.

The number of one and two scores increased, with the low scores concentrated in American History. Ackerman said that statistic should improve with the addition of an honors level option for eleventh-grade students.

POLICE LOG

Sunday, January 24

At 12:26 a.m. police were dispatched to Cumberland Farms, 284 Main St., to investigate a report of loud, banging noises. When they arrived, officers saw two men standing in an alley behind the building. One they recognized, according to police reports.

When the pair saw the cruiser, police heard a loud, metallic clang. One man ran out to Swanton Street and then to Washington Street, where the officers reported losing him.

The other man ducked behind a car parked behind the building, where police found him and arrested him on charges of attempted breaking and entering, according to reports. He identified himself as a Washington Street resident.

Police checked the building and found a hole approximately 8 inches by 4 1/2 inches in the wood panel of the rear door. The officers said the damage could have been done with a thin, heavy object, according to police.

The officers also found signs that the lock cylinder had been pried in an attempt to remove it. A search of the grounds turned up a tire iron under the car that the Washington Street man hid behind, police said.

The officers then went to the Kendall Street home of the man they recognized. He was also arrested on charges of attempted breaking and entering, according to reports.

Saturday, January 23

Three Washington Street residents reported that the passenger side window of their cars had been smashed during the night, according to police.

Three cars on Main Street also had their windows smashed. One car belonged to a Magnolia resident, one to a Grove Street resident, one to a Stanhope, N.J. resident, police said.

One car stereo was reported missing and police noticed damage to the dashboard where a radio would have been, police said.

One of the Washington Street residents said she heard a car at 3:30 a.m. and looked out the window to see three teens get into an older, black Chevrolet with a missing muffler, according to police.

Wednesday, January 20

At 1:15 p.m. police responded to an alarm activation at Lorena Road.

When the officer arrived he saw footprints in the snow that were made by sneakers or walking shoes and followed them around the house, according to police reports.

The footprints led to an open window that had the screen cut out. At that point the officer called the station for help, police said.

Once the help arrived, the officer entered the house through the open window, which led into the bathroom. He then let the other officer in through the front door. The officers conducted a search of the house with no results, according to police.

The owner, who was not at home at the time, later told police he left the window open when he went to work. Nothing was missing from the home, police said.

NEWS NOTES

League broadcast explains running for local office

Starting this week, a Channel 19 cable-TV program "Don't Just Stand There — Run" will be airing. It will be shown many times until Feb. 11, the last day to take out nomination papers for the town election on March 29.

This program was especially produced for the Winchester League of Women Voters by Sandra Rodgers to inform people about all of the elected offices and how to run for them.

The program begins with Carolyn Ward, town clerk, who explains the mechanics of taking out nomination papers and filing financial reports.

Each elected office is then described: its term of office, the responsibilities, the frequency of meetings and what particular knowledge or experience might be helpful on the respective boards.

Not to be overlooked is the precinct-elected position of Town Meeting member, and Pat Wells speaks to the specifics of running and what that job entails — which is quite different from the others.

Noreen Arcari concludes the program with everything needed to know about managing a campaign.

Check the TV-19 program listing for date and time of airing.

League discusses land-use study

The League of Women Voters of Winchester is completing the second year of a two-year study of Long Range Land Use Planning in the town. This wide-ranging topic addresses issues tied to development, maintenance of open space, traffic patterns, parking, and water quality.

The study committee includes Marianne O'Brian, Debe Holland, Donna Mohr, and Sandy Rodgers. They have interviewed key town officials and elected representatives to better understand the current state of the planning process, and what can be done to improve it.

The study committee will present its findings and suggestions for possible future League action at two units to be held Thursday, Feb. 4 at 9:15 a.m. at the home of Harriet Dieterich, 154 Highland Ave. and Tuesday, Feb. 9, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Noor Spanjaard, 20 Sheffield Rd. The public is invited to attend. For information call President Candy Margles at 729-5600.

How To Say I Love You

According to legend, St. Valentine's Day was celebrated as a joyous festival in which the local people of England gathered for a drawing. Single or married, the person chosen was called a Valentine and was presented with a gift. Since precious stones were believed to possess an intelligence of a sort and were believed to have feeling and reflect moods, they quickly became a favorite gift.

Tying the expression of feelings to giving and receiving gemstones is a time-honored tradition. When you choose a gift you let your emotions guide you in selecting the present that will keep on saying how you feel towards that special person.

Tell your young child you love her this Valentine's Day with a heart-shaped charm. Later, she can express her love to your grandchild by passing your gift on. For your teenager, bracelets and bangles are gifts she will treasure.

Perhaps you've told the woman in your life you love her often, but have you given her the gentle caress of a lustrous pearl necklace and matching earrings? She would no doubt appreciate the style of a special "I love you" accompanying an amethyst pearl enhancer. Or, remind your valentine how special your years together have been by treating her with a ring set with diamonds — one for each year you've shared.

As for selecting a gift for a man, jewelry can be a wonderful surprise. Many men say they like the idea of a little jewelry, but they would never buy it for themselves. Tell that man you're proud of him and that you love him enough to give him a special gift. Some men are pleased with the blues of lapis or a rich looking black onyx set in either a ring, a tie tac or cuff links. Others prefer the more traditional signet ring which can be dressed up with diamonds if he desires. Perhaps a fashionable new watch would be more appropriate for him this year.

Make this Valentine's Day extra special by showing your love with a lasting gift of fine jewelry.

The corporate transfer is the best of all worlds, financially, that is. Many companies offer to buy, at a fair market value, the home of their transferred employee, or in some cases, to lend him or her (without interest charge) the equity in that home and manage the property after the family moves out. Manage usually means maintain it and pay mortgage installments, insurance and taxes until it is sold. Most companies also have a specified period of time during which they will pay living expenses while the family househunts and/or awaits closing.

If you are a selling transferee, therefore, you will know exactly what equity you have in your property as soon as the company finishes its fair-market-value appraisal. You will then know that the cash you'll need will be available for the closing date of the property you are about to buy.

If you are a due-to-be corporate transferee, why not give us a call? We can help you at both ends of the transfer. That's our specialty.

K of C honors Bishop Daily

Grand Knight Paul F. Stevenson of Winchester Council recently announced that the Massachusetts Knights of Columbus was launching its membership drive in honor of the new Supreme Chaplain Bishop Thomas V. Daily. "From his early years in the priesthood in Boston and later the Auxiliary Bishop of Boston, to his missionary work in Peru, to his service as Bishop of Palm Beach, Florida, Bishop Daily has tirelessly shared his giving spirit with the Church and his fellowman," continued Stevenson.

Bishop Daily succeeded Bishop Charles P. Greco of Alexandria, La., who died at age 92 on Jan. 20, 1987, after serving as supreme chaplain for 26 years. Bishop Daily is the second member of the episcopacy to become spiritual leader of the international Catholic family fraternal society comprised of 1.5 million members.

A native of Belmont, Bishop Daily graduated from Belmont High School and finished his theological studies at Saint John's Seminary in Brighton. On January 10, 1952, he was ordained a priest of the archdiocese of Boston at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross by Archbishop Richard J. Cushing. In 1960, Bishop Daily joined the Missionary Society of Saint James the Apostle and served in Peru for five years before returning to Boston for a pastoral assignment. It was during that time that the bishop developed and nurtured a deep love and commitment for the poor in South America. Later in his career, through the inspiration provided by His Holiness Pope John Paul II, he would co-found an organization by the name of "Por Cristo", along with his good friend and brother knight, Dr. Martin J. Dunn of Milton, to help the poor in Ecuador, Bolivia and Peru with medical assistance, equipment, and training of medical personnel.

High Rate Federally Insured Short-Term Investments

6-Month Certificate ($1,000 Minimum Deposit)
7.75% Annual Percentage Rate	8.03% Effective Annual Yield

There are distinct advantages to investing in a 6-Month Certificate at Winchester Savings Bank. You'll earn a high rate and have total peace of mind in knowing your deposits are federally insured up to $100,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). In addition to FDIC insurance, all portions of deposits in excess of $100,000 are insured to their full amount by the Deposit Insurance Fund of the Mutual Savings Central Fund, Inc. (DIFM), the insurer of excess deposits for state chartered savings banks in Massachusetts.

To open your high rate, risk-free investment, visit any office of Winchester Savings Bank, or call 729-2130. For rates on all our investment opportunities, call the Winchester RateLine at 721-0180.

The effective annual yield assumes principal and interest remain on deposit at the same rate for one year. Interest is computed daily and compounded monthly. There would be a substantial penalty should the Bank consent to early withdrawals.

CONTINUING EDUCATION/COMMUNITY SERVICES

SCHOOL NEWS

Vinson Owen staff completes self evaluation

The staff and administration of Vinson Owen School recently approved reports on the school's compliance with the standards of membership of the Committee on Public Elementary Schools of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

These standards reports, developed as part of the school's self-study in anticipation of an on-site visitation of peer professionals, indicate the school's perceptions of how it is meeting the standards of membership of the committee and highlight important aspects of the school such as curriculum, learning media services, student services, school staff, administration and financial support, school atmosphere, and pupil performance.

The approval of these reports completes the school's self-study in preparation for the on-site visitation. The visiting committee will be at the school on May 2, 1988.

The New England Association is a voluntary league of over 1,400 public and independent schools, colleges and universities, and vocational, technical and career institutions.

Town schools join NEASC

The New England Association of Schools and Colleges, Inc., the nation's oldest recognized regional accrediting association for schools and colleges, has officially expanded its operation with membership approval of a new Commission on Public Elementary Schools.

The commission became a reality at the association's recently conducted 102nd annual meeting. Close to 400 public schools (K-8) including Winchester's five elementary schools (Ambrose, Lincoln, Lynch, Francis J. Muraco, and Vinson-Owen), are now participating in the program that requires professionals who are selected and assigned by the association for on-site school visits.

Shelter furniture pick-up Saturday

The students of Mrs. Terri Lynch's fifth grade class at Lincoln School will sponsor a furniture pick-up on Saturday.

This event is part of a community service project sponsored by the class and the student council to support the Pawtucket Shelter in Lowell. The shelter, which houses seven homeless families in transition, is in need of bunk beds, bureaus, outdoor storage sheds, outdoor toys, etc.

Anyone able to donate such items please contact Mrs. Terri Lynch or Mrs. Laurie Kirby at 721-7017.

Fourth-graders vie for current events title

This year the fourth-graders at Lincoln School have been participating in a mini "College Bowl" series. Using questions that the students have written, four teams in each class compete in a three-week series to determine a class champion.

On the fourth week the winning team from each class goes head-to-head to determine the fourth grade champion.

Each week the children use the Scholastic News "Explorer" magazine as the basis for writing five current event questions.

IN addition, they assign point values to each of their questions. The questions are then used for regular, bonus and "Lighting Rounds."

Musical rocks WHS

Winchester High School will present the Ellie Greenwich musical, "Leader of the Pack", on March 3-5 in the High School auditorium.

Directed by J. Christopher Martin, this musical told through concert features 24 popular songs from the 1960's. Among the favorites are "Be My Baby," "Chapel of Love," "Da Doo Ron Ron," and, of course, the "Leader of the Pack." More than 80 students will sing and dance their way through the production.

The "Leader of the Pack Dancers," who are choreographed by Elizabeth Lee and Kim Lovins, are Paulie Barclay, Lisa Carlson, Mike Chen, Kathy Colson, John Gray, Doug Holt, "D" Hudgins, Kim Lovins, Suvendu Pal, Lesley Pedula, Laurie-

Jean Minniti, Eric Mortensen, Kathryn O'Conner, Kelly Scott, John Segota, and Stacey Smith.

Six solid gold groups lend their melodious voices: the "Do Whopettes" (Deanna Della Cioppa, Michelle Johnson and Kara Krajewski); the "Whang Bangs" (Susie Meserve, Laurie-Jean Minniti, Mike Chen and Jennifer Lee); the "No

second grade report

Lincoln second-graders have been making and eating colonial foods. With parental support and guidance, they made corn bread and butter, popcorn and flummery — a fruit pudding.

Also, each second-grader in Mary Connors' room has been researching a state of his or her choice and hopes to make a book to publish the findings.

Lincoln's first grade reports

The first-graders of Lincoln School have been involved in exploring some of the many topics for their "What In The World?" projects. They have shown special interest in the world around them, studying the land of the penguin and polar bears and waterways of the whales and frogs.

With the extensive use of library resources, they have created stories from their activities and learned a useful concept — mapping skills.

Nursery school
registration

Registration for the 1988-89 school year has begun for siblings of the Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School alumni. Parents of children whose brothers or sisters have attended the school should contact the school by Feb. 1 for enrollment information. The school is also accepted applications for new students on a limited basis.

Our pre-kindergarten (5-year-old class) presently has openings for two girls. For information call 729-8081.

Dr. William P. Castelli, director of the Framingham Heart Study, will be a featured speaker for seventh and eighth grade students at McCall Junior High School on Wednesday, Feb. 3, at 1:30 p.m. The students will hear his program entitled "Cholesterol Crusade," about fitness, health and heart disease. Dr. Castelli has spent more than 22 years collecting data and analyzing results of the Framingham Heart Study and has traveled across the country and around the world to lecture on his work.

Recently, math expert Steve Boettcher was a guest in Mrs. Dorr's seventh grade math classes. He demonstrated how math was used in making his wooden mobiles.

Bartlett School
registration

Registrations for Bartlett School, 40 Samoset Road, are now being accepted for September classes. Bartlett School was founded in 1933 by the mother of the present Director, Norine T. Casey. Mrs. Casey had been a Boston school teacher and when her husband was hospitalized, she opened a small class in her own home on Bartlett Avenue, Arlington. This house was a duplex and gradually most rooms became classrooms. After Norine T. Casey received her M.A. in education at Radcliffe she joined her mother at Bartlett School, where she taught first grade and gradually assumed the administrative role. In 1977 Miss Casey moved Bartlett School to Winchester, first to 83 Church Street and in 1981 to its present location on Samoset Road.

Bartlett School accepts children in kindergarten Class (age four), sub-primary Class (age five), and grades one through eight. Classes are kept small to promote personal attention. All Bartlett faculty have AB degrees and one third have MA degrees. Children are accepted after a personal interview with the director, and in the case of children transferring in the grades, after passing an admissions test. Bartlett School accepts children of any race, color or creed, and graduates of Bartlett School have been accepted to and succeeded in all the fine independent schools in our region as well as in the local public schools. This year an optional extended day program will be offered to kindergarten and sub-primary parents.

The curriculum at Bartlett is a traditional one, with students starting the study of French in grade four.

This year the Bartlett School has had particularly active after-school programs. On Thursday and Friday afternoons Computer Club meets. After school sports are popular on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, drama on Monday and Wednesday, cooking on Wednesday and Art Club on Thursday and Friday afternoons. Reading is taught with special stress on phonics in primary grades, required book reports and reading of Junior Great Books in upper grades. A student newspaper is published, frequently containing the best creative writing. Daily homework reinforces

COMMENT

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

I wish politics were a joke; they're funny enough

Like the first strong gusts heralding a coming storm, the hysteria surrounding this year's elections has picked up force in the last few weeks.

For politicians big and small, the trial by fire is heating up. Signs of vehemence are breaking out all over like smallpox.

Monday night CBS Anchorman Dan Rather came near fisticuffs with Republican Presidential hopeful George Bush. If noses were not bloodied, reputations were. How to avoid the lowest common denominator in today's political process?

Whip Saltmarsh has been seen around a lot lately. Could it be that he is thinking about his competition next fall?

Winchester has been a whistle stop recently for Ed Markey and Bob Dole, and Ted Kennedy was next door in Woburn not long ago. Does anybody have any pet projects they want porked through? Now would be as good a time as any to ask. This is the hour when they need you more than you need them. A little leverage never hurts in this life.

Reagan is not running, not unless you count seeking election to a respected spot in the history books. He does have a sort of emeritus look about him, though. Quack, quack.

Mark Lombardi has declared himself an issue candidate. A vote for him is a vote against overriding Proposition 2½. Will he be able to keep Chad Maurer from chip-sealing both Ware Road and Thompson Street? Somebody has to pay for the blacktop.

Seriously, though, Lombardi is that rarest of political animals, a man of principle. Contrasted with the arm-waving Democratic Presidential hopefuls, his position is as clear as the headwaters of the Aberjona, wherever they are.

Maybe there are too many of those Democrats. You need a score card to tell the candidates apart, and below the level of pure abstraction, no one knows what they stand for.

The political strategy of the late '80s involves not offending anyone in the off chance their voting pencil may slip and they end up putting the delicate dancer in office. Never mind trying to appeal to a specific constituency, a group whose banner is worth carrying through the hail of all manner of missiles. With mirrors the dancer can be all things to all people, at least until election day.

What a lack of political courage.

Lombardi, on the other hand, has political courage. Anybody who, when talking about Winchester's budget deficit in a public meeting, can say, "This isn't like the federal government. If you can't pay the taxes, they don't send you to Russia; you gotta go to Medford or Woburn," has political courage.

But seriously, folks, this waffling by most politicians combined with the hyper-focus of media attention creates bizarre effects. The other night Lee Hart sat there on 60 Minutes making no sense whatsoever about her husband's misfortune in getting caught at something that is really not news at all. More people commit adultery than vote.

Watching her up there was like listening to a bad violinist play at a school recital. I just wanted her to finish up quickly and not make any mistakes so bad she would throw her violin on the floor and burst into tears in front of everybody. It's downright embarrassing.

Meanwhile Gary is out there waving his arms around, saying something I can't quite hear. A fuzzy picture among fuzzy pictures. Please, somebody, pump up the volume.

A little real leadership would do no harm. But leadership is a complicated business in this anarchical democracy of ours.

For thousands of years the Chinese believed that the masses were ignorant and that consulting their opinion about anything would only lead to a mess. The emperor ruled by the "mandate of heaven," which loosely translated meant: as long as the people didn't riot, and it was known that the mandate of heaven did not last forever.

The daily business of governing was carried out by a meritocracy established through the rigorous examination system. To be a civil servant sometimes took 40 years of studying Confucius and the classics. The peasants owed loyalty to the rulers, and the rulers owed decent government to the peasants. And if the rulers got too greedy, they lost the mandate of heaven. Now that was a system built to last. Depending on how you count, dynasty followed dynasty for 2,000 to 4,000 years.

But all that fell apart at the end of the last century, and here in America even comedians can receive the mandate of heaven, witness our current President.

However, I saw an encouraging sign not long ago. A young man came into my office who was actually making less money than he could. Not dazzled by the glitter of material goods, he was looking for a way to pay back what he had received as a youth: a comfortable home, a good education, a loving family.

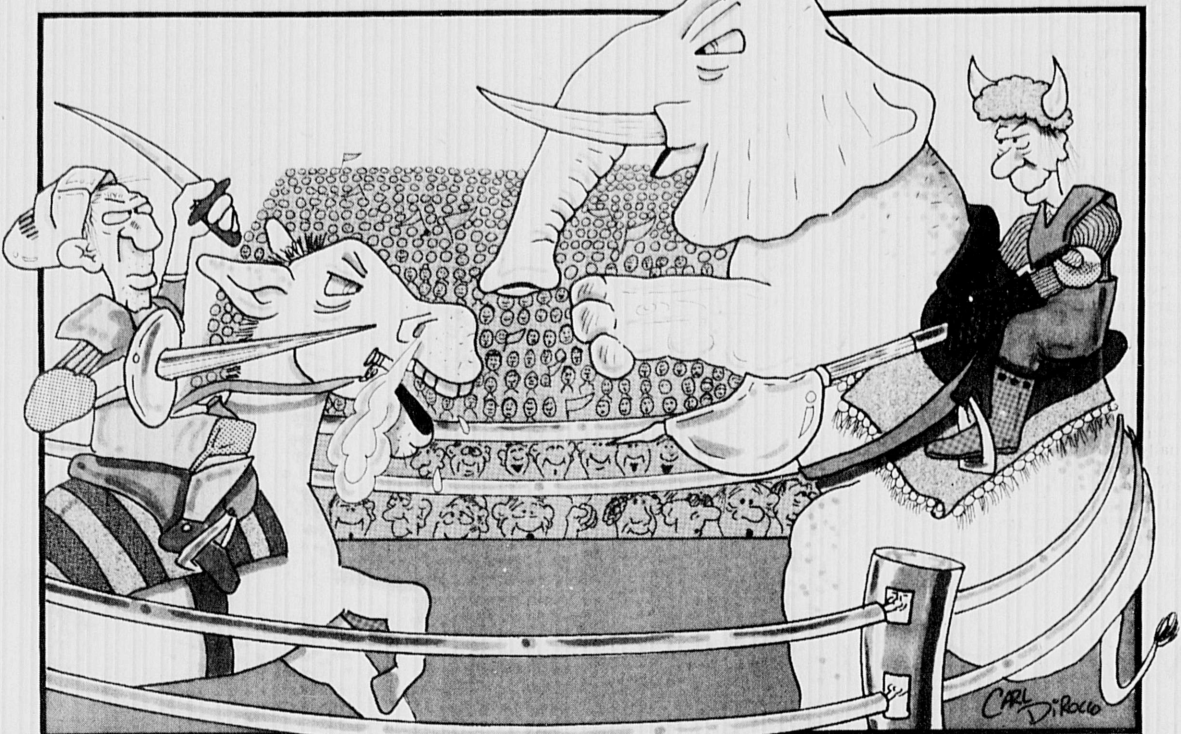

Who was that masked man? I don't know, but he left his silver spoon back at the ranch and is now putting in some hard time as a public servant.

He talked of standing up for his principles and the short-sightedness of our peers, young people in their prime who strive only for themselves and what feels good. If the cynics don't run him off the land, he may make a great leader some day. And he's off to a pretty good start.

This country once had many leaders of heart and leather. Now, when a young man comes along who wants to put his talent to work in the service of other people, everyone asks, "Can he be for real?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Drive chairman thanks bottle donors

TO THE EDITOR:

On behalf of all those involved with the A.B.C. bottle drive last Saturday, I want to extend a very sincere thank you to the Sons of Italy for once again making their parking lot, as well as their hall, available for the drive. Without the use of both facilities, the drive would not have been possible.

We continue to be grateful to all the townspeople who save their returnable bottles and cans for A.B.C. Every item contributes to the success of our drives, and we hope everyone will start saving now for the spring. Thanks again.

Owner inveighs at surreptitious cat feeders

TO THE EDITOR:

Somewhere in the vicinity of Highland Avenue someone is taking illegal possession of our cat, Charlie.

He is not the gaunt, starved cat you might find at your door, looking for a hand-out, but is, instead, a sleek, white, altered male with thick fur and a mild manner. He is the family pet and when he shows up at our door after a four-day absence he looks well, not like a cat coming home from a "binge."

We are narrowing down the area he is enticed to, and when we locate Charlie in someone's window or coming out of a cellar or garage, we shall indeed sue for "alienation of an animal's affection."

If people want a cat, they should get one as we did, have it altered as we did and pay its vet bills when he has infected paws or has been injured by B.B.s. How mean can people get?

Fan calls refs biased

TO THE EDITOR:

The Sachems Hockey Team has had a year of many frustrations. One of which is the "Referees." I have been to many games, but the Jan. 13 game against Woburn topped it all. Winchester did deserve some of the penalties, but Woburn should have had more called against them.

"Refs," if you're going to call a game, go in with your eyes open. There should be no favoritism regardless of who plays.

Resident decries potential tax increase

TO THE EDITOR:

On Jan. 14 I attended a public hearing at the Jenks Senior Center dealing with this year's projected town budget deficit. The town manager, Mr. Maurer, presented a limited number of options available to the town. It was clear from the beginning that the only option suitable to the majority of the town's leadership would be the eventual override of Proposition 2½.

This public hearing was a deceptively orchestrated performance by the proponents for run-away taxation. The most ridiculous part of the evening came when one of our more over-ly important Town Meeting members asked the town manager to describe in gruesome detail what the dire consequences would be to the town if we were not to override Proposition 2½. Even Mr. Maurer appeared embarrassed having to regurgitate the memorized answers. In fact, this same Town Meeting member was not satisfied with Mr. Maurer's first attempt and instructed him to redo his lines.

There is no reason for the town to override Proposition 2½. Winchester homeowners are already paying a very substantial property tax. Indeed, our current property tax is one of the highest in the Commonwealth. Obviously, some of our town leaders want a substantial increase in tax revenues so that they have monies to do their pet projects. For example, the $8 million renovation of Town Hall could have been done in a more fiscally cautious manner. Now, according to the Capital Planning Committee, $11 million will be needed for the refurbishing of our athletic fields. It boggles one's mind to think that any town the size of Winchester would even consider spending $11 million to grow approximately 100 acres of grass. Leadership that advocates such expenditures will certainly bankrupt the town. When can we, the taxpayers, expect some fiscal responsibility?

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Volume 14-Report No. 2
Massachusetts House
January 4-8, 1988

The House. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on 9 roll calls from the final two days of the 1988 legislative session on January 5 and 6.

Sparklers (H 6195)- House 81-71, barely rejected a bill allowing the sale of sparklers and their use by persons over 21 on private property between June 1 and July 7 from 6 a.m. to 12 midnight.

Supporters, claiming sparklers are safe, said legalizing them will reduce the desire for dangerous fireworks.

Opponents said sparklers are dangerous and cause many injuries. Two weeks ago the House first approved 76-72, then rejected 79-56 the same bill.

All three roll calls are listed. #1 is approval 76-72; #2 is defeat 79-56; #3 is defeat 81-71.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Representative Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes on all three roll calls.

411 (H 6391)- House 89-63, gave near final approval to a bill allowing New England Telephone to charge residential customers for each call to directory assistance above 20 per month.

Supporters, noting most people don't make more than 20 calls to 411 monthly, said the bill will require 411 abusers to pay their share and will return millions to ratepayers.

Opponents, claiming the bill is a money grab by New England Telephone, said the bill will lead to a charge for all 411 calls. Two weeks ago, the House approved the bill by a wider 86-51 margin.

Both roll calls are listed. The first is 86-51 approval. The second is 89-63 approval.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes on both roll calls.

Suffolk Downs (S 2184)- House 105-43, gave final approval to a bill designed to bail out Suffolk Downs by reducing the state's share of track revenue from three percent to three-fourths of a percent. Another key provision provides for the creation of a state racing authority.

Supporters said the bill will help Suffolk stay open and will save hundreds of jobs.

Opponents said the bill is special interest legislation to help out track owner Buddy LeRoux.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

DA Salaries (H 5829)- House 119-32, refused to reconsider its earlier action placing an emergency preamble onto a bill hiking the salaries of the state's district attorneys by $10,000 from $62,500 to $72,500 retroactive to January. The emergency preamble makes the bill effective immediately and waives the 90 day waiting period.

Reconsideration supporters asked why DA's can't wait the usual 90 days.

Opponents of reconsideration noted DA's have not had a raise in five years.

A Yea vote is for reconsideration of passage of the emergency preamble. A Nay vote is for the preamble. Saltmarsh voted no.

Beyond 10 P.M.- House 119-32, suspended rules to allow the House to continue in session beyond 10 p.m.

Supporters said the House should use the last two hours before the end of the 1987 session to work on important bills.

Opponents said late night sessions are irresponsible and said the legislature should not act on bills with only two hours remaining.

A Yea vote is for continuing beyond 10 p.m. A Nay vote is for ending the session.

Saltmarsh voted yes.
MWRA (H 6348)- House 126-25, gave final approval to the bill giving the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) legal access to all 12 sites it is considering as locations for sludge disposal facilities.

Supporters said the bill will allow MWRA to inspect all possible sites with the goal of cleaning up Boston Harbor.

Opponents said the bill gives the MWRA too much power by allowing the MWRA to go on private property without permission.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

The Senate. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on six roll calls from the final two days of the 1987 legislative session on January 5 and 6.

Auto Insurance (S 2174)- Senate 23-8, refused to table the newly drafted Senate version of a bill designed to reform auto insurance in the state.

Tabling supporters said no one has had time to read the 25 page bill and urged it be considered in the 1988 session.

Tabling opponents said there is an auto insurance crisis in the state which the Senate should tackle now.

A Yea vote is for tabling the bill. A Nay vote is against tabling.

Senator Richard Kraus voted no.

South Africa (H 1894)- Senate 19-18, approved an amendment to a bill prohibiting state agencies from contracting for goods and services with companies doing business with South Africa, except when there is no other available source or when there is no comparable low bid by a firm not doing business with South Africa. The amendment allows a state agency to contract with a person doing business in this state and affiliated with a business in another state that is doing business with South Africa.

Amendment supporters said this protects Massachusetts firms and jobs and cushions the adverse effect the bill may have on some Massachusetts companies which have parent companies involved with South Africa.

Amendment supporters said this protects Massachusetts firms and jobs and cushions the adverse effect the bill may have on some Massachusetts companies which have parent companies involved with South Africa.

Amendment opponents said it destroys the bill and all the principles against apartheid.

A Yea vote is for amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Kraus voted no.

Smoking (H 3697)- Senate 32-3, gave final approval to the bill further regulating smoking in public and private buildings. Provisions include requiring state colleges to reserve some dormitory rooms for non-smokers and requiring a no-smoking section in restaurants which seat 75 people or more.

Supporters said the bill will protect the health of citizens and reduce the number of people who inhale second hand smoke.

Opponents said the bill goes too far and is unfair to smokers. They argued that private restaurant owners should decide whether their establishment has a no-smoking section.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Kraus voted yes.

Gay Rights (H 5469)- Senate 20-16, refused to discharge the "gay rights" bill onto the floor for a vote. The measure prohibits discrimination in credit, housing, employment and public accommodations based on sexual preference.

Supporters said this is the last chance to vote on this bill which has already received initial approval. They noted the rules of the Senate are being abused by Senator Arthur Lewis who is bottling up the bill.

Opponents said Lewis is simply using Senate rules to kill the bill.

A Yea vote is for bringing the bill to the floor for a vote. A Nay vote is for keeping it in committee and letting it die for the year.

Kraus voted yes.

Sematech (S 2189)- Senate 30-4, gave initial approval to a $75 million bond package designed to help bring Sematech and its high tech research consortium dealing with semiconductor manufacturing to the state.

Supporters said the package is a sweetener to encourage Sematech to choose a Massachusetts.

GUEST COLUMN

Effort builds on years of work

Winchester's rich historic legacy, preserved in scattered early farmhouses and an exceptional collection of buildings from the Victorian period, has been intensively studied in preparation for a town-wide nomination to the National Register of Historic Places.

This type of comprehensive nomination, which considers all of a community's historic resources at one time, is called a Multiple Resource Area nomination. Designed to streamline the often lengthy National Register process, it has been used by numerous Massachusetts communities, including neighboring Stoneham and Arlington as well as Newton, Brookline, Worcester and many others. A public meeting has been scheduled for 7 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 3, at the Winchester Public Library and the ramifications of listing.

This major effort of the Winchester Historical Commission builds on many years of work to research and record historical and architectural information on historic properties throughout the town. It was partially funded by a grant from the En Ka Society. Consultants Harriet White and Candace Jenkins were hired in early 1987 to assist the Commission in evaluating the relative significance of these properties, selecting those which best meet the criteria for listing in the National Register, and preparing all of the necessary documents for review by state and federal officials. The National Register is administered at the state level by the Massachusetts Historical Commission, a division of the Secretary of State, and at the federal level by the National Park Service.

The National Register of Historic Places was created by Congress in 1966 as the centerpiece of the National Historic Preservation Act. Passage of this major piece of legislation responded largely to the mass destruction of historic properties brought about by such federal demolition programs as urban renewal and interstate highway construction. The Act stated that the Register was to encompass "districts, sites, buildings, structures and objects significant in American history, architecture, archaeology and culture" at the local, state and national levels.

National Register listing has never affected the rights of individual property owners to use, alter, or demolish their property as they see fit unless they are receiving federal assistance for the project. Although various benefits have accrued to National Register properties through the years, this basic right of property has never changed. In fact, due to amendments to the Act, owners of individually nominated properties may prevent listing by submitting a notarized letter of objection after formal notification of consideration by the state; similarly, owners of property within districts may prevent listing if a majority objects.

Most owners of historic properties, however, covet listing in the prestigious National Register whose benefits are threefold: 1) it recognizes that individual properties and districts are important to the history of the community, state or nation; 2) it allows owners of income producing properties federal tax incentives for approved rehabilitation work; and 3) it provides limited protection from federally assisted projects. In addition, National Register properties are automatically included in the State Register of Historic Places which provides parallel protection from state actions and makes owners of properties in private non-profit or public use eligible to apply for State Preservation Projects funds. Neither the National nor State Register programs establishes design review committees to review proposed exterior changes, nor do they require owners to seek any special permits when they plan work on their property. This type of review occurs only in locally established districts.

Winchester currently has five individual and one district National Register listings. This Multiple Resource proposal would add 59 individual properties and 5 districts.

The individually proposed properties range from 18th century farmsteads like the Gardner-Swan House to the unusual octagonal Brackett House to fine Victorian mansions like the Panel Brick style houses in the Rangely Estates area. The districts all represent Winchester's intensive suburban expansion to the second half of the 19th century and include the Wedgemere area as well as the Everett Avenue/Sheffield Road area.

Documentation will be submitted to the Massachusetts Historical Commission by the spring. The MHC has tentatively scheduled the nomination for formal review at its June 1988 meeting. Before that meeting, all property owners will receive written notification and their comments will be solicited. Notarized objections to listing may be submitted at that time. Listing of properties voted eligible by the members of the MHC and not objected to by their owners is projected to take place in late summer or early fall.

At the Feb. 3 public information meeting members of the Winchester Historical Commission and their consultants will present information on the National Register program and on the properties included in this nomination. A question-and-answer period will follow.

Months are perfect units of time

By TERRY MAROTTA

I like it here in our solar system: the place is so diverse and inclusive; so representative, you might say, of many planetary viewpoints.

For example, the temperature on Venus is hot enough to melt lead; on Uranus, meanwhile, there's probably no time of the year you'd be tempted to walk around in your underwear. Some planets, like Pluto, take 248 years to revolve around the sun; others, like Mercury, only 88 days.

There are 16 or 17 moons pirouetting around some of the planets; none at all around others.

Earth, of course, has one moon, the only planet in the solar system so distinguished. It takes a little less than seven days for it to go from quarter to quarter, nearly 30 to move through the full cycle of its phases. The notion of the month is uniquely ours.

This fact makes it especially nice for renters and mortgage-payers alike, and all other such people tied to monthly payment schedules. Think what would become of us if we had to keep track of four of five different moons' shenanigans, and structure our lives accordingly.

No, months are nice units of time, all right, just suited to us humans. I think and designed specifically for our sorts of activities.

Take them one by one, and you'll see what I mean:

January is for sleeping. February for turning over in your sleep.

March is for looking at seed catalogs; April for digging in the dirt.

May, of course is for rollerskating, and for peeling off extra layers of clothes; June for ceremonies of hope and transition (weddings and graduations come most readily to mind).

July is for sitting and watching baseball games. August is for just sitting. (In the former case a little fan can be nice, whirring softly at your elbow; but air conditioners are all wrong for baseball, which requires a modicum of sweat on the upper lip heightening the enjoyment and adding a dash of salt to your handful of popcorn.)

September is good for starting fresh — on a school year, on an exercise program, even on a relationship of longstanding in the home or office.

October is for apples. You can pick them, or eat them, or throw them — or just sit amongst them on the ground, watching the record of warm days and cool nights painted in crimson licking brushstrokes on their curving cheeks of green.

November, as any turkey will tell you, is for feasting — to fatten ourselves against the coming cool spell.

December is for gathering friends and lighting the candles; pretending it's not dark out and things don't die; believing against all apparent evidence that the days are in fact lengthening after the solstice; and knowing that rebirth is more than a wish.

In here, somewhere, too, of course, are the seasons: Summer, Fall, Locking, Winter, Unlocking and Spring, as one wise soul described it.

(The jaundiced Northernman put it differently. "We have two seasons here in New Hampshire," he said. "Eight weeks of summer, and ten months of Hell.")

Still, what is nicer than our 12 tidy months, in the end, each linked to a certain stage of the year's unfolding?

"Earth's the right place for love," said Robert Frost, in one poem. "I don't know where it's likely to go better."

June and a moon may have inspired those words in him.

January turning toward February inspire these.

We sleep, and we turn in our sleep. It all sounds about right to me.

ABOUT TOWN

Players to hold auditions Feb. 9

The Winchester Players will hold auditions for the spring production of Emlyn Williams' thriller "Night Must Fall," on Tuesday, Feb. 9, and Wednesday, Feb. 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Windsor Room at the Unitarian Church, 478 Main St., corner Main Street and Mystic Valley Parkway.

The play, directed by David Goldstein, requires five women and four men in the cast. The characters are: Mrs. Bramson - a querulous, common, complaining old woman, who spends time in a wheelchair, which she does not need. She is completely taken in by compliments and attention. A large part.

Olivia - 20s or 30s in age. She is trapped by lack of money into serving Mrs. Bramson and is mesmerized by Dan. A large part, requiring a lot of interpretation.

Mrs. Terence - The cook/housekeeper, late middle age or any age. An outspoken, independent woman, she provides the comic relief in the play. A medium size part.

Dora - a young country girl, the maid. She is pregnant after a one-night stand. She is treated as stupid, but her comments on Dan are most revealing. A medium part, with lots of entrance and exit cues.

Nurse Libby - The visiting nurse, any age. A competent lady, who makes Mrs. Bramson behave herself. A small part.

Dan - Young, clean-shaven and should have "a baby face." He speaks with an accent that is different from the others. A criminal psychopath who is acting all the time. The central role.

Hubert - a suitor to Olivia. A boring man, conventional to the point of comic. A medium to large part.

Belsize - A plainclothes detective inspector, middle to old age. Must put across the impression of great intelligence and strength while talking politely and even mundanely. A medium part, but he is at the center when on stage.

The Lord Chief Justice - Elderly, or able to give that impression. He has a two page speech, which is the prologue of the play, and never appears again. He must speak with clarity and force but has no movement. He will rehearse by appointment three or four times and is not needed in the theatre until the run-through before the first dress rehearsal.

"Night Must Fall" will be presented on May 6, 7, 13 and 14, in Metcalf Hall at the Unitarian Church. Rehearsal will begin in March and will be held Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays in Metcalf Hall.

The Winchester Players are, as always, looking for crew members to work backstage. Help is needed for the props, costume, set, sound, lights, publicity and house crews. For information on either acting or crewing for "Night Must Fall," please call the producer Dorothy Roemer at 729-1939, evenings, or Players president Karen Barton at 729-0094 evenings after 6:30.

Surplus foods distributed

The American Red Cross will distribute federal surplus foods to eligible Winchester residents on Tuesday, Feb. 9 at the Unitarian Church, Main St., from 10 a.m. to noon.

To be eligible, individuals must bring proof of participation of one of the following programs: AFDC, GR, SSI, WID, Welfare, Food Stamps, Fuel Assistance, Head Start, Medicaid, Unemployment Assistance or Veterans Aid.

Residents whose gross annual income falls into the following categories are also eligible: a family of one - $8,250; two - $11,100; three - $13,950; four - $16,800; five - $19,650; six - $22,500; seven - $25,350; eight - $28,200; and for each person over eight, add $2,850.

Those who plan to attend are asked to bring a grocery-sized bag. For further information, please call the Red Cross at 729-2300 or 665-1351.

Vacation ski trips planned

The Youth Center has planned three more ski trips for this winter's Adventure Connection Program. Students who are interested in skiing, even for the first time, are invited to participate.

There will be two trips to Gunstock Mt. on Saturday, Feb. 6 and Thursday, Feb. 18 (School Vacation). These trips are open to students in grades 7-12. The bus leaves Winchester at 6 a.m. and returns at 6 p.m.

There will be special trip for students in ninth grade on Friday, Feb. 26. This is a night trip and will leave at 2:45 p.m., returning at 11 p.m. Remember, this trip will be open to freshmen students only! Lessons are required for all first-time skiers and rentals are available. For information on prices and registration, call or visit the Youth Center (721-7129) or Recreation Department (721-7125).

Chamber seeks award nominees

Each year the Winchester Chamber of Commerce presents an award to a citizen who has made a significant contribution through his or her work to the improvement of the business community or to the overall quality of life in Winchester. The Chamber's board of directors is presently accepting nominations from chamber members and anyone in the community.

Please send recommendations to the chamber office, 25 Waterfield Rd.

The announcement will be made at the Chamber's annual meeting in April.

Chamber to hear Bartolini

Kathleen Bartolini, director of the office of local and regional planning at the Executive Office of Community Development will address the membership of the Chamber of Commerce on how to keep the momentum going in the center area after renovation has been completed. He will speak at breakfast, Maximilian Cafe, on Feb. 4 at 7:45 a.m.

Ms. Bartolini, the founder of the Mass. Main Street Program, has a slide program which suggests various areas that need to be focused on by the entire community. Reservations deadline is Friday, Jan. 29.

Chamber to hold spring meeting

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce will hold a spring promotion meeting February 5 at 8:30 a.m. in the chamber office.

Girl Scouts sell cookies now

It's a Cookie Festival, and Winchester Girl Scouts are preparing for the 1988 Cookie Sale celebration.

From Jan. 21 to Feb. 7, Girl Scouts will, once again, sell seven varieties of cookies. From the classic chocolate thin mints and buttery trefoils, to the coconut caramel Samoa and the new chocolate wafer sandwich cookie, the Echo, the cookie sale is a welcome event for cookie-hungry customers.

Money raised from the Girl Scout Cookie Sale helps support troop activities and educational programs, as well as defray the cost of summer camp and wider opportunities. The cost of the cookies is $2.50 per box, and deliveries will be made the week of March 14.

For more information about ordering cookies, call Sarah Swiger, Service Unit Cookie Manager, at 729-1407.

Police stress Child Passenger Safety Week

The week of Feb. 7-13 is National Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week and Police Chief John McHugh and Safety Officer Kevin Mawn are asking parents to make a special effort to buckle up their children.

Every year in Massachusetts hundreds of children are seriously injured or killed in motor vehicle accidents. Of the survivors, many are crippled for life by spinal cord injuries, brain damage, and traumatic epilepsy. Most of these deaths and injuries could be prevented simply by using car seats and safety belts.

The Massachusetts Child Passenger Safety Law requires all children 12 years old and under to be fastened in a properly adjusted car seat or safety belt. While the law does not apply to children older than 12, safety belts are still the best available protection in vehicle accidents for people of all ages.

"During the week of February 7-13, our officers will be making a special effort to enforce the law that protects our children. We think it's important that people understand the benefits of buckling up," reports Chief McHugh.

For further information about safety belts and child safety seats, contact Safety Officer Kevin Mawn at the Police Department or your child's pediatrician. To have someone speak to your group about passenger safety, call your local police department or the Massachusetts Passenger Safety Program at (617) 727-1246 or 1-800-CAR-SAFE.

Community Music School registration

The Winchester Community Music School is registering students now for second semester lessons, which start the end of January or early February. "Although planning is done on a semester basis, we welcome inquiries at any time during the year," says Director Corie Nichols, "and we are happy to accommodate students whenever we have space."

"The school involves students of all ages ranging from three-year-olds in our rhythmic classes to senior citizens in the recorder class being held at the Jenks Center," says Nichols. The focus of the school, however, is providing private instrumental lessons in band and orchestra instruments, as well as recorder and voice. Small ensembles can also be arranged, and theory is offered to individuals or small groups. For further information call Corie Nichols, 10 Oxford St.

As part of the Language Study Abroad program, students spend an academic term in a foreign country, living with a local family there and attending classes taught by native professors at a local university. The courses cover language, literature, civilization and history, but the students are also given time to travel on their own and learn about the country.

Seniors avoid mid-winter doldrums with friendly meal

By LEONOR RICH
Special to the Star

Come and join the "Eating Together" noontime luncheons at the Jenks Senior Center on Wednesdays and Fridays, barring holidays.

The purpose of the luncheons is to bring seniors together to enjoy the companionship of others while eating. Avoid mid-winter doldrums by coming to the center to eat a hot, nutritious meal prepared by Servamation, caterers from Stoneham.

A welcome is extended to all seniors of the town to participate in this program for a modest donation. It is not designed for just a few people, but it reaches out to everyone.

During the snowy winter months, people tend to become homebound. Transportation is provided for those who request it when reservations are made before 11 a.m. on the day preceding the luncheon. The Salter family, owners of the Aberjona and Winchester Nursing Centers, have been providing the use of a senior van on Fridays specifically for people who have no other means of transportation to get to the center. The van is equipped to take two wheelchairs and eight other passengers. These generous nursing center administrators are extending the service to Wednesdays as well as Fridays beginning Feb. 3.

Varied programs are being planned following the luncheons, such as background music, videotape presentations, movies, health talks and similar activities. In February, a nutritionist from Minute Man Home Care Corporation will speak on "Fiber in the Diet." People are requested to submit program suggestions to Elaine Di Pietro, nutrition site manager, or Barbara Ciampa, Council on Aging administrator.

Volunteer helpers are always welcome to do such things as set the tables, roll eating utensils in napkins, serve at the Meeting Room counter and help clear up after the meal. Paper plates and cups ease the clean-up process.

Girl Scouts and children from St. Mary's School have been thoughtful in making decorative table centerpieces and designing posters to publicize the noontime program. These kindnesses extended by the children have pleased seniors who have attended the luncheons.

Don't succumb to the mid-winter doldrums. Come to the Jenks Senior Center on Wednesdays and Fridays to eat a hot meal in the company of friendly people. This pilot program will continue throughout 1988.

Senior volunteers roll place settings in paper napkins in preparation for an "Eating Together" luncheon.

Service awards to senior volunteers

Winchester Hospital recognizes the contributions of senior volunteers in helping to provide increased services, thus making the presence of the institution in the community reflect the generous spirit of its friends and supporters.

Recently, awards were given to several senior volunteers who have dedicated many hours of service during their association with the hospital. Harry Hood now has a 1,500-hour guard pin; Norma Littlefield was presented with a 3,000 guard pin; and Barbara Miller has a 4,000-hour guard pin.

Congratulations to each of these Winchester seniors for their important services to the community hospital.

Church Women United luncheon for seniors

Sponsored by the Church Women United, the senior luncheon will be held in Gifford Hall at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church Tuesday, Feb. 2 at noon.

Hostessing with the Methodist women will be ladies from the Second Congregational Church. Reservations should be made between Jan. 25 and 30 with Barbara Fickett, 729-5083, or Leona Poole, 729-1542.

The cost of the meal is $3.

Movie of the month

The Movie of the Month at Jenks Senior Center, scheduled from 1 to 3:30 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 19, is entitled, "An American in Paris."

The picture was filmed in 1951, is in color, and presents a joyous, original musical built around the George Gershwin score. Winner of six Academy Awards, it stars Gene Kelly with Leslie Caron, petite French dancer in her first film. Also featured are Oscar Levant, Georges Guetany and Nina Foch.

It is necessary to show the film at 1 p.m. instead of 1:30 p.m. so that people having had lunch at the center will not have to wait a long period of time before seeing the movie. Refreshments will be served at the end of the first reel. The public is invited to attend.

Openings on the Council on Aging

There are existing vacancies that need to be filled on the Council on Aging.

Letters of application for membership must be sent to the Winchester Board of Selectmen in order that appointments can be made as soon as possible. Interviews with candidates will be scheduled prior to making appointments to this town council.

An opportunity to be of real service to the older members of the town is offered through programs sponsored by the Winchester Council on Aging.

Letters of application should state reasons why the applicant desires to become a member of this group of dedicated people.

Crafts and stitchery

The Crafts and Stitchery class at Jenks Senior Center is funded in part by the Winchester Arts Lottery Council. Jane Norberg, instructor, features a new and interesting project each month.

During the month of February, she will teach Swedish Embroidery and Chicken Scratch, two very unusual types of stitchery. Join this class and create handwork that is artistic and beautiful.

Sherman R. Josephson
Josephson firm unveils new name

Sherman R. Josephson has unveiled a new name for his family's Winchester-based real estate firm.

As of Jan. 1, the firm's name is the Josephson Realty Group.

In commenting on the change, Josephson said, "I felt this change was appropriate because it more accurately reflects the diversity of real estate activity which we are engaged in on a daily basis."

Since 1918, the Josephson family has been actively involved in the real estate business in Winchester.

For the past 30 years, the firm has been owned and managed by Sherman Josephson, who took over active ownership of the family firm in 1958. At that time, his father, the late Gustave A. Josephson, retired from his 40 years' participation in building houses and selling real estate in Winchester, where he had settled in the early 1900s after immigrating from Sweden.

Today, the firm is a multi-faceted one. It deals in real estate brokerage, but it also has a staff devoted solely to the firm's growing real estate appraisal activity.

As has always been the policy of the firm, those people who prefer to rent rather than purchase a home are given the same personal attention as buyers and sellers of real estate.

Investment real estate has always been important to members of the Josephson family. Many investors and potential investors in real estate seek the service and advice of the firm, and management services are provided to those individuals and companies needing them.

Patriot announces grand opening

Coldwell star

Jacqueline Lally of Richfield Road, Arlington, has achieved top-producer status at Coldwell Banker in Lexington for 1987. She was a four-time winner of the sales associate of the month award and sold $4 million of real estate during the year.

Cota-Robles is top Collins salesperson

Gretchen Cota-Robles is salesperson of the year in 1987 for Century 21 Collins Realty, according to office manager Robert Preston.

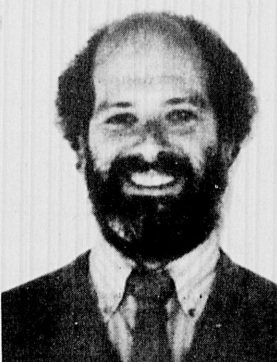

This is the second successive year that she has earned this distinction. She was salesperson of the month 11 times in 1987. The only month she did not achieve this award was March, when she attended Century 21's National Convention in Orlando, Fla.

A long-time resident of Arlington with four children, she has marketed in excess of $5 million worth of property in 1987 and has also earned Century 21's prestigious "Pacesetter" award for the last quarter of 1987. This award is given to agents who produce more than $25,000 in gross commissions in a quarter.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Dick Murphy
The Bixby & Porter Co. Realtors

MAKING THE MOST OF YOUR STRUCTURAL INSPECTION

Today, many home buyers are investing in a professional structural inspection before finalizing the sale. By choosing your inspector carefully and preparing for your structural, you can learn important facts about your new home and perhaps save thousands of dollars in the process.

Once you have a ratified sales agreement, the Realtor will help set up an appointment for you to see the home with your inspector. Even though you may get a written report of the inspection, bring a notebook with you. If you have any questions, write them down ahead of time. Was there anything you noticed when you went through the house on your own? Were you concerned about any cracks in the walls, spots on the ceiling, or noises in the air conditioning system? When you are going through your new home with the inspector, remember that it's probably not quite perfect. You should come away, however, with a good understanding of what you are buying and how much maintenance will cost.

For solid advice on buying or selling real estate, consult the professionals at The Bixby & Porter Company Realtors. Please call us at 729-7000 or stop by our offices at 33 Thompson Street in Winchester.

This year, record numbers of people will find a home in the paper.

These aren't people who are turning to the paper for the Real Estate listings. These are people who are turning to the paper for warmth. Men, women and children. Families. In total, over 10,000 people in Massachusetts who, every day, are finding it harder and harder to fight poverty. With recent cutbacks in Federal housing programs and public assistance, the United Way is fast becoming the only way.

This year, the United Way is supporting 42 agencies with 7 million dollars to provide aid and shelter to hungry and homeless victims.

It's a start. But we need your help to keep it alive. If you want to do more, please, give more. Help solve a problem that's becoming too big to cover up.

WINCHESTER'S 350TH ANNIVERSARY

Watch that witch

In a fantasy of sugar plums, a gingerbread house, rich frosted pastry and a fearsome witch who bakes her victims into gingerbread cases — Winchester's 350th anniversary events continue on February 7 with a performance of the opera Hansel and Gretel, written 95 years ago by Englebert Humperdinck.

Humperdinck, a close associate of Richard Wagner, originally drafted this work for a home performance — but as a magnificent scope became evident, the work developed into a full fledged opera and was first performed at the opera at Weimar in December 1893 under the direction of Wagner.

The first production in this country was given at Daly's Theater, New York in October 1895 and the first performance at the Metropolitan Opera was held in 1905 and featured Louise Homer and Otto Goritz.

The Neighborhood Co-operative Nursery School and the Winchester 350th Anniversary Committee are pleased to co-sponsor this performance as another one of the many coming events commemorating the 350th celebration.

All similar events held throughout the coming year will be capped by the official town celebrations to be held in the fall.

"Homecoming Weekend" on October 15 and 16 will be highlighted by an outdoor interfaith religious service, and the massive 350th Anniversary Parade.

Final official events for the year will be held the weekend of December 10 and 11.

Major events of the December weekend will be a Gala Victorian Ball which will officially open the newly renovated town hall — and a large community choral and instrumental concert to be held in town hall auditorium on the afternoon following the Victorian Ball.

Planning for all events is now well under way within three major sub-committees, with the 350th Anniversary Committee itself meeting every two weeks, on the average, at the Public Safety Building.

Sachem boys show progress in two games

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys' basketball team improved their play last week, downing Woburn 58-46 before narrowly missing pulling off an upset of Wakefield.

Eric Emeneau was the difference against the Tanners as he had his strongest effort of the season. The 6'9" center scored a game-high 24 points while yanking down 13 rebounds. Woburn had high hopes for winning their first game of the season but they could not match up with Emeneau.

The first half of the game was dominated by the offenses of both clubs. Emeneau, Mike Haddad, Mike Morrison and Joe Costello were the main culprits for Winchester as they continually built leads only to see the Tanners battle back. With the score tied 31-31 at halftime, it was time for the defense to dictate the flow. Sachem coach Mike Boyages assigned Matt Howell to cover Woburn's leading scorer, Tim Doherty, who had 13 points in the second quarter alone. Howell did a better than adequate job and the Tanners struggled for the rest of the game. In fact, they were unable to manage double digits in either of the last two quarters.

With the Woburn attack neutralized, the Sachems turned to their big men to provide the offense. Emeneau responded with some key baskets but it was Howell and Haddad who put it away in the fourth quarter with some clutch hoops. The Tanners tried to hang in but poor shot selection and missed free throws insured their downfall.

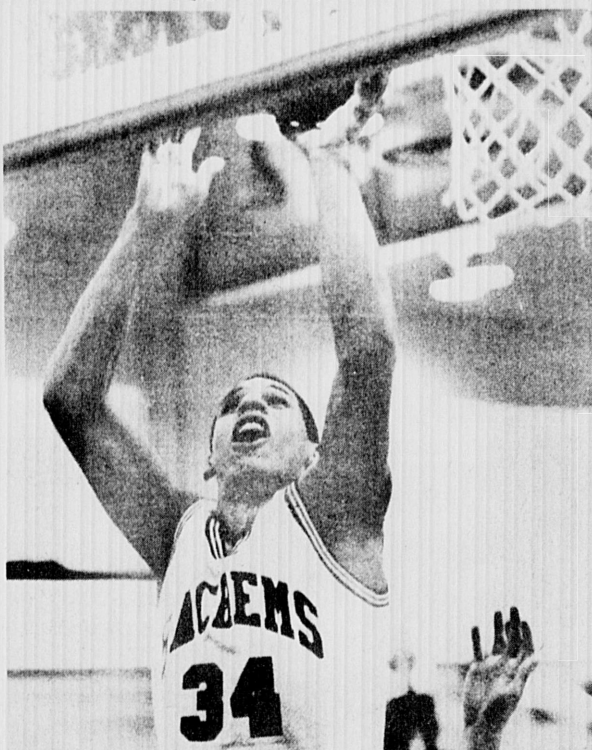

The much-needed win over Woburn gave the Sachems a boost in confidence and fueled the fire for an upset of Wakefield. The Sachems gave the Warriors all they could handle before succumbing in the final few seconds, 52-51. The game was fiercely fought and although Wakefield led most of the way, the scrappy Sachems had their chances in the end, even if they were not able to make the most of them.

Wakefield came into the game possibly a tad overconfident but the Sachems would not let them get away. Every Warrior run was answered with a spurt from the Sachems. Again, Emeneau (20 points) and Haddad were key performers. It came down to the 2:00 mark of the final period for crunch time to set in. Wakefield, leading 52-45, would not score a point for the rest of the game and it was all up to the Winchester offense. Joe Costello and captain Jon Furey responded with a pair of big hoops to cut the deficit to 52-49. Emeneau hit one of two foul shots before the burden fell on the shoulders of forward Doug Clarke.

With eight seconds left, Clarke missed the front end of a one-and-one but he grabbed his own rebound and got fouled again. This time he hit the first one but missed the second. Wakefield snagged the rebound and held on to the victory.

Despite the loss, Winchester is starting to play winning basketball again after a rocky first half of the season. Boyages has done an excellent job preparing his team for games and with continued hard work, the Sachems could be a challenge to tournament-bound league rivals. Unfortunately, Winchester will be on the road for the next three games, which will make it difficult for them to gain momentum.

Sachem pucksters give Middlesex rivals a hard time before faltering

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High hockey team put a scare into a couple of opponents last week, unfortunately they could not match up with the depth of Melrose and Watertown and losses 48 and 49, in a row, were put in the books.

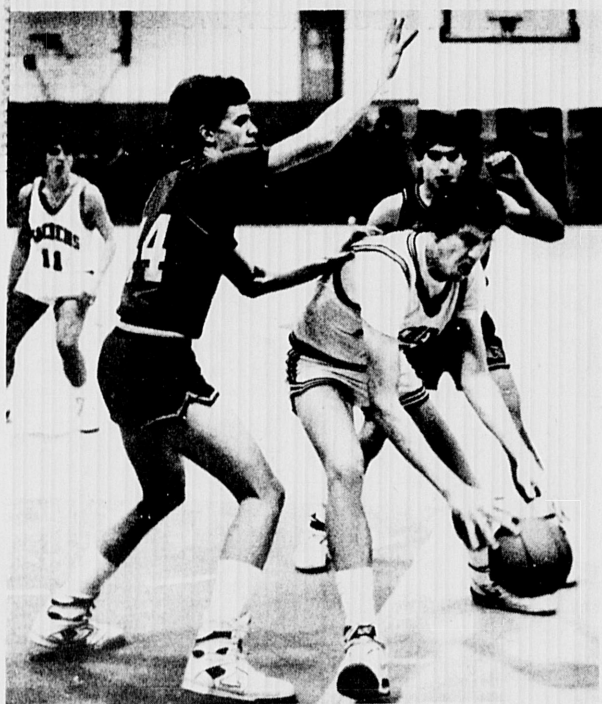

Hard work and inspired play kept the Sachems strong through two periods but the all-out effort left them gasping for air in the third, which is where their opponents put them away. They held Melrose (11-0 loss in first meeting) to only one (power play) goal going into the third period. Goalie and team captain Jim McNerney was the story, as usual, keeping the Sachems close but it was great back-checking by the Winchester forwards which helped neutralize the Red Raider attack. The Sachems ran out of gas in the third period and Melrose went on to post the 5-0 shutout.

Winchester looked even better against Watertown as they shocked the local fans by taking a 2-1 lead into the second period. Greg Winn (unassisted) and Gino Giagrande (Makoto Sato) scored goals 30 seconds apart midway through the opening period to provide the early cushion. Watertown tied it in the second period but still, the Sachems would not let them get away. Finally, as was the case in the previous game, Winchester faded in the home stretch and Watertown prevailed, 8-2. Coach Jack Newhall and his troops will try to end their dubious streak this week against Burlington.

Sachem gymnasts topple Wakefield to capture first league victory

The Winchester High girls' varsity gymnastics team's work paid off last Wednesday when they played host to Wakefield. Under the direction of coach Michelle Santagate, nine of the 10 team members participated in the 94.0-88.6 victory.

The meet was dominated by Sachem girls Allison Kessel and Colleen Raymond. Kessel won the uneven parallel bars (5.75), the balance beam (5.4), the vault (8.1) and finished second in the floor exercise (6.15) giving her a total score of 25.40. Raymond won the floor exercise (6.55) and took second place in both the vault (7.6) and the uneven parallel bars (5.45). Add on a fourth place finish in the balance beam and her cumulative score was 24.60.

Also having good outings were Sarah Fitzpatrick, Jori Cutler and team captain Katie Coakley. Fitzpatrick turned in a second place finish on the balance beam and placed third in the vault while Cutler did well in three events and Coakley had a good day on the vault (6.95). Other girls who helped contribute to Winchester's cause were Elysa Aswad, Margot Bauman, Lorette McWilliams and Brandi Smith.

The Sachem girls will wrap up their season next week when they travel to Beverly and Woburn.

Stackpole captures Div.3 All-American honors for outstanding play at the tight end position

Westfield State tight end Jeff Stackpole of Winchester was a second team pick on the Pizza Hut All American Division III football team which was released last week.

Stackpole, a 6-4, 230-pound senior, led the Owls to the best record (6-3) in their six-year football history with 49 receptions for 701 yards and eight touchdowns. The sure handed tight end dominated the Westfield air attack, catching more than half of the team's 87 receptions. He averaged 14.3 yards per reception and 5.4 catches per game, finishing 21st nationally in the latter category. The Northeastern transfer finished his three-year career at Westfield with a school record 85 receptions.

"Jeff is very deserving of the honor," said Westfield State head coach Jack Murdock. "He can play with anybody and he's an excellent blocker."

"I think he could be a pro prospect," added the coach. "He has a good makeup and nothing seems to bother him. He has a great desire to play the game and he always seems to find the open area. He's a pleasure to be around and he takes directions very well."

Stackpole is the second Westfield State football player to be honored by Pizza Hut. The All American selections are made by a panel of 15 Division III sports information directors. Westfield defensive lineman John Crowley was an All American honorable mention pick in 1985.

Win. CC hosts curling events

Senior Diane Intravia of Winchester has been awarded a letter as a member of the women's tennis team at Tufts University.

Last fall the Jumbos produced an 8-4 record, including wins in their first six matches. They also captured second place in the New England Division III Tournament, making them a first or second place finisher in the tourney for five straight years.

A co-captain with classmate Kristin Collar, Intravia is tied for fourth in the Tufts all-time career singles record list (25 wins). Last fall she sported a 6-5 record in singles play. However, she defeated the number one-seeded player, S. Hurst of Connecticut College, 4-6, 6-4, 7-6 in the championship match of the Division III New England Flight II.

An English/Classics (pre-law) major, Intravia is the daughter of Robert and Phyllis Intravia of 14 N. Gateway.

Country Club II's skip Bill Wellington and teammates Coco Wellington, Phil and Anne Robertson beat Winchester II's Joe and Shelby Taylor together with Ed and Ruth Pepper.

Sachem girls dismantle Lady Raiders, 40-6

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High freshmen girls' basketball team used a balanced offensive attack and sterling defense to romp over Watertown, 40-6. It was the young Sachem girls' first win of the season.

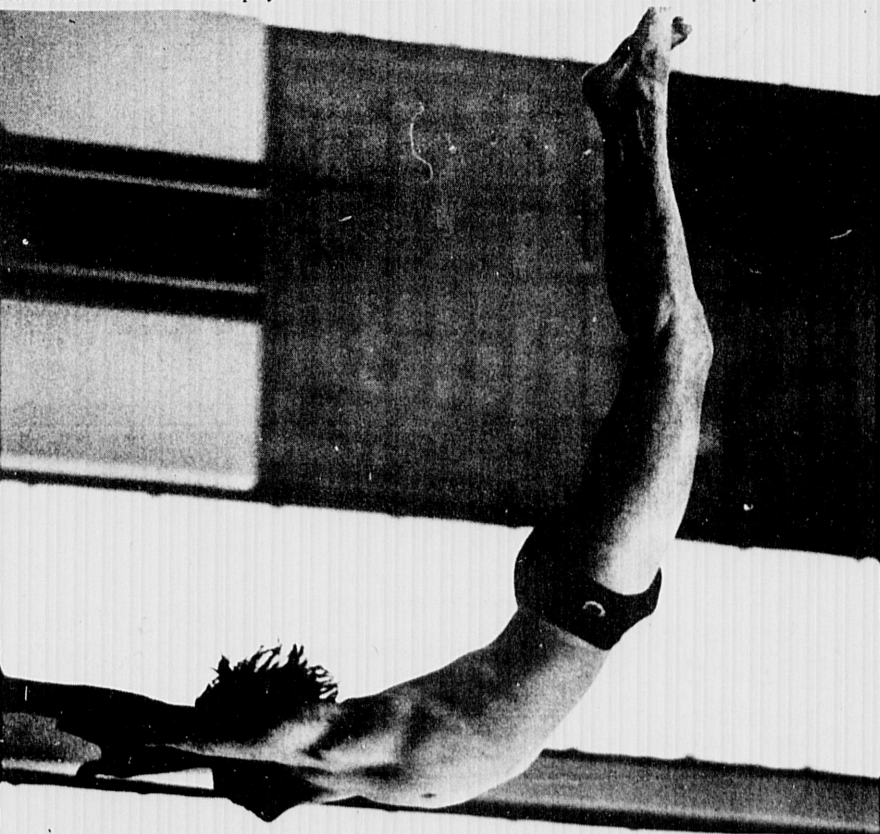

Courtney Perkins and Inger Midtandal were the stars of the game as they both turned in fine performances on both ends of the court. In addition to her six points, Perkins had an outstanding game on defense. Midtandal also scored six points and was a force on the boards.

Several Sachem girls made their presences felt on either offense or defense — sometimes both. Amy Pof-tak rebounded well and contributed four points. Kim Davis scored four points and also played stingy defense. Kim Landini, Courtney Manning and Pam Taylor were key offensive sparkplugs, each picking up six points. Erika Gannon scored two points and Jen Murphy and Brittany Boulanger also had strong outings on defense.

Coach Richard Trotta's team will take on Woburn and Melrose next week.

Hospital receives gifts for maternity facility

James F. McDonough M.D., chairman of the Winchester Hospital maternity renovations capital campaign committee, announces that major gifts totalling $300,000 have been received to date.

Among them is a three-year pledge from Wil Smyly in memory of his daughter, Sandra "Ceci" Smyly.

All major gifts of $10,000 to $25,000 enable the donor to select an area within the maternity suite where a plaque can be displayed designating the area in honor or memory of a loved one. Anyone in the community may add to an existing named gift.

Total cost of the renovation project is $4.8 million, of which $1.5 million has been established as the capital campaign goal. The project is scheduled for completion in early summer. When the Childbirth Center opens, it will provide state-of-the-art, comprehensive care in an attractive and comfortable setting.

LDRs (Labor/Delivery/Recovery) rooms will allow mothers to labor, deliver, and recover in home-like rooms fully equipped with ultrasound and telemetry for emergencies or complicated deliveries. The new facility will also offer the only designated Level II special care nursery for ill or at-risk infants in any community hospital in the area.

The hospital will also introduce 24-hour coverage by a neonatologist for ill and at-risk infants in affiliation with the Harvard Joint Program as will an increased number of private rooms with private baths.

"This will mean that the level of care presently associated with in-town obstetrical units will be available right in the community, close to one's home and family," said Thomas J. Dowd, Reading obstetrician-gynecologist and president of the active medical and dental staff.

"It will also mean that many of our babies that are now transferred into Boston will be able to remain at Winchester Hospital, and that transfers back from the Level III (tertiary care) nursery will be taking place sooner, resulting in increased convenience for those families of babies that require prolonged hospitalization," he added.

Peter J. Rotolo, Burlington obstetrician-gynecologist, agreed. "The renovation of the Childbirth Center at Winchester Hospital will allow the staff to provide an enhanced level of care and caring for patients and their families. The new LDR suites will allow a greater freedom of alternative birthing choices while providing maximum safety. The high risk nursery and neonatology services will give our patients a level of care available nowhere else in our area. The new postpartum area will allow greater comfort and privacy for the bonding process for the new family unit than is presently available."

Individuals wishing more information about making a gift or pledge to benefit the new unit are invited to contact either McDonough at 175 Washington Street, Winchester, or Eugene E. Loubier, president of Winchester Hospital.

James F. McDonough, MD, left discusses plans for the renovated maternity services unit at Winchester Hospital with Wil Smyly, who recently made a major gift to the project.

Loop package sought land because of one developer, saying his group is ready to proceed with its project.

Maurer tried to explain the selectmen's dilemma. "They have a far greater responsibility to get rid of it than for economic gain," Maurer said of the Loop disposition. "They have to improve the whole area."

Deering said the three-project package came out of a concern for developing the land to the benefit of the whole town. The town did not receive many proposals from individual homeowners abutting the Loop, he said. One Russell Road resident expressed interest in buying the land, but when he found out developers would landscape the property, he gave up his interest. Deering said.

Savvy helped make money

week they were at par.

However, Beattie said, there was a "slight erosion" at year end, and the funds came out about even for the year.

There are 64 separate trust funds managed by the town, some dedicated to specific purposes, like upkeep for a grave, and some with more general charters, like helping the town's needy.

Some are as small as $1,000, but the general fund has $60,000. Income, which averaged more than 8½ percent this year, is dedicated to permanent care of the cemetery, and library, school and general projects.

Beattie noted that one problem with the trust management, a problem we all would like to have, is the ing said.

Town Engineer John Ciarcia said the covenants that developers would enter into with the town will control landscaping, drainage, traffic and other problems with the Loop land.

Woburn Loop Advisory Committee member Peggy Schleicher, a precinct 8 resident, said she is in favor of the Russell Hill development.

The town is concentrating on the part of the Loop between Hill Street and Russell Road. Deering said the town will retain the land north of Russell Road for "possible future housing." Winchester officials are not sure what to do with the remaining portion of the Loop, which runs south from Hill Street to Swanton Street, he said.

Winn beats the Celtics completely accessible for the handicapped. "It's a long haul in a wheelchair," and the bathrooms are still not properly equipped, she said.

Winn said she has been instrumental in passing other legislation such as laws that require 5 percent of all housing units, in structures such as apartment buildings, to be accessible for the handicapped.

Winn has some complaints about Winchester. "I can't use the Winchester Town Hall. I can't use the Winchester Public Library — that hurts. We have this law and these things still can't be resolved."

It hasn't been an easy road for Winn. "You're out there complaining and complaining, and still things don't get done."

Though her complaints may not reach everyone on Beacon Hill, Winn's voice can be heard through her special hobby of writing poetry. One poem about the restroom facilities on airplanes dealt with her frustration at not being able to go to the bathroom on a long flight to Israel in 1976, where she attended an international rehabilitation conference. She has also written a poem about her experience with the Architectural Access Board.

Despite her disability, Winn has maintained a high level of activity through her community services. She is active with the MS Foundation, and is legislative chairman of MS Night at the Boston Pops. She has also participated in many fundraising activities for children with MS.

Before she was diagnosed in 1965, Winn was very active. She was a cheerleader at Arlington High School, and was in training for the 1964 Olympics in diving and swimming, she said.

"I'm not a brave soldier," she said. "What I do is work for my chance to get what I should have had."

dations.

The report containing the recommendations is riddled with references to the inadequacy of the program, which has been tailored to meet fiscal constraints. "Winchester should be reinvesting an additional $800,000 to $1 million per year in its capital plant above the amounts recommended," it states.

Aside from improvements that just cannot wait, the committee's recommendations tended to promote those projects that either would be partially funded by the state or would pay for themselves in operating savings over a short period of time.

"Projects that pay for themselves are fine if you have a nice little bundle of cash," commented Selectman Robert Deering in reaction to the report. He pointed out that the town has no such bundle.

The selectmen asked various questions about the details of the plan, but were unable to find a way around the fundamental fact that the town needs more improvements than it can pay for.

Inquiries into the need for DPW vehicle replacement turned up accounts by committee members of holes in floorboards and oil guzzlers that cannot be repaired. Members emphasized that they went and looked at real, individual vehicles, instead of using some aging-fleet formula. They turned back as many camels as they could.

Selectman Mark Lombardi suggested that the town renegotiate a long-term contract with its waste hauler rather than buy the capital equipment to do the job itself.

There was some dispute over whether the town or the state will be responsible for funding the pressure-reducing valve for the new Massachusetts Water Resource Authority connection on the northeast side of town. Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia called for a clarification of this point.

At the time the selectmen voted to approve the connection, they understood that the state would pay for the entire project. New information brought out by Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer during the presentation indicates that the town may have to pick up the tab for the valve, to the tune of $213,000.

Deering pressed Van Aken on what he would do if state monies do not become available for some of the eligible projects. Van Aken said they would be abandoned.

Recurring maintenance, renewal and replacement programs in the plan for this year include $366,500 for improvements on school and town buildings, $261,800 for street, sidewalk and parking maintenance, $64,000 for water and sewer maintenance, $396,500 for vehicles and equipment and $30,900 for computers and data processing.

Smaller one-time projects recommended for the year are $21,900 for school carpeting, $10,000 for a school public address system and $15,000 for playground irrigation wells.

Van Aken cited the wells as an example of a project that would pay for itself in savings on purchased water.

Major projects contemplated for the more-distant future include the installation of replacement water meters, projects related to the transfer station, water and reservoir projects parks, playgrounds and schoolgrounds renovations and library renovation.

Van Aken said his committee is recommending $1.1 million of expenditures on the water system. "We should spend $1.5 million to keep the water reasonably safe," he said, but in view of the tight budget, the committee "cut the figures down to where they're reasonable, defensible."

Overrides are possible on 2½

Mark Lombardi lost no time in condemning a tax increase. Lombardi, who is up for re-election this spring, set himself up as an issue candidate. "A vote for me is a vote against a 2½ override," he said.

During the presentation Schmitt used charts and tables to clarify his points. He explained that the maximum level to which taxes can be raised in any year is called the "levy ceiling." The levy ceiling is determined by multiplying the full and fair assessed cash value of real and personal property by 2.5 percent. In Winchester, that valuation is about $1.6 billion and will produce a levy ceiling of $39.6 million in fiscal 1989, according to Schmitt. That figure is far above the actual tax levy.

HOME FUEL OIL

The "levy limit" is the maximum tax levy permissible in a given year. The figure for the levy limit is arrived at by adding a 2.5 percent growth factor and any new construction to the previous year's levy limit. With roughly $200,000 in new growth estimated for fiscal 1989, the levy limit for the year is projected at $22,860,417. The tax levy is projected to be up against the levy limit in fiscal 1989, Schmitt's documentation shows.

The way new revenues can be generated above the levy limit is by a "levy limit override." There are two kinds of override: exclusions of specific debt and capital outlay expenditures, and general exclusions.

The specific exclusion amount, if voted, does not become a permanent part of the levy limit base, but allows a town to assess taxes for the duration of the expense, usually the life of the associated bond, in excess of its levy limit for payment of debt service or capital outlay expenditures.

A specific override requires a four-fifths vote by the selectmen in order to get on the ballot as a referendum.

A simple majority of the voters must approve the override. A majority of Town Meeting members must then vote to appropriate the authorized money.

Since the specific override does not become part of the levy limit, its amount decreases as the debt is paid off.

The general override does become a permanent part of the levy limit base. If voted, the general override raises the base amount by the amount of the override. New levy limit calculations are made ever after from this new base.

A general override requires a three-fifths vote of the selectmen to get on a referendum. A majority of the town's voters must then approve the question, and Town Meeting votes to appropriate the money.

Because a general override does become part of the levy limit, the limit is raised by the amount voted in the first year and expands by 2½ times the new amount in perpetuity.

One difference between a general and specific override is that a general override may not exceed the levy ceiling whereas a specific override can.

Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia has said she is in favor of putting some form of override on the ballot. "Let people vote on the trade-off," she told the board.

Selectman Robert Deering expressed more interest in cost-cutting than revenue-raising.

Schmitt has yet to commit himself and Selectman Francis Soppe, while still holding his ammunition, is a known anti-tax proponent.

NEWS NOTES

EnKa fair permit set for next May

By ROGER L. KAY
Star Editor

The EnKa Fair is now scheduled for May 20 and 21 on Manchester Field.

Fair Co-chairpeople Nancy Clarke and Sandy Thorp appealed to the Winchester Board of Selectmen Monday night for a license to conduct the yearly event and received unanimous backing without discussion.

Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia expressed some reservations about the use of a playfield, particularly in light of the battle the board went through over the use of Leonard Field for the Italian Festival last fall, but Clarke and Thorp assured selectmen that the damage would be minimal and activities would take place off the fields as much as possible.

The fair will still touch a "bit of the soccer field" and the baseball field's left field, but the football field will be untouched, Clarke said.

Muggia admonished EnKa to "look for a hard-surface area" for future fairs in light of recently established town rules designed to protect the investment in playing fields.

Correction

A caption in last week's newspaper incorrectly identified Robert Dole (R-Kan.) as senate majority leader. That title belongs to Robert Byrd (D-W.Va.). Dole is senate minority leader, as the accompanying article indicated.

CROSS COUNTRY SKIING:

Your friends are going skiing again this weekend, and once again they're urging you to come. "Come on," they say. "You'll love it once you get used to it." "It's thrilling, exciting, exhilarating."

Well, maybe for some people. If the thought of careening down a mountain at 100 miles per hour doesn't thrill you, why not try cross-country skiing? It's much less expensive than downhill skiing — for less than the average price of a lift ticket, you can rent cross-country equipment, pay admission to a trail and take a lesson. It's also very easy to learn, great aerobic exercise, social or solitary and exhilarating in its own, perhaps quieter, way.

Go at own pace

About the only similarity between cross-country (also called Nordic and ski touring) skiing and downhill (Alpine) skiing is the fact that there are skis under your feet. Cross-country is "completely different from downhill," according to Evelyn Widhalm of the Weston Ski Touring Center. "You're using your body for momentum, not gravity. In that way it's more work, but it's not as hard as downhill skiing. You can go at your own pace; it doesn't have to wear you out."

Widhalm says cross-country is also less intimidating because any hills you might come across are not that steep and "you can get some control right away." Skiing downhill, even as a beginner, you travel faster and have less control.

Smooth gliding

Touring is sort of a cross between jogging or running and ice skating. As Widhalm explains, the theory behind it is that you are constantly shifting your weight from side to side, throwing your weight forward onto the ski and pushing off with the pole. You glide a bit in between steps, and as you grow more proficient, that glide grows smoother, faster and longer. In beginner classes at Weston center,

"we start people without the poles to get the feel of the motion. Some people think it's like walking but it's not like walking. Eventually you get into a rhythm," Widhalm says.

How to fall down

The beginner class starts at the very beginning, "helping you get a feel for having something under your feet that moves," Widhalm says. It teaches you how to fall down — the best way is sideways — and how to get up again. Widhalm notes, "Usually people try pushing from behind, but that doesn't work. You have to bring your weight forward 'til you're practically on your hands and knees, then stand up. You don't use the poles; most people don't have the upper body strength for that."

Also included in the beginner instruction is turning around, proper use of the poles, skiing down hills with control and using the "herringbone" step for skiing uphill. The class also teaches the "snowplow" to help you slow down, the only step in common with downhill skiing. But the snowplow is more difficult in cross-country skiing because, Widhalm says, "your heels are not hooked down."

There's a major difference in the equipment used for the two types of skiing. The large, chunky downhill boot, attached at the heel and toe to the ski, is reduced in cross-country to a shoe-like boot attached only at the toe. This gives more flexibility to your movements and makes touring seem more like running. But cross-country skis are longer and thinner than downhill skis, making them a bit more awkward to maneuver.

Fiberglass skis

The skis themselves used to be made of wood, which has been deemed too heavy in our age of technology and man-made materials. The newest ones are fashioned in fiberglass with a foam core for lightness and speed. But if you inherit a pair of wooden ones, don't throw them out. Take good care of them. They're sturdy, long-lasting and fine for recreational skiers.

Salespeople will find you a proper fit when you buy or rent skis but the general guidelines are that the tip of the ski should reach your wrist when your arm is extended straight over your head and the pole should reach your armpit. In the boots, which are like lightweight hiking shoes, your toes shouldn't touch the end but the fit should be fairly snug.

Correct wax important

Skis are usually waxed on the bottom to prevent them from sticking to the snow and to ensure a good glide. Different waxes are used depending on the temperature, since the temperature determines the condition of the snow. The waxes are all labeled as such, but a salesperson will be able to help you choose the correct wax and wax your skis properly.

The teachers at the Weston center recommend that beginners use only no-wax skis, however. Other experts also suggest that infrequent skiers use waxless skis. The waxless skis have ridges on the bottom that make it easier to control speed and get up hills.

The layered look

Attire for touring should be lighter and more layered than for downhill skiing because "you work up more heat" while touring, Widhalm notes. After an hour of movement and concentration, you'll find yourself hot and sweaty even in single-digit temperatures. You can then peel off a layer until you cool off. Lots of thin layers trap more body heat than a few thick ones and allow you more freedom of movement.

You will need a hat, gloves and light wool socks that you might wear over your pants bottoms to prevent snow leakage. The outside layer on top should be a wool sweater or light windbreaker. Cotton sweaters, in particular, should be avoided because cotton absorbs water while wool repels it. "And you're going to fall and get wet. Even when you're good, you fall," Widhalm says.

When skiing in very cold weather it's also best to have wool, silk or polypropylene against the skin to wick perspiration away from the body and keep you from getting cold and clammy. There are also new-fangled materials that repel snow on the outside, designed into pants and skisuits for the more serious skier. "But no heavy downhill jackets on the trails!" Widhalm adds.

Not dangerous

The best safety tip is taking a lesson, according to Widhalm. Cross-country is not as dangerous as downhill, but you should know how to stop and fall, at least. Most touring facilities offer lessons aimed at beginners, for a fairly low price. The Weston center also offers an adult/child class for parents of 4- to 6-year-olds, designed to "help parents help their children," as well as intermediate and more advanced skiing technique classes, Widhalm says. Group lessons generally run up to 12 per class, but private lessons are also available at Weston and most other centers.

A fun sport

"Our goal is to help people learn in a way that's very enjoyable because it's really a fun sport. We try to have teachers who are enthusiastic and ski well," Widhalm says. The Weston center, located on the rolling Martin golf course near the intersection of the Mass. Pike and Route 128, touts itself as the best place close to Boston to learn the basics of ski touring. Its 15 km of groomed trails are all easy, but

Skis for rent

Following are just a few of the stores or centers that rent cross-country skis. All require a deposit of $75 or $100 in cash, check or credit card.

Ace Wheelworks, 2044 Mass. Ave., Cambridge, 876-8200. $10.50 per day, $17 for two days or a weekend, $30 for a week.

Recreation Equipment, Inc., 279 Salem St., Reading, 944-5103. This is a cooperative. It costs $10 for a lifetime membership, which entitles you to discounts and no deposits necessary. Packages are $10 a day for members, $12 for non-members; $15 a weekend for members, $18 for non-members; and $30 per week for members, $36 for non-members.

The Ski Market, 860 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, 731-6100 and Endicott Plaza, Danvers, 777-3344. $9.95 per day, $16.95 for a weekend.

Ski, Trek and Paddle, 201 Mass. Ave., Lexington, 863-8900. $8 per single weekday, $14 per single weekend day, $19 for a whole weekend.

Weston Ski Touring Center, Park Road, Weston, 891-6575. $12 for the first day, $10 for the second day, $5 each additional day.

What to Do

you, the trees, snow and sky in the open. Snowmaking equipment assures the white stuff as long as the weather's cold enough. Widhalm says, "We encourage people to learn with us, then go and enjoy the variety of skiing through the woods" on more advanced trails.

But there are easier areas at all of the many other trails in the Boston area. Official ski areas are usually marked or guided to tell skiers what to expect. Unofficial trails in the woods, used by skiers for many years, may be too dangerous for inexperienced skiers.

Lovely trails

The lovely conservation land trails in Lincoln are very popular, for example. Conveniently located across the street from the trailheads is the Lincoln Guide Service, which sells and rents equipment and offers both basic and group lessons for beginners and private lessons. Some of the trails here are steep but most are fine for less experience skiers.

The MDC Middlesex Fells reservation has long been an unofficial haven for cross-country skiers. This year, though, the Fells are being recognized with a six-mile marked trail located mainly in Medford and Stoneham. The trail officially opens Feb. 15. Skiing here is free but you must rent or buy skis elsewhere.

A joint venture between the MDC and the Harvard Community Health Plan, the trail runs the gamut from easy to difficult skiing. Areas will be marked for the various levels of ability, and maps and brochures will be available at the trail heads. Lotte Lent, chief of visitor services for the Fells, says she feels the guided trail will help beginners feel more safe out there.

Golf courses

Many other local golf course and wooded land are used by experienced skiers. Once you've mastered the basics, you can ski anywhere there's snow. You might even want to pioneer a trail in your own backyard! Gear packages (boots, bindings, skis and poles) can be rented for about $10 a day or by the weekend at several ski and sports equipment stores in the area (see box), or at the facilities such as Weston and Lincoln. Or you can buy a package for about $150, or less if you shop at the end-of-the-season sales.

Great exercise

Great exercise at any age, cross-country skiing is fun for a group of friends enjoying a sunny winter afternoon together. If you prefer communing with nature, the sport can provide many perfect, peaceful moments alone in the woods — just you, the trees, snow and sky. If you're living in New England, there's no excuse not to try it!

Ski in the orchards

What better way to enjoy the great outdoors this winter than to cross country ski through open rolling apple orchards. Orchard skiing, according to the Massachusetts department of Food and Agriculture, is easy as pie!

"Orchard skiing lends itself to a large spectrum of people as they may ski at their own pace on a variety of trails geared to the experiences of the skier," said Don Slick, orchard manager at Red Apple Farm in Phillipston.

Orchard skiing is becoming very popular for all ages and especially for families as a fun and relaxing time. Many people like to visit different ski orchards, while others traditionally ski at their favorite orchard at least once a week.

Some orchards provide equipment rentals or information on rentals in their respective areas, while some may provide lessons or guided tours.

After skiing, nothing tastes better than a cup of hot mulled cider or a piece of hot apple pie. Many orchards also serve other hot beverages as well as other hot dishes. While at the orchard, pick up a bag of apples and other products as most orchards that provide ski trails keep their stands open for the winter season.

For information on Orchard Cross Country Skiing, call 727-3018.

Piano Lesson needs work

THE PIANO LESSON, a new drama in two acts by August Wilson, directed by Lloyd Richards, scenery designed by E. David Cosier, Jr., costumes designed by Constanza Romero, lighting designed by Christopher Akerlind. With Charles S. Dutton, Starletta DuPois, Carl Gordon, Rocky Carroll, Lou Myers, Tommy Hollis, Sharon Washington and Jaye Skinner. Produced by the Huntington Theatre Company in association with Yale Repertory Theatre. At the Boston University Theatre, 264 Huntington Ave., Boston through Jan. 31.

Pulitzer Prize-winning dramatist August Wilson's newest play, The Piano Lesson, is a diamond in the rough.

The vehicle is in a formative stage, in what its author and its director, Lloyd Richards, consider a rehearsal period. The collaborative pair have devised an ingenious format of having the production travel from one regional theatre to another while pruning and honing the show and shaping it for Broadway.

Potentially the Piano Lesson is equally as powerful and eloquent as Wilson's other plays: Ma Rainey's Black Bottom, which enjoyed a solid Broadway run and received several Tony Award nominations including one for Charles S. Dutton, who plays the lead in the current production and is magnificent; Joe Turner's Come and Gone, slated to open on Broadway in March; and Fences, which won the 1987 Pulitzer Prize for drama and four Tony Awards including Best Play.

The plays are part of a historical cycle of plays Wilson is writing dealing with each decade of the modern black American experience, focusing on the African heritage, the agony of being black and oppressed in America, and the search for black identity. They are also about "home" . . . a place to find safety and solace, poverty and money, and the desire of blacks to lift themselves up by their bootstraps.

Tens of thousands of black Americans migrated from the rural south to the industrial cities of the north in the 1930s, continuing a pattern established early in the century. Traveling by segregated trains, by car and even on foot, they were lured by the prospect of employment. But job opportunities available to blacks were at the bottom of the ladder, with lower pay and little hope of advancement, and new arrivals found their farming experience of small value. It is against this background, Pittsburgh in 1936, that The Piano Lesson takes place, with the black man continuing his struggle to gain dignity and respect.

Doaker Charles (Carl Gordon), a porter for the railroads for 27 years, is now retired and owns his own home where he lives with a widowed niece, Berneice (Starletta DuPois) and her 12-year-old daughter Maretha (Jaye Skinner). Doaker is somewhat introspective and passive. He's lost track of his wife who lives somewhere in New York. In addition to helping keep house, Berneice works as a maid. The trio live in quiet harmony.

Doaker's home is sparsely furnished but clean, and the living room is dominated by an upright piano . . . a family heirloom with a bloody history. The piano legs are carved with mask-like faces of two generations of their ancestors, the work of Papa Boy Willie in the early 1800s. His wife was sold for the piano, as was his son. The piano represents the family's roots . . . their shared history.

But Boy Willie has more on his mind. He's spent time clearing land for white James Sutter, a 340 pounder who was either pushed or fell down a well. Now Sutter's brother wants to sell . . . 100 acres of good land . . . and Boy Willie can get it for $1,500 "cash money." He's saved one part; the return from the melons represents a second part; and upon selling the piano, a shared legacy with Berneice, he'll have the third part. Then he'll clear the land and farm it, plant a crop and harvest.

For Boy Willie the piano represents a ticket to freedom, a chance to become a man. He wants to forget the past and get on with his life. But Berneice will hear none of it. For her the piano represents years of slavery and sacrifice by their forebears and their ties with the tormented past.

Berneice has been a widow for three years and blames Boy Willie for the death of her husband Crawley. Boy Willie, Lymon and Crawley were hired to cart logs from land being cleared and kept a little on the side for themselves. Later, when they attempted to retrieve the logs they were confronted by the sheriff. Gunfire broke out and although Lymon was shot in the stomach, both he and Boy Willie managed to escape. Crawley holed up in a box care and was torched by the sheriff.

Sutter's ghost haunts the house. Berneice, Maretha and Doaker have witnessed it. Their ancestors also haunt the house. And although Berneice no longer touches the piano she hears her mother playing it.

Another surprise visitor, fresh from Kansas City, is Doaker's brother Wining Boy (Lou Myers). His claim to fame is that he was recorded years ago, singing and accompanying himself on the piano. He has a history of either having "a pack of money" or being broke. At present, he's broke. His wife asked him to leave years ago, although she claimed she still loved him. Now, he's just discovered that she's passed away.

A local preacher, Avery (Tommy Hollis), is sweet on Berneice but she stalls him. He makes a living as an elevator operator but is optimistic about getting a bank loan to finance his church. . . The Good Shepherd Church. Only then will Berneice talk about marriage. In the end Avery proves his true calling as a preacher, a man of God, by exorcising the house (a terribly contrived and totally unsatisfactory device).

On the negative side, the first act contains much dialogue that is superfluous and repetitive. Family genealogy is so confusing and family relationships are so vague that it's midway through the act before the haze clears. It takes a bit to get attuned to the heavy southern dialect, especially that of Dutton, who spews forth his voluminous dialogue like a run-away train. The only other problem is weak projection by Miss DuPois.

On a positive note, Richards' direction is exemplary; the ensemble is stellar; Dutton, Gordon, Myers and Carroll do a great job with I'm a Travellin' Man, sung a cappella; and Wilson paints strikingly authentic word pictures and is literally brimming over with ideas and stories. The music and lyrics are all there — the authenticity of voice, the philosophies, and the rhythms, strong and poetic. Now all that's needed is the blue pencil.

What About Art?

By Meredith Fife Day

Ernest Fiene's 1932 lithograph, Under the Brooklyn Bridge, is one of 50 prints on view in the Danforth Museum's exhibition, City Life: New York in the 1930s.

'City Life...' tells story

A trip through the Danforth Museum's galleries, filled with American prints, paintings and sculpture from the 1920s and '30s, jogs the memory for many and evokes authentic narrative images of the recent past for others. Not only does every picture tell a story in the museum's exhibition, "City Life: New York in the 1930s," but the collective works chronicle an urban culture in which social concerns, triggered by abrupt and uncertain economic shifts, effected a graphic expressionism fueled by the realities of that culture.

In her catalogue introduction, Edith Tonelli, director of University of California at Los Angeles' Frederick S. Wright Art Gallery, quotes artist Raphael Soyer: "I always painted what I saw around me. In the 1930s I painted many pictures of unemployed and homeless men, because I saw them everywhere." Though not all artists included in the exhibition depicted the homeless, as Soyer did, they all were involved observers of the city and allowed it a major role in determining their vision.

Newly immense-scaled skyscrapers, bridges and industrial architecture became the subject that both reflected the life and times and lent structural monumentality to the pictures of Ernest Fiene, Howard Cook and Armin Landeck. Sharp, carefully-defined shadows cast dark, angular shapes on roofs and walls of buildings in the cityscapes of these and other artists, giving them at once graphic drama and blocked solidity. Views are expansive, encompassing the panorama of the harbor in many instances, of whole city blocks in others, and of a multiplicity of architectural structures in all. Yet, despite largeness of view, density of the city's space is always conveyed, whether through the myriad of windows that clue us in on the height and breadth of individual buildings, or allusions to narrow passages between the big structures, as in Landeck's tilted aerial view, Manhattan Canyon, of 1934.

Involvement in city life for the artists meant observing its inhabitants as well as its structures. And the images in the exhibition fall broadly into the categories of people and buildings.

The people are surviving the effects of the depression and are most often seen in groups: on their way to and from work, as the tired commuters of Julius Bloch, and the masses in Benton Spruance's dark, dense series, The People Work; out of work as the sober group eating bread and sipping from their mugs in Soyer's The Mission; or pursuing specifically urban leisure as those in Blenden Campbell's Bowling on the Green, or Don Freeman's The First Washington Square Art Show.

Though many of the artists' training was grounded in academic drawing from the model, their preoccupation with the figure takes expressive form. Isabel Bishop's figures are drawn with sensitivity and sympathy but, notably, without condescension. Reginald Marsh's prints are lively and rhythmic, and his people, tugboats, clouds and puffs of smoke all tell of a movement and energy of draftsmanship in synch with the pulse of his city. Peggy Bacon's impertinent lines warn against taking her cast of characters too seriously, while Paul Cadmus's laboriously turgid contours voice an ever-present undertow of anger in his visual satires.

The political edge of the works is stated not only in the subject matter and form, but in the medium itself. Though the exhibition is supplemented handsomely by figurative sculpture from the '30s and by about 20 paintings from the collection of John P. Axelrod, its force lies in the 50 prints on loan from the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York. Tonelli refers to "the democratic function of print," a direct result of the 1930s' economic desperation, out of which came the Federal Art Project of the Works Progress Administration supporting, says Tonelli, "the artists' commitment to social issues and to reaching a mass audience without sacrificing their freedom to work, while it addressed their need to make a living. It also encouraged the idea of artists as workers in society, with a role to play and a community to support them."

The exhibition continues at the Danforth Museum through Feb. 7. Located at 123 Union Ave., Framingham, the museum is open noon to 4:30 Wednesday through Friday and 1 to 4:30 p.m. weekends. Call 620-0050.

In conjunction with the exhibition, the Danforth will present "Visions of the City," a film and lecture by Daniel Czitrom of Mount Holyoke College at 8 p.m. Jan. 29. "The Influence of New York City on Boston Architecture, 1890-1940," a slide presentation and lecture by Paul Marx of Boston Architectural Center, is scheduled for Feb. 5 at 8 p.m.

Viewers will also want to take note of the exhibition, "The Boom and The Bust: Graphic Visions of American Life in the 1920s and 1930s" at Boston University Art Gallery, 855 Commonwealth Ave., Boston (call 353-3329). Featuring 105 American prints from the

There's a good reason America hasn't been too successful in its wars lately, Bob Hope. Every time we send soldiers to strange lands, we send Bob Hope right after them to try and boost their morale. Now c'mon! Can we really trust a man whose idea of a great comedienne is Brooke Shields to keep Our Boys entertained.

Of course not. What the troops need is Robin Williams. And with "Good Morning, Vietnam," that's what they get. Hope's humor is enough to convince the Commies that the American Army is so bored, it would welcome a little battle as an exciting diversion. William's humor, though, is enough to make the enemy surrender just so they can catch the end of his act.

There have been a lot of movies about the Vietnam War lately, examining it from every conceivable viewpoint. Some of the movies had

by Craig Tomashoff

Good Morning, Viet Nam does not leave a dry eye in the house a lot of things going for them. But none of them had Robin Williams. "Good Morning, Vietnam" is the first film to make a few jokes about the war. It's also the first film to let Williams do The Stuff he's famous for, while also playing a serious character.

In the end, "Good Morning, Vietnam" has plenty of serious things to say about what a stupid experience Vietnam was, but thanks to Williams' personality, this Message is made easier than it is in preacher films.

Williams is "Good Morning, Vietnam." It's impossible to imagine the movie being made without him. He plays Adrian Cronauer, a military disc jockey who comes to Vietnam in 1965. The war is still just a police action at that point, so even Bob Hope won't come over to entertain the troops yet. (As one character puts it, "Bob doesn't play police actions, only wars. He likes a big room.")

Radio in Vietnam consists of Mantovani music and public service announcements about library books, so the military brass wants somebody to listen things up and make the men forget about what they're really doing in a land of rice paddies and bad beer. Enter Cronauer. He's supposed to be pretty funny, so he's hired to boost morale. Which he does from the first moment he shouts, "Goooooooooooooorning, Vietnammmmmmmmm!" into his microphone.

Between playing James Brown and Martha and the Vandellas, Cronauer launches into improvised comedy routines that sort of spill out of his mouth the way slime spilled from Linda Blair in "The Exorcist." The first half of the movie is almost entirely devoted to letting Williams take off on these manic monologues.

One minute he's playing a soldier in the artillery division, who has a request. Play anything. Just play it loud. The very next second, he's a fashion designer who's helping the military update its look. He figures camouflage is a bad design because you can't see it. "When you go into a battle, you should clash."

The monologues, which Williams has said he improvised during the filming, are the heart of the movie. But they're not the whole movie. There's something else going on here too, courtesy of director Barry Levinson. Just like in his other movies, like "Diner" and "Tin Men," the film starts out funny but gets very serious as it goes along.

As Cronauer's fame as a DJ grows, a couple of his by-the-book superiors (played by Bruno Kirby and J.T. Walsh) start pushing to get him out. For some reason, they don't find it funny when Cronauer explains that Lyndon Johnson named his daughter Lynda Bird because "Linda Dog would have been too cruel." So what if he has become the most popular thing with the troops since honorable discharge? His superiors figure the military is in Vietnam to make the country safe for the status quo. And polka music.

While they're busy putting pressure on Cronauer, he's busy mixing with the locals. He befriends a young Vietnamese boy. And the boy's attractive sister. The problem is, Vietnam in 1965 was not the best of times for an American to start making friends with Vietnamese. Resentment was starting to settle in, and Cronauer's relationship with the brother and sister is doomed from the start.

As "Good Morning, Vietnam" rolls along, Levinson does something sneaky. He subtly tosses in little shots of soldiers and trucks and more soldiers and more trucks, telling the back of your mind that this police action is quickly becoming something more than what your typical SWAT team could handle. Before you know it, he has a documentary-like scene where Cronauer does a few of his routines, but suddenly both he and the audience realize there's something pretty damn serious going down here.

This slow shift from a comedy that doesn't leave a dry eye in the house to a drama that seems almost too real may tick some people off. But then, "Good Morning, Vietnam" isn't supposed to be just a Robin Williams concert film. It's the chance for him to showcase his manic talents into a story that has a little dramatic impact. A combination none of his seven previous films have had. Not even Robin Williams can be funny all the time.

Movies like "Platoon" and "Full Metal Jacket" have spent their time trying to make The Statement about the Vietnam War. "Good Morning, Vietnam" also has something to say, but the message is cleverly disguised with Williams' extreme-of-consciousness comedy. You learn a few things while you laugh.

Let's just see a Bob Hope special try to do that.

Audi Remanufactured Parts.
Built Like New.
Priced For Less.

Remanufactured parts are better than "rebuilt" or "reconditioned" parts. They may even be better than original parts since technical advances are often incorporated into the remanufacturing process.

Each unit — alternator, water pump or one of over 300 other parts — is disassembled, cleaned and tested to exacting standards. During reassembly, parts that do not meet these standards are replaced. Then the assembly is tested again to make sure it works as well as the original in every way.

Our remanufactured parts carry the same 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty as new Audi Parts.* The only thing that isn't like new is the price.

CAR CARE CORNER
By Dan Hogan,
Service Manager

The term "front-end alignment" means getting the front wheels hanging from the car in the proper up-and-down attitude and pointing in the right directions. The front wheels are adjustable: you see and a front wheel that's scrubbing along cocked at a slightly wrong angle can waste you some gas as well as make the car handle lunny. Front-end adjustment isn't something you do yourself—it takes accurate, scientific gauges and meters. You should have the front end checked every six months or so. Besides saving a bit of gas, it'll make your tires last longer.

Community care

Good health is a measure of our quality of life

Good health. It used to be something we took for granted. Or, as we aged or were affected by illness, we looked upon it with longing. That's when we'd turn to family, friends, a doctor, a hospital, a member of the clergy. One person's illness affected - and sometimes challenged - the whole community.

Today, we know good health means staying well. It's something we work on actively. And perhaps we're healthier than we used to be.

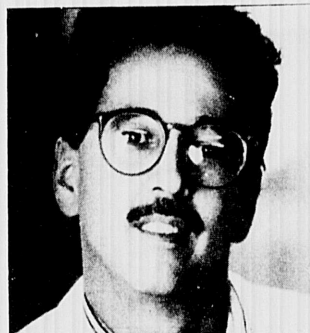

Yet, there's an irony. As we learned to care for ourselves, the old supports of family, old friends, and established community structures were giving way.

Today, when we're sick, we can't reach out so simply as we used to. Thanks to a brisk economy, we're surrounded by new friends. Families have divided, reformed, and divided again. Traditional supports are weakened, while the cost of being sick rises relentlessly.

As we live with this mix of energy, optimism, and anxiety, we still try to keep sight of the truth: That health care is a community concern. That no one of our neighbors should be sick and alone. And that keeping ourselves well means working together to educate, heal, and inspire the next generations to care, too.

Caring for the whole patient

Allergies, heart disease, kidney stones, sports medicine, plus virtually every other health concern.

The care of specialists representing almost every specialty and subspecialty of medicine is available at the Lahey Clinic, where a staff of 200 physicians sees as many as 2,000 outpatients each day from throughout New England and beyond.

Appointments can be made by physician referral or directly by the patient without a referral. For an information packet, contact the Public Relations Department at the address below.

Are we dying for dollars?

Doctors, patients, and everyone in between wonder at the cost and complexity of our health care system

THE MONEY CRUNCH

By Adam Gaffin

STAFF WRITER

When Dr. William McDermott set up his own pediatric practice in 1960, he spent, maybe, a total of $400 on second-hand equipment, malpractice insurance and a federal license to prescribe drugs.

Today, a specialist could easily spend $100,000 just on medical equipment for his office, McDermott, now a Natick resident and vice president of the Massachusetts Medical Society, says.

Figures like that tell the real story of what is happening in health care today.

Forget the fancy new high-tech equipment like CAT-Scanners and ophthalmic lasers. Forget all the new drugs and promising research developments.

The story of health care today is the story of economics.

The $150,000 that buys one person a new heart or keeps a person in a permanent coma alive for one year could also pay for checkups for 20,000 poor people.

Increasingly, experts wonder how much more we can continue to increase our spending on health care.

"The overall issue of cost control will continue to be the number-one priority in health care, overriding all other concerns," Mark Coven, chief of the Consumer Protection Division of the state Attorney General's office, and one of the architects of Gov. Michael Dukakis's original health-care bill, said recently at a meeting of the American Association of Nurse Attorneys. That group's goals include helping form health-care policy and law and educating the public about health law.

American health care is a $500 billion industry whose costs continue to grow far faster than the consumer-price index. In Massachusetts alone, we now spend $12 billion a year on health care — $2,000 every year per resident.

And a recent study by the federal Health Care Financing Administration predicted that health-care costs, which now consume 11 percent of the gross national product, will eat up 15 percent of the GNP by the year 2000. Every extra dollar spent on health care is one less dollar we can spend on other things, notes Stuart Altman, dean of the Florence Heller Graduate School for Advanced Studies in Social Welfare at Brandeis University.

Yet for all that money — only Sweden spends more per person on health care — the U.S. still lags far behind other western industrial countries in such areas as infant mortality and age expectancy.

Two decades of "cost-containment" have done little to contain costs. "The pressure for spending is still intense," according to Altman, who also chairs a federal committee that reviews the way the Medicare program pays its patients' bills. "It tends, in total, to override all attempts at control." Some observers wonder how much longer we can keep spending more and more on health care without beginning to ration care based solely on the size of a person's bank account.

And cost-containment has changed the way our health is cared for.

Already in some states, sometimes deathly ill people are turned away at the emergency rooms of private hospitals because they have no insurance, and even in Massachusetts, where that is illegal, tens of thousands of people go without basic medical care even as hospital across the state expand such money-making facilities as cosmetic-surgery units.

But even for those with adequate insurance, the emphasis on economics has meant fundamental changes in health care and in the institutions that provide it.

■ People are less likely to be admitted to the hospital, but when they are, they stay for shorter periods of time. For the first time in history, hospital admissions and occupancy rates began to drop in the early 1980s, as insurance policies begin to emphasize the use of outpatient or one-day surgery centers. Many insurance plans now require a second opinion or approval by a review board of any non-emergency admission or surgery.

■ Hospitals are converting empty beds in medical-surgical wards to other, money-producing, uses. Leonard Morse Hospital in Natick, for example, will seek state permission to change 12 beds now used for traditional acute-care services into a psychiatric unit.

■ Hospitals are diversifying into other health-related fields. Leonard Morse is also seeking state permission to build a 160-bed nursing home next to its present facility. Leonard Morse, Framingham Union and Marlboro hospitals all run industrial-medicine programs, at a fee, for local businesses.

■ New technologies and drugs put doctors and patients in the uncomfortable position of choosing treatment based on cost. TPA, a new drug that can save heart-attack victims, works better than the existing drug, streptokinase, but can cost 10 times as much.

Medical residents find pain, fatigue, growth in their work

By Joe Dwinell

STAFF WRITER

NEWTON — It's a test of mind and body.

A grueling procession of patients and prescriptions, classes and calls, X-rays and exhaustion all packed into a 100-hour work week.

"I'm totally immersed in this environment," says Dr. Elaine Wu Grunberg, a medical resident at Newton-Wellesley Hospital. "It's a very wearing experience emotionally and psychologically."

But it is all part of a medical tradition. Every doctor, from the country physician to the big-city surgeon, struggled through at least three years of residency.

It's a type of boot camp. A hands-on education in the medical profession.

From sunrise to sunset, and often all through the night, approximately 76,815 residents (5,000 in Massachusetts) will march through rounds around the country this year, honing their medical skills, according to the American Medical Association in Chicago, Ill.

For Grunberg, a 27-year-old native of Connecticut, the rooms and hallways of Newton-Wellesley Hospital are her training ground. Her mission is to absorb as much as is humanly possible about her field in three years.

After that, the world has another fully-trained internist.

■ 8 A.M.: Grunberg heads out on morning rounds with her team of residents and interns, cups of coffee in tow, checking on one patient with a bowel disease, another with a case of pneumonia and a frail elderly woman near death:

"How are you ...?" Grunberg asks the woman.

"I'm awake."

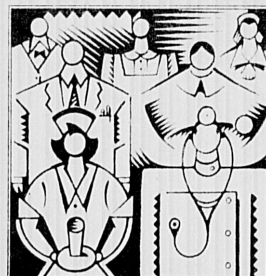

"How's your breathing?"

"I'm alive, so I must be breathing," the patient answers softly.

The goal of the hospital is to use actual cases to teach the fledgling doctors. Although the residents are not in total control of a patient's care, they do make decisions and are quizzed at every turn on the correct prognosis.

"It is an intertwining of medical education and patient care," says Dr. John Harrington, Newton-Wellesley's chief of medicine and director of the internal medicine training program. "There is a lot of education going on all of the time."

Before residency, the young doctors must have already completed four years of undergraduate education and a four-year medical school program. "You have to remember," said Grunberg repeatedly during rounds, "we are well prepared for all of this even before we get here."

Grunberg, a tall woman with jet-black hair with wisps of brown, is a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College in South Hadley and Pennsylvania State Medical School in Hershey, Pa.

Her first impression of the medical profession, albeit a romantic one, occurred at a young age when a often "sickly" Grunberg idolized her pediatrician.

"I wanted to work with people the rest of my life while using science," she said. "I didn't want to be stuck in a lab."

■ 9:45 A.M.: Grunberg runs to her daily "resident report" — a free-for-all medical review with fellow top residents on the latest cases. The doctors' eyes light up when a puzzling case of a young man, with

Diabetes can affect eyes a little or alot

By David S. Gendelman, M.D.

Diabetes is a disease that can affect the whole body, including the eye. Changes in the eye from diabetes can range from very mild, which only the ophthalmologist can detect, to severe - causing complete loss of vision.

In the early stages of the disease the retina, which acts like film in the eye, develops fine abnormalities of the blood vessels, hemorrhages and fatty collections. During this stage the vision may be excellent. However, these changes may lead to fluid leaking into the center of the retina (edema) which can markedly decrease the vision.

If these early changes are detected, laser treatment can often substantially reduce the risk of visual loss, and increase the chance of visual improvement.

Laser surgery is a major advance for diabetics. Laser treatment usually takes less than an hour, usually is an outpatient procedure and in most cases is relatively painless.

In the advanced stage of diabetes new abnormal blood vessels grow in the retina. These vessels may bleed, causing the jelly center of the eye to fill up with blood. This may be followed by scarring in the eye which ultimately may separate the retina from the back wall of the eye causing retinal detachment.

These changes cause severe loss in vision and occasionally total blindness.

Again, only treatment can decrease the chance of severe visual loss in patients with these changes in their eyes. In the most severe type of diabetic eye disease, a surgery called vitrectomy is performed which can remove blood and scarring from the eye, or help reattach the retina if it has detached.

No treatment can guarantee preservation of good vision but early detection and treatment can substantially reduce the risk of visual loss.

All patients with diabetes should have their eyes regularly examined by an ophthalmologist to try to prevent loss of vision.

Acupuncture making it in Massachusetts

By Jan Matlis
CORRESPONDENT

Massachusetts, known among many medical therapists as the home of a very conservative medical establishment, took a step toward acceptance of an alternative method of medical treatment last fall.

That is when the Massachusetts Board of Registration in Medicine, acting under state mandate, published new regulations to allow acupuncturists to practice in the commonwealth without referrals from medical doctors.

Acupuncturists are also required to have attended at least two years of secondary school, with courses in anatomy, physiology, and biology; to have taken two years of accredited acupuncture training within one year of clinical internship (which may be done concurrently); and to have passed a state exam.

Acupuncturists already in practice will be allowed to continue their work.

There is a patchwork of attitudes across the country toward acupuncture. Different states regulate its practice in different ways. The recent action by Massachusetts officials helps legitimize a type of treatment that has had a hard time finding acceptance in some medical corners.

Perhaps one of the most difficult things about acupuncture from a medical perspective is that it is a relatively unknown commodity, according to Jane McLoughlin, director of the New England School of Acupuncture (NESA), located in Watertown. Not only is it unexplained, but there are few controlled studies to show what its effects are.

NESA has about 30 faculty members and a clinic that treats about 200 patients a week. The program has trained over 400 acupuncturists. (Please see page 18)

High technology helps with health education

By Thomas Content and Fred Waugh
STAFF WRITERS

Health education is going high tech in one local community.

Secondary students in Watertown are learning about the dangers of alcohol abuse and AIDS through the use of modern teaching tools.

While some parents are frustrated their children watch too much television, it is through that medium, and its advanced forms, that the school system talks to students about issues many parents have trouble discussing with their kids.

The American Red Cross, for example, is using a 29-minute video, "A Letter from Brian," as the cornerstone of its AIDS Prevention Program for Youth, being piloted this spring in Watertown and six other communities nationwide.

And Harvard Community Health Plan Foundation has made Watertown the first stop on a tour of local school systems of an interactive video program called "Ben's Grille," a portable version of a recent exhibit at Boston's Museum of Science.

The programs are designed not so teachers can avoid discussing the tough issues of sex, AIDS and drug abuse, but as a way for students to speak to students, in their own style and lingo, in a way that encourages them to make their own decisions about their behavior.

School officials see use of modern technology as a way to complement, not replace the teacher as educator.

"It helps the students make intelligent decisions," said John Flores, who chairs the media services department in Watertown schools. "It's another instrument of technology that supports our curriculum."

The AIDS video is used during a four-to-eight class curriculum taught by local health, science and social science teachers, according to Robert Dupuis, acting curriculum head for health and physical education in Watertown.

Ellen Tishman, associate director of health services at the American Red Cross, said curriculum materials include not only the video but also a student workbook, teacher handbook and a brochure for parents.

In addition, local teachers have received between six hours of training to help lead discussions they hope the video will foster.

While the AIDS video portrays students with different attitudes in a way to encourage viewers to make their own decisions, "Ben's Grille" is more involving.

Students who stop by the eight-foot-tall kiosk at the Watertown High School library can press a computer screen to actually make decisions for a film character thinking about whether to order alcohol at Ben's Grille, a Cheers-like bar complete with brass railings.

Participating students then see the consequences of their decisions when, as the scenario is played out, a star basketball player is benched from the team and eventually turns in his term paper late + the consequences of drinking too much beer at Ben's Grille.

The video bar will be open at Watertown High School for several months, until it rotates to another area school system.

The portable system is based on a $150,000 exhibit which was at the Museum of Science for more than a year.

The portable version of the exhibit, adapted by Butler Raila and Company, a Boston computer technology firm, is planned for use in area universities and companies.

In addition to modern technology, Watertown schools are using the person-to-person method of teaching about alcohol and drug abuse.

Through the Peer Leadership program, Dupuis said, "students help students" to learn about the dangers of drug abuse.

By using the classroom, peer leader and high tech methods, the schools hope to take an issue like AIDS or drugs and "come at it in different ways," Dupuis said.

FOR THE ACTIVE EXPERIENCE

How much fitness can your budget fit?

By Carol Beggy
STAFF WRITER

It's not always cheap to be healthy and it's not always healthy to be cheap.

As people become more and more involved in their physical conditioning, the market for fitness equipment and clothing has grown.

People can now spend hundreds of dollars on memberships to clubs and clothes for the work-out, but local merchants and owners of fitness equipment stores say people should buy only what equipment they know they will need and should make their purchases wisely.

There are numerous health clubs in the western suburbs with many of the more exclusive private clubs offering indoor tracks and swimming.

"It's the old saying of 'You get what you pay for,'" said one health club manager. "If you want top-of-the-line equipment and first-rate instruction, pay the extra money and go to the best private clubs. If you just want a place to work out now and then, you don't have to pay as much."

A cheaper alternative to the private clubs + which can cost several hundred dollars a year + are the local YMCAs, community recreation facilities and Boys and Girls clubs.

In most cases the more public facilities can cost about a quarter what the private clubs cost and they offer many of the same recreational opportunities, area directors say.

The Arlington Recreation Department + like many others in the area + offers a wide-variety of organized sports and activities for town residents of all ages.

There are other private organizations in the area, which offer similar fitness, team sports, educational and development programs for a $5 to $25 membership fee, plus program costs in some cases.

Several of the area organizations allow non-members to participate in some activities on a limited or pay-as-you-attend basis.

If organized clubs aren't your idea of fun and fitness, then jogging or walking can be more individualized and cheaper alternative.

While there are no membership fees or commuting to the work-out facility, those involved in the activities suggest people invest in a good pair of shoes and safety gear.

Shoes can cost between $25 and $50, with safety vests and reflective strips can add another $15 to $30 to your tab, but if you'll be out after dark, experts say you should not only be comfortable but visible.

Another low-impact activity is bicycling, said Mark O'Brien, proprietor of The Bicycle Corner in Arlington.

Someone interested in bicycling as a recreational activity can purchase a well-working bike that will hold up on city streets and park roads for $170 to $250, O'Brien said.

Those more serious about the sport can buy mountain bikes for $200 to $700, and 10-speeds for $170 to a $1,000 competition bike.

In all cases, O'Brien said people should also pick themselves out a helmet, which cost between $40 and $70, and reflective wear for night riding.

Those who commute or take longer treks might want some of the more suitable and comfortable clothing which can cost another $50 to $150.

O'Brien said general maintenance of a bicycle is easy to learn and keeping your equipment in running condition will cost a $30 a year for a professional check-up. There are good how-to books on bike repair and many of the local recreation departments and libraries offer free courses.

"Biking is not something you have to be in really good condition to start doing," said O'Brien. "It allows you to go further away from your home than jogging and doesn't have the impact on your system."

The ever popular low-impact recreational activity, bowling, can also be an inexpensive alternative.

At Lanes and Games Bowling on Route 2 + near the Belmont/Arlington line + there is open and league bowling seven days a week.

Shoe rental is about 90 cents and a string of 10-pins costs $1.75 before 5 p.m. and $2 after. Candlepin bowling runs $1.50 a string before 5 p.m. and is $1.80 during the night.

The facility has 54 lanes and offers cheaper rates for senior citizens and children. Group and league rates are also available.

For those who like to sit back and do something such as thinking and relaxing, Chester Spencer of Arlington Fishing and Tackle, said you get set up in the sport for under $50.

Spencer recommends that those interested in fishing look around at K-Mart, Ann & Hope, Bradlee's and other stores to find a good rod & reel for $30 to $40.

The only other necessity beside choosing some bait, Spencer said, is to buy a license for about $13 a year.

As people get more involved in the sport they can purchase rods for up to $600 and get a variety of exotic lures, Spencer said.

But he added: "A $600 rod doesn't catch any better fish than a $20 rod. People can buy all sorts of things if they want to spend the money, but I won't sell them anything they don't need."

There's good fishing in Walden Pond, the Mystic Lakes, Spy Pond and other ponds and rivers in the area. A 30-pound pike was pulled out of the Charles River in Waltham about a week ago, Spencer said.

Dancing and exercising are good fitness alternatives for the serious and the not-so-serious, said Adrienne Miller-Darveris, who owns a dance studio in Arlington, which bears her name.

Classes cost about $5 a week, Miller-Darveris said, and there are about 12 people per class.

People don't have to be serious dancers to enjoy a dance class, she said. Participants range in age from 3 to 60 and take everything from exercise classes to tap, ballet and ballroom dancing.

The only special gear a person would need, Miller-Darveris said, is a leotard and some tights. Others also buy ballet slippers, she said, because they make good slippers to wear around the house.

In the area of more active recreational sports is fencing.

The Academy of Fencing in Watertown offers instruction in all areas and levels of fencing.

A 10-week group class runs $90, with equipment provided. Private instruction and equipment are also offered through the academy.

For those who like the outdoors, animals and good exercise, horse riding might be the perfect health activity.

According to Lisa Camuso of the Dover Saddlery in Wellesley, there are very few, if any barns, that offer horses for hourly or daily rental. The cost of liability insurance has made it impossible to rent the horses at a reasonable fee, she said.

Lessons can run about $30 an hour for basic instruction, with private and more specialized lessons running more.

While you can spend thousands of dollars on top-of-the-line boots and clothing, Camuso said the key purchases are a good helmet and rubber boots and can be bought for about $50.

A good horse can start at about $10,000, Camuso said, but people interested in horse riding can lease a horse from a barn or could buy a horse + that may not be fully healthy + for around $500 to $1,000.

Boarding a horse can cost about $400 at the best barns, with feed and cleaning included. Other barns are not as expensive, if the owner is willing to pitch in and feed and clean the horse.

"It's not a cheap sport," said Camuso. "But it's great exercise and teaches people good posture, discipline and manners. It can be very expensive, it just depends how deeply you get into it."

Most involved in various fitness fields say the activities can cost you a great deal of money depending how much money you want to spend. The safety equipment are the only musts.

Others say the costs of not being healthy far outweigh whatever you pay for fitness equipment.

In addition to doctor and hospital bills, a remote controlled 25-inch television can run $469, a rudimentary couch can cost $700, a hot tub anywhere between $2,000 to $30,000 and a large delivered pizza, with everything, is $12.85.

Comfort key factor in new birthing unit

Artist's concept of labor, delivery and recovery room at Winchester Hospital

By Sue Shor
STAFF WRITER

In these days of rapid advancement in the medical field, comfort still counts.

Comfort, along with good medical care, is a blessing to a woman in labor. When Winchester Hospital decided to renovate its maternity wing, comfort was one of its considerations.

The $4.8 million renovation will also broaden the range of services the hospital now provides to mothers and babies. The maternity unit is the busiest unit at the hospital, according to hospital spokeswoman Anne Scigliano. It had not been renovated for 25 years.

One feature will allow women to enter labor, deliver and recover in the same room, instead of in three different settings. The Labor/Delivery/Recovery (LDR) rooms will be equipped with ultrasound and telemetry for emergencies or complicated births.

The furniture, wallpaper and general decor of LDRs will be more like the comforts of home than a hospital room. Emergency apparatus will be kept behind a partition, while a comfortable chair for a husband or child is a fixture in all LDRs.

The renovated unit will contain more private rooms with private baths and, in line with current practices, an expanded capacity to deal with sibling and grandparent participation. The hospital offers sibling tours in which children expecting a little brother or sister can see where their mother will be. Maternity nurses give the children instruction on basic care of their new sibling.

Comfort is important, but more important is medical care. One new medical service the hospital will offer is a Level II special care nursery. The Level II nursery cares for infants who are born ill or at-risk. If such a child is born at Winchester Hospital today, it must be transferred to another hospital. With the addition of the Level II nursery, babies who must be transferred to a tertiary care nursery (Level III), those who have a very serious illness or risk, can be transferred back to Winchester sooner than they are now. hospitals in northeast Middlesex County or on the North Shore have Level II facilities.

As part of the Harvard Joint Program in neonatology, the maternity unit will have 24-hour coverage by a neonatologist, a doctor specializing in the care of ill and at-risk infants. Children's Hospital Medical Center, Brigham and Women's and Beth Israel Hospitals are part of the joint program.

Scigliano said the hospital is looking for a pediatric care clinician to compliment the new nursery.

When a woman cannot take advantage of the LDR room, she will be able to recover in a newly-designed postpartum room. The room, once again, is set up to provide a comfortable environment for recovery and one that family members can visit with mother and baby.

The hospital also plans to have 24-hour anesthesiology and a new caesarian delivery room.

Scigliano said the hospital's goal is to have 2000 babies born in the new unit each year. In 1987, 1573 babies were born at the hospital.

A $1.5 million capital campaign is being conducted to offset the cost of the new unit. Dr. James McDonough, who has delivered 15,000 babies at Winchester Hospital in the past 40 years and in whose honor the Maternity Services Unit was named in 1985, is chairman of the fundraising committee.

The SIRESKOP 4—Explorator 35S Radiology Suite at the Symmes Hospital Division enables Choate-Symmes Radiology Services to display the arteries and vessels (angiography), the gastrointestinal tract, and even swallowing mechanisms for examination. Designed by Siemens Medical Systems, "the machine is in constant use performing a variety of exams requested by our medical staff," said Jeanne Elia, director of radiology.

The SIRESKOP enables neurological and skeletal examinations. X-ray visualization of the spinal cord (myelography) and of the veins is achieved through the injection of a radiopaque substance into the spine or veins.

The Radiology Department at the Choate division is in the process of installing its own SIRESKOP.

Tooth decay most common child's disease

"The most prevalent disease of children in the world is tooth decay." Yet it is a disease which can be prevented.

Donald S. Sherman, D.M.D., a past president of the Mass. Academy of pediatric dentistry and a member of its board, advises parents of tots and children going to school about what they can do while their children are at home, in school and in the car to provide dental care. He practices in Arlington.

Check-ups

As little as 10 years ago half the 10-year-olds in this country had cavities, says Dr. Sherman. Through the increase of fluoridation and earlier dental care the incidence of decay is dropping.

He advises that a child start going to a dentist when he is 2 years old. With good preventive dentistry, the purpose of the dental check-up has changed from trying to detect decay to providing for prevention of decay through cleaning, fluoridation, sealants and x-rays when essential.

Dr. Sherman says that the average child should have a dental check-up every six months. A child with braces should see his dentist every three to four months.

Dr. Sherman feels that it is important for dental care to be given to children in an atmosphere that is not found to be threatening.

Pediatric dentists who have an additional two years of training, specialize in treating children through college age as well as handicapped adults and adults who have trouble dealing with dental care. They are trained in techniques of patient comfort, such as the proper use of sedatives and anesthetics, so that pain is alleviated and controlled.

Dr. Sherman says that tremendous strides have been made in the area of applying novocain so that children do not feel the needle and dental care can be practically painless.

Preschool Age

Permanent (adult) teeth start developing at birth. Parents should know that injury to a baby tooth, such as from a fall, could cause damage to a permanent tooth.

Dr. Sherman says it is extremely important for baby teeth to be restored to health because decay in baby teeth can lead to decay in permanent teeth. In addition, baby teeth are responsible for the position of the later teeth. If a baby tooth has to be pulled because of disease or abscess, a malocclusion (faulty closure of teeth) could result unless the space is preserved.

Children start getting adult teeth at age 6 and continue getting them through age 12. Dr. Sherman says it is important to avoid decay in the mouth by age 5 because decay can spread to other teeth.

The 6-year tooth which erupts first does not replace a baby tooth — it is an adult tooth coming into its own spot. Young children have 20 baby teeth, then at age 6 this molar arrives.

Parents should be careful that a bottle filled with juice or milk which contains sugar is not used as a pacifier for prolonged periods during the day or at night. He says it is not the feeding from the bottle which is a concern to dentists, but the prolonged and slow sucking of the sugar or lactose.

Parents of toddlers should be aware that a strong thumb or pacifier habit will influence the shape of the mouth and can reposition the jaws and teeth. Dr. Sherman says that until a child is 5 or 6 he can't be talked out of a habit, but he should be discouraged from sucking if he does it with "ferocity or tenacity."

Snacks

It isn't the amount of sugar a person eats, but how often he eats sugar, that affects the rate of tooth decay. Dr. Sherman says that parents should try to direct snack choices away from the sugars.

For at-home snacks, he suggests that parents who want to give their children flavored drinks buy the concentrated syrup and add more water than called for. Any beverages that are low in sugar are preferred over the high-sugar drinks.

Parents can get an idea of the sugar content by looking at a food's list of ingredients. "The lower the sugar is on the list of ingredients, the better it is," Dr. Sherman says. Even though no amount is shown, parents will know if there is a lot of sugar in something because ingredients must be listed in order of their content.

If these kinds of steps are taken at home, he believes the child's choices when he is free to make them, such as at school lunch, will be influenced.

Even products such as peanut butter should be scrutinized. Since the concern is the frequency of contact with sugar, Dr. Sherman does not suggest that a parent ban sugar, but that the numbers of times a day a child eats sugar be limited.

This can be accompanied by giving snacks like popcorn, fruit, low-sugar beverages and sugar-free gum instead.

Candies that last in the mouth, such as lollipops, are not as good, from the dental point of view, as the ones that dissolve fast or are eaten quickly. Dr. Sherman suggests that parents might want to make the sweet the after-supper dessert and reward after a day of no sugar snacks.

Fluoride rinse and tooth sealers for molar teeth increase the resistance of teeth to decay and in the average patient provide better than 90 percent effectiveness, Dr. Sherman says. With that care, one brushing a day and a reasonable control of sweets a child would be less likely to get decay. However, there must be emphasis on the sweets if a child is not getting fluoride treatments or sealers.

Weight loss centers thrive

Since its inception in 1979, Physicians Weight Loss Centers has helped thousands of overweight clients change their eating habits to bring their weight problems under control. The great demand for weight reduction services has contributed to the steady growth of this company, which has placed over 300 Centers on the map already.

The Centers assure a weight loss of up to four pounds per week if the client could lose between 42 to 98 pounds during a 14-week period. This amazingly fast rate of weight loss is closely monitored by a medical team of doctors, nurses and weight loss counselors to ensure the safety and health of the client.

Anyone who has ever tried to lose weight would probably be skeptical of such promising figures, but Physicians Weight Loss Centers has the proof to support its claims...thin, healthy and happy clients.

Over the last ten years, a variety of diet services have sprung up nationwide claiming to offer "the diet to end all diets." Many of these companies have vanished as quickly as they appeared. But Physicians Weight Loss Centers is different. Its eight and a half year track record speaks for itself.

Physicians Weight Loss Centers' prices are very reasonable and are often considered unbelievable...depending on a person's disposable income of course. The one-to-one, personalized attention and the medical supervision each client receives greatly justifies the cost. Clients soon realize that the benefits of being thin and healthy far outweigh the cost involved, especially after the cost of expensive junk foods has been eliminated from their grocery bill.

So if you're struggling with a weight problem and the pounds just won't come off, Physicians Weight Loss Centers can help. Give them a call today and see for yourself!

MEDICAL STAFF PROVIDES SUPERVISION

Anyone considering a weight loss program or a diet of any kind should first investigate how physically safe it is. Medical supervision is a must and Physicians Weight Loss Center has excellent credentials. The Centers all employ medical doctors, registered or licensed practical nurses (R.N.s or L.P.N.s), and certified weight loss counselors. As a medical weight loss clinic, a professional medical team approach is maintained throughout the duration of every weight loss program. A close initial screening is performed before a client is accepted to the program.

All medical services are performed in-house on all potential clients, as well as on the active enrollees. The Centers are open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Many potential clients expect to be hungry, irritable and short on energy while dieting, but this is not the case with the Physicians Weight Loss Centers programs. Clients can choose from a wide variety of grocery store items, such as fish, chicken, beef, turkey, lobster, shrimp, vegetables, fruits, bread and cheese. Careful menu planning guarantees that the clients are eating well-balanced, nutritional meals. More often than not, clients complain that there is too much food to consume during the day. By the end of their weight loss programs, the clients are convinced that they don't have to starve to lose weight!

TO BE THIN, THINK THIN

Anyone can lose weight, but unless good eating habits are established during the weight loss, the chances are greater that the weight will return. Helping the overweight client to eat and think

Team up; stay trim

By now your determination to meet your New Year's resolutions has lost its edge. How can you stay motivated? Well, if your goal was to exercise, finding a partner can help.

Researchers at the Center for Sports Medicine and Health Fitness Center in Peoria, Illinois, found that couples who exercised together stayed at it longer than those who exercised alone.

"A partner supplies an immediate support system," explains fitness expert Judi Sheppard Missett, founder of Jazzercise. "Whether it's your spouse or just a friend, a partner can make exercise a pleasure."

When workouts become social, Missett adds, people are much less likely to miss them. "I have students who've become great friends in class. Now they look forward to Jazzercise as a time to see one another as well as to exercise."

Local Jazzercise instructor Susan Rosie offers the steps for finding a fitness partner that suits you.

Look for one close to home. It's often easier to coordinate schedules with a spouse, parent, child, sibling or neighbor. The less time and travel it takes to meet up with your partner the fewer excuses you'll have to miss workouts.

Find an activity you both enjoy. Let's face it, no partner in the world is going to motivate you to attend aerobics classes if you hate to dance. Likewise, if you've got your heart set on a specific exercise activity, find a partner who shares your passion.

Share your goals with one another. Confiding in your partner makes your goals seem more real and, with your partner's support, more attainable.

Joining a health club or exercise class opens the door to potential exercise partners. If you prefer less structured exercise activities, such as jogging, biking or brisk walking, look for organizations or clubs in your area.

Don't let your New Year's resolutions fall by the wayside. Find a partner to keep you going.

Anti-Diet is food antidote

By Judith F. Goldberg

The Anti-Diet Weight Loss Program, which is directed by Dr. Judith Goldberg, a psychologist with offices in Lexington and Woburn, is an unusual and successful approach to weight loss.

"There is a good reason why so many people go on one diet after another, and then gain weight right back again," explains Dr. Goldberg. "Until they change the way they think about food, it's only natural for people to keep falling back into old habits."

Dr. Goldberg points out that many overeaters use food as a reward, a crutch, a source of consolation, or a spare time activity when bored. "Naturally" thin people, on the other hand, eat to satisfy their hunger. By teaching overeaters how to think about food the way a thin person does, the Anti-Diet Weight Loss Program can achieve success when other methods fail.

Dr. Goldberg goes on to note that many students in her classes are "chronic dieters," people who have gained and lost weight several times. "These people come to me and say, 'What am I doing wrong?' I tell them that diets are based on deprivation, and that's their problem."

"People who overeat tend to be people who deprive themselves in many areas of their lives. Food becomes a source of comfort. They can go on a diet, but they can endure the additional deprivation of the diet for only so long. When they go off the diet they end up making up for the deprivation and regaining the weight."

"The Anti-Diet weight Loss Program works on the opposite principle from diets. We make sure that there is no food deprivation first, and then we do a variety of exercises through which students learn to recognize when they are genuinely hungry for food and when they are using eating for some other purpose."

"By the time people leave the program," states Dr. Goldberg, "they are in control of food. It has no more power over them."

A two-hour Preview Session will be presented by Dr. Goldberg on Tuesday, Feb. 2, at 3 p.m. at her office at 4 Muzzey Street in Lexington Center. The first of 10 weekly sessions takes place the following week at the same time. Morning and evening sessions are also available. Each class consists of discussions, followed by simple, effective homework assignments. No diets, deprivation, calorie-counting, special supplements or menus are used. The cost is $35 per session on a pay-as-you-go basis.

A nationwide program, the Anti-Diet Weight Loss Program was developed by a therapist after extensive work with clients who had compulsive eating problems. The Local Program Director, Dr. Judith Goldberg, is a licensed psychologist and family therapist who has practiced in the area for over five years.

To participate in the Feb. 2 Preview Session or find out more about the program, call 935-1989. Admission to the Preview is $10 and enrollment is limited.

Anti-Diet Weight Loss

The New Alternative

SUFFERING IS OPTIONAL.

If you have tried dieting in the past and failed, you are not alone. For many, diet is part of the problem, not its solution.

Thin people don't want to eat more than they should. So how come you do? When you learn to think about food the way thin people do, then you will eat casually and controllably, just as they do.

Based on successful work with overeaters in therapy, this unique, ten-week program was developed to help healthy people to finally control their eating without the need for discipline and the constant struggle against temptation.

WHY WAIT?

This small-class experience is not another diet or food supplement program, but a new opportunity for a permanent change in your relationship with food and your body. You can be happy with both, now.

PREVIEW: To give you a full description of this effective solution to over-eating, we offer a full, two-hour preview at our offices. Admission is $10. Call early to reserve your place, as seating is extremely limited.

Fighting tooth decay

If a child who is on a fluoride rinse program in school has an above-average decay rate, Dr. Sherman recommends that for the summer parents buy over-the-counter fluoride rinse that has to be used daily or get a prescription rinse to be used once a week from their dentist.

As for toothpastes, he says that any of the fluoride pastes which have the seal of the American dental assn. have been proven effective.

A child with tooth decay problems should be using fluoride toothpaste and rinse, as well as getting fluoride treatment from his dentist and have the molar teeth sealed.

Brushing teeth before bed is most important for the average child, and the brushing should be thorough. Parents should not expect a child to do a thorough job until age 7 or 8, so they should followup on the brushing of a young child.

Gum disease can start as early as age 5 or 6, but is more prevalent with teenagers as they start to pay less attention to dental hygiene and become more independent. However, gum disease caught at this age is easily treated, according to Dr. Sherman.

The toothbrush should be a size that a child can manipulate. Dr. Sherman recommends one with bristles that are straight across in relatively even rows. Soft or medium hardness is best for children.

Sixty to 70 percent of the children have detectable bad bites, or malocclusions, says Dr. Sherman. They can be treated early, and should be, because after age 14 or 15 the adult teeth are in place and conventional orthodontic techniques have to be used.

Before that a combination of the American fixed braces and the European removable braces works to influence tooth position and jaw size and in some cases eliminate the need for lengthy time in fixed braces. The trend of combining both techniques started in this country in the last 10 years, says Dr. Sherman, who says the method is best used between the ages of 6 and 10.

Anatomy of chiropractic healing

Webster defines chiropractic as "A system of therapy in which disease is considered the result of neural malfunction and in which manipulation of the spinal column and other bodily structures is the preferred method of treatment."

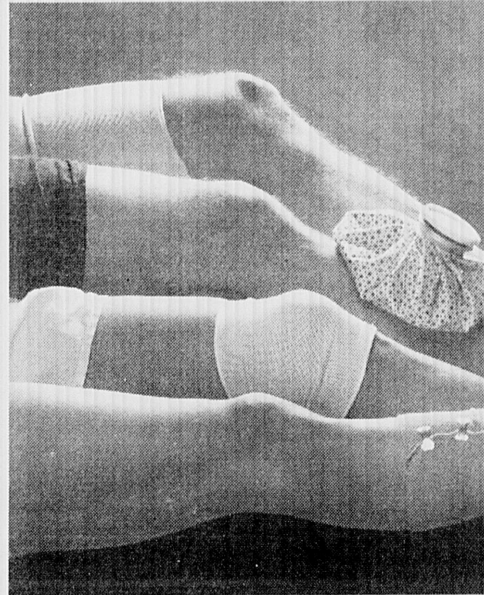

This natural health care method teaches that you maintain health rather than treat disease by medicating it. Maintaining health depends, in part, on a normally functioning nervous system.

Body structures such as cells and organs function by the impulses carried through nerves. When these nerve impulses travel unhampered, the organs and cells of the body are able to function normally. When there is interference the tissues or organs cannot function properly and a state of malfunction may begin, predisposing the body to a state of disease.

The science of chiropractic (Please see page 19)

Make the most of your hearing ability

By Christine Rabinowitz and Jean I. Kosowski

Hearing is our lifeline to the world around us. It allows us to enjoy conversations, laugh at a funny story, sway to music, or take heed of a siren. Unfortunately, hearing also exposes us to unwanted noise that interferes with the more pleasant sounds in life.

If you have difficulty hearing, you are not alone. More than 21 million Americans of all ages have some degree of hearing loss. It has become one of the nation's leading health concerns.

Maximizing your ability to hear involves:

¾ watching facial movements and body gestures of the speaker

¾ sitting closer to the sound source (whether live, televised or through a loudspeaker)

¾ minimizing extraneous noise around you.

The first two are often easily executed; the last one depends on the situation and your ability to manipulate it. For example, in a restaurant, seat yourself in a booth or corner to eliminate the noise from encircling you, but stay away from that busy kitchen door!

At a party, spark a conversation with one person and move away from the group. Soft, cushioned surroundings are more conducive to easy listening than hard, echoic surfaces in a kitchen. Turn off the radio when guests arrive for a visit.

If you cannot compensate adequately, it may be time to seek a professional opinion about your hearing.

Kung Fu 4,000 years old

Shaolin Kempo Karate or Kung-Fu, as referred to by the Western Chinese, are one in the same.

The origin of Shaolin in Kempo Karate dates back as far as 4,000 years ago when the art was used by the military to ward off the invading Tartars and Barbarians. The first Shaolin monastery was erected on Mt. Su in Hunan Province by the true monks who were seeking the salvation and unity of their souls and bodies, as well as the military monks, who were preparing to restore the overthrown Ming Dynasty.

The Shaolin Kempo Karate movements were derived from the five original animal forms, namely the Dragon, the Tiger, the Leopard, the Snake and the Crane.

Fred Villari's Studios of Self Defense is willing to share with you the secrets of Shaolin in Kempo Karate, Jiu-Jitsu and Kung-Fu.

Men, women and children, just like you, have joined our classes because of the high incidence of crime and mugging in the streets, or just simply for weight control.

We have established numerous schools internationally in order to bring this art to millions of interested people all over the world. It's exciting to be a member of Fred Villari's Studios and there is no magic formula required. As a member you will be entitled to the use of our facilities and programs six days a week, morning, noon and night. You will have the opportunity to make many new friends, travel, participate in competitions, seminars and clinics in some of the most beautiful and picturesque settings in North America.

All of our classes, group and private, are taught by highly qualified Black Belt Instructors, whose training and ability are constantly being upgraded by the world renowned Frederick J. Villari, Grandmaster and Tenth Degree Black Belt.

The art of Shaolin in Kempo Karate will enrich you both mentally and physically regardless of sex, age or size.

Within a few weeks at Fred Villari's Studios you will have begun to develop an awareness of inner peace, and an ability to deal with emotional tensions so prevalent in these times. We believe that in the 1980's self-confidence and self-discipline will be valuable commodities.

On the physical side, the efficiency of our various exercise programs are excellent for providing weight loss and control, and for cultivating strong and flexible bodies thus promoting good health and longer life.

The fundamentals of Shaolin Kempo Karate teach restraint when provoked, and defense when attacked. Rarely will you find a true student of this art involved in a fight or a brawl, simply because he or she has the confidence of knowing they'll be the ultimate victor, and will be able to walk away from most confrontations without loss of self-respect.

Bullies never stay with this art, for the teachings of discipline are enough to discourage them. They would rather buy a weapon than try to develop one.

As openings are limited, call the Fred Villari's Studios nearest you now for further information. This will be the most rewarding experience of your life.

Try a home gym

By Varouj Abkarian

Home is where the gym is. Pound for pound, inch for inch and dollar for dollar, a fitness center at home is about the best thing you can do for your mind and body.

The advantages are multifold. Exercising at home saves you commuting time; you can set your own hours, create your own atmosphere and listen to the music you like.

There's no one ahead of you in line and no one offering unsolicited tips. You can take your shower in peace and dry off using your favorite Superman towel without anyone bothering you. You've got everything you need, from clothing to shampoo, and you don't have to rummage through an overstuffed bag to find it.

The key advantage, though, is a psychological one. Motivation is everything in keeping any commitment. Having your own equipment right there in your home goes a long way toward keeping you on your program and getting you the results you want. Shaping up becomes part of your life, rather than something you do after work along with crowds of other people.

All you need is space you can call your own and a sincere desire to do a little something for your body. What keeps a lot of people from bringing fitness into their homes is the belief that they can't accommodate the ponderous equipment.

But it's the home gym that must accommodate you. The key is tailoring the equipment to meet your needs. Different lifestyles require different exercises, different homes can take different equipment; different budgets can handle different price ranges.

So before you check out any home fitness equipment, visit National Fitness Store at 125 Main Street, Stoneham, for a free consultation.

“You’re taking me where?”

If taking your baby to the dentist is a surprising idea, consider that at least 50% of all 3-year-olds have one or more decayed teeth. That's why you should make an appointment with your pediatric dentist soon after the appearance of most of your child's primary teeth. He'll not only correct existing problems, but also stop new ones from developing, and help you plan a program of oral hygiene that can save years of dental work for your child (and lots of money for you). It's never too early to start on a lifetime of healthy smiles. Want to know more? Call the pediatric dentist in your community and he'll explain why going to the dentist is definitely for babies!

Jaw problems are tricky

By Timothy Knight, D.C.

The temporomandibular joint (TMJ), or jaw joint, has a dramatic effect on our neuromuscular system, and consequently our health in general. Subluxations (misalignments) of the TMJ can cause a wide range of neurological problems which either reduce or disappear with correction of the subluxation.

The temporomandibular joint is a unique joint in the body. Since the mandible (jaw) is one bone, both the right and left joints are interrelated, and their movements are interdependent.

The muscles that support the joint and are involved in chewing are some of the body's strongest and most-used skeletal muscles. Those muscles attach to the cranium (skull) and exert a lot of force on the cranial bones. The cranial bones completely surround the brain, and their position has a direct effect on the function of the brain.

The ear is contained within the temporal bone (a cranial bone), and the position of the temporal bone has a dramatic effect on the function of the ear. Below the jaw, there are many muscles that support the front of the neck, giving the neck a lot of its strength and stability.

There are many causes of TMJ subluxations, such as a direct blow to the jaw, a whiplash injury, birth, head injuries, tooth extractions and other dental work. All of the causes involve injury to the joint, the muscles that support the TMJ or attach to the mandible, or the cranial structures.

The symptoms of TMJ dysfunction are equally diverse, they include all types of headaches, tinnitus (ringing in the ears), vertigo (dizziness), neck, shoulder and arm pain, face and jaw pain, earaches, eye pain, low back pain, lack of concentration or disorientation, clicking or locking of the jaw.

The less severe symptoms usually involve strained muscles or abnormal movement of the joint due to the subluxation. The more severe neurological symptoms are typically due to cranial bone dysfunction, and cranial bone dysfunction is usually present regardless of the symptoms.

There is very effective treatment available for TMJ dysfunction, and proper correction usually results in a dramatic change in the symptoms. Chiropractic adjustments reduce and correct the TMJ and spinal subluxations as well as correct the cranial bone dysfunction. Bite correcting splints, similar to braces, are used by dentists to realign the TMJ.

If you think you may have temporomandibular joint dysfunction, please consult a qualified chiropractor or dentist for an evaluation.

Weight loss centers are booming like a slender person is one of the primary goals at Physicians Weight Loss Centers.

Most people are overweight due to poor eating habits which have become ingrained over the years. Eating to soothe anger, depression or boredom, eating at a pre-set time everyday or eating just because the food happens to be in sight are all habits which can lead to weight problems.

The Centers place much emphasis on replacing improper eating habits with more healthy and constructive attitudes about food. Physicians Weight Loss Centers Behavioral Guidance counselors conduct sessions twice weekly to increase each clients awareness of unproductive, self-defeating eating habits.

Once the client can identify which bad eating habits are contributing to the weight problem, he—she can attempt to modify these eating patterns to promote a more slender lifestyle.

For instance, many dieters make the mistake of setting unreachable goals, such as trying to lose 15 pounds in one week. When this goal is not attained, the dieter usually feels defeated and gives up. Through Behavioral Guidance classes, Physicians Weight Loss Centers stresses that a person should always set short-term, attainable goals when trying to lose weight. Remember: A person eats to live, but an obese person lives to eat.

COUNSELORS OFFER SUPPORT

Anyone who has ever attempted to lose weight knows what a difficult and lonely task it can be. Physicians Weight Loss Centers can help make weight loss a more pleasant and rewarding experience.

Along with medical supervision, the Center's staff offers a great amount of support and encouragement to the clients. Staff members work very closely with each client from the very beginning of the program.

Every staff member at the Center is required to be on the Physicians Weight Loss Centers' diet for at least a short period of time in order to gain firsthand knowledge of the feelings of the dieter. Because of this the staff is better able to understand and help the clients.

All senior staff counselors are required to attend and pass the company's certification school at the Corporate Office in Akron, Ohio. Training includes an intensive overview of Center operations, case study discussions, role playing and many other techniques designed to emphasize the support, guidance and encouragement that must be given to each client to insure effective weight loss.

LOSE WEIGHT PERMANENTLY

For many people, losing weight is not the hard part. Keeping those extra, ugly pounds off is where many dieters fail. At Physicians Weight Loss Centers, clients are urged and motivated to maintain their goals weights.

After following their diet plan, a period of calorie adjustment follows to stabilize the body's new weight. In addition, a full, one-year maintenance schedule is established and encouraged.

In the year that follows, if up to three pounds are gained, Physicians Weight Loss Centers wants that client to return at no additional charge. The counselors will gladly help the client lose these few pounds before any more weight is gained and the weight problem recurs.

Call today for your no-cost, no-obligation consultation, 646-4500.

Treating common winter injuries

By Karen Abood, P.T.

What comes to mind when you think of winter injuries?

Some may think of daredevil skiers out of control. Visions of casts and bandages may come to mind.

Fortunately, with the advances made in ski equipment and with greater safety awareness among skiers, this scenario is not common. A lot of winter injuries that an orthopedic physician therapist sees in the clinic happen to regular folks performing everyday activities.

New England's ice and snow are the biggest culprit. Slipping on icy walkways can result in injuries such as shoulder separation, wrist fracture and back strain.

You may instinctively put your arm out to break a fall. Falling on an outstretched arm may lead to shoulder separation. A shoulder separation is when the collar bone separates from the shoulder blade. The shoulder on the side of the injury usually droops and there is pain and tenderness. Pain is most severe when your arm is raised overhead. X-rays will be taken by your doctor to rule out a broken bone. A mild injury can be treated by ice, anti-inflammatory medication and a sling for a short time. More severe strains require 6-8 weeks in a sling. In the sling, the shoulder and elbow are supported, but you are encouraged to move your wrist and fingers. When the sling is removed, your shoulder will feel stiff.

A break in the bone on the thumb side of the wrist is called a colles fracture. Colles fractures frequently occur when walking conditions are slippery since the typical mechanism of injury is as follows: you slip, and in an attempt to break your fall, land on an open hand. Your wrist will become swollen and may tilt toward the thumb side. An X-ray by your doctor will show a broken bone. A cast from the elbow to the hand will be applied for at least 6 weeks. Movement of your shoulder, elbow and fingers is recommended to prevent stiffness. An ice pack can be placed over the cast and the arm elevated to minimize swelling. When the cast is taken off, your wrist and forearm may be stiff, painful and swollen.

Shoveling snow is a common cause of back aches and back sprains. Research has shown that twisting while you lift puts approximately 100 pounds extra pressure on your disc. Plus, the handle length acts as a lever for the shovelful of heavy wet snow, while your low back is the fulcrum. As you twist, only half of your muscles, ligaments and disc fibers are providing support. When you bend, you lose the support of the natural curves in your spine. Now your back is in a vulnerable state.

The twisting motion to throw the snow in the pile will finish you off. You may feel a sudden "snap," or, a few hours later feel a dull ache. The symptoms may be accompanied by pain in the buttocks and leg. Rest, ice application and anti-inflammatory medication is beneficial to start. If pain persists after a few days, you should see a doctor.

Physical therapy is an essential part of treatment of these injuries. Goals of therapy are to reduce swelling, and to restore normal range of motion, strength and function. Modalities such as whirlpool, ice, moist heat packs, ultrasound (deep heat) and electrical stimulation may be used. When the cast or sling is removed, you will feel stiff. A physical therapist will perform a range of motion exercises and teach you a home program so you can exercise on your own. Exercise programs will become more aggressive as you progress. You will be taught strengthening exercises and functional activities. You will also be instructed in body mechanics and techniques to prevent re-injury. An orthopedic physical therapist will specifically tailor a program to meet your needs and improve your ability to perform daily activities and your job.

Acupuncture making it now in Massachusetts turists since it was founded in 1974 by Dr. James Tin Yau So.

Much of what is known about acupuncture is anecdotal, such as the case of Jim Demas, a personnel recruiter with a Greater Boston high technology firm. In 1982, Demas began to feel ill. He had consistent fevers for six months, cause undiagnosed. "I didn't know what was wrong," he said.

Finally, he was diagnosed as having osteomyelitis + a deep-seated infection of the bones + in his upper face and at the base of his brain. After the infected area of his skull was removed surgically, he remained hospitalized for three months, getting intensive, around-the-clock intravenous therapy, a treatment which involved toxic drugs and antibiotics every four hours.

According to Demas, the treatment had profound psychological side effects, including disruption of sleep and dream patterns, and his nervous system was disrupted.

"My ability to fight off infection and digest food evaporated," Demas recalled. I didn't have the energy that everyone else has." Finally, after three years of malaise and weakness, he was introduced to acupuncture by a friend.

"The effects of acupuncture were relatively immediate," Demas said, noting he began to feel calm and was able to begin putting his life back into perspective while getting acupuncture therapy two or three times a week.

"The effect of the treatments was beautiful. It was like taking a few days off at the beach," Demas said. "It helped me place things where they belong psychologically. Everything was right where it should be. I knew what to do about problems."

NESA acupuncturist Terry Hillstead said of Demas's situation, "We focused on points and treatments that would harmonize, give energy, and tonify meridians, because they were depleted."

Acupuncture points lie on meridians, each of which is associated with an internal organ and bodily function. For Demas, those points involved the stomach, spleen and liver.

Despite anecdotes like Demas's, there is little evidence to show what acupuncture can actually do. There is a question of how well acupuncturists diagnose medical problems. Even NESA uses the service of a medical doctor, even though it is not required by law to do so.

A Chinese medical treatment tradition that goes back over 2,000 years, there is still much to be learned about acupuncture.

YMCA offers exercise programs

By Joe Nogello

The North Suburban YMCA in Woburn is still very much involved in its traditional programs for people of all ages. The Y is known as "America's biggest swimming instructor," with classes for people from four months through senior citizens.

Other growing programs are summer camp and pre-school instruction and recreation. The Y is serving more kids than ever in these programs and has also expanded rapidly in providing quality after-school childcare now available at three sites; Woburn, Reading and Burlington.

Another Y tradition is providing opportunities for adults to improve their health and physical fitness levels. Active in fitness for over 100 years, the Y has kept pace with changing needs. The Y has undergone extensive restorations over the past three years.

The fitness center at the Y is truly "state-of-the-art" with a full Nautilus circuit, a Polaris circuit that combines aerobic and strength stations, a full schedule of exercise and aerobics classes in a spacious studio complete with a special cushioned floor, computerized lifecycles, concept II rowers and much more. The free weight room was refinished in Jan., 1988.

Professional staff employees are always visible to help members set up and follow a sound program.

The fitness center is fully air-conditioned for year-round use.

Now for 1988 at the North Suburban YMCA are monthly membership plans that do not require a large down payment. All new YMCA memberships, individual and family are available under this new option.

Also new for 1988 are fitness center memberships for high school (age 14-17) youths available at 55 percent off the regular rate. There are some restrictions on use during weekday evening hours, but now high school athletes and other students who want to improve their fitness level can use the same facilities and get the same professional assistance enjoyed by adults at the Y.

Anatomy of chiropractic

professes that the body is designed to maintain good health. There is a tendency to take your body for granted and not feel awe that your body heals a wound, your heart maintains its rhythm to keep the blood supply flowing, your lungs supply you with life-giving oxygen, your cells replace themselves every seven years, thousands and thousands of nerves, muscles and cells interrelate to create and maintain your body in perfection...with no conscious direction from you.

But, due to outside forces (diet, stress, poor posture or exercise habits, accidents) your body needs a "guide" to help it back to its natural state of flexibility and good health. The doctor of chiropractic is your guide.

There is a misconception that chiropractic is needed only for the elderly or for those with back problems. Chiropractic care is important throughout your life span. Children should be examined periodically to detect any disorders or distortions which can be corrected with chiropractic care and which, if neglected, can be determined to the child for his—her lifetime. Spinal adjustments on a regular basis through life have a definite effect on helping the body to retain and maintain its normal balance and mobility.

The chiropractic approach does not look for cures in drugs or chemicals. Many times, drugs and chemicals only hide the symptoms rather than eliminate the cause.

However, there are times when your body is not able to overcome a condition that has overwhelmed its defense mechanisms. Then the efforts of drugs or surgery are warranted.

When this occurs, your doctor of chiropractic will refer you to the appropriate type of health practitioner for your particular problem.

Tips on keeping your feet fit

By Dr. David B. Alper

Our feet, a somewhat-less-than attractive but earnest companion, carry more than just their designated body responsibilities.

Travelling an average of 120,000 miles in a lifetime over everything from concrete to your neighbor's freshly-laid sod, the resulting signs of abuse are as varied and numerous as the types of enclosers we design for them. Corns, callus, bunions, athlete's foot, ingrown nails — all destined to subtract miles from your future.

And with winter upon us, our feet's woes get buried even deeper inside those fluffy lined boots. So before summer pops up (and with it, open-toed shoes and sandals), let's look at some of the things you can do to try and keep your feet running smoothly and happily:

1) Take off your shoes at the end of a hard day, or when you are just looking to pamper yourself, and rub your feet up and down on a short, dense carpet or rough terrycloth towel. A good, relaxing massage that increases circulation and removes a bit of callus to boot!

2). Try and stick with cotton socks and stockings. While white socks look ridiculous with a gown or suit, colored cotton socks breathe and allow the sweat that we all create to evaporate. And if they are support socks, all the better.

3). Buy your shoes and sneakers in the late afternoon, or at the end of your shopping trip. Your feet swell up to a half size larger as the day goes by, and the nice size six that fit you at 10 a.m. will feel like a vise at 4:30. Try to leave about one-half inch all around for a shoe to fit properly.

4). Cut your toenails regularly and straight across — there are no gold coins buried in the corners, so stay out of there. If corns or calluses are regular visitors, soak your feet in a water and vinegar bath or tub and then rub them with a pumice stone. Do not use knives, scissors, your uncle's razor blade or any other sharp item, as you will wind up with a problem that will go down in family history.

5). To cream or not to cream — and the answer is, go for it. Nothing fancy, just your basic hand lotion placed on top and bottom (stay away from between the toes) with a firm massaging hand will make your feet glow, and prevent that cracking and chafing we all dread.

6). Pay attention to what your feet are trying to tell you. In many ways, the feet reflect the health of the overall body. A redness, numbness, blister sharp pain or constant chill may all indicate something larger is going on. Realize what calls for home care and what should be displayed for the family podiatrist.

Dr. David Alper's office is at One Oak Avenue in Belmont; 484-5000.

"I was tired of living in a tent."

"At 256 pounds, the only thing I could wear was a tent dress. I was so depressed! Then my doctor sent me to Diet Center. That's where I met Merrelly. She's more than a counselor, she's a very good friend. With her help, I lost 126 pounds and 126 inches in 14 months. Now I have a whole new wardrobe and I feel great."

Anxiety has host of symptoms

By Christopher Germer

Anxiety is now the most frequently reported concern for people seeking counseling or psychotherapy. Some anxiety is expected as we cope with the stress of everyday life. Common symptoms of anxiety are fatigue, sweaty palms, lump in the throat, upset stomach, blushing, worry, racing heart, difficulty concentrating and irritability.

Chronic anxiety, however, can cause depression and insomnia, as well as a host of physical illnesses such as ulcers, hypertension, migraines and lower back pain. Medical textbooks suggest that at least 50 percent of all illnesses are stress-related. Anxiety is so prevalent today that minor tranquilizers like Valium are the most commonly prescribed medications in America.

Anxiety may be experienced as a vague feeling of apprehension — never feeling "quite right" — or it may sneak up on an individual in the form of a panic attack. In either case, the anxious individual has a seemingly irrational fear of a situation (or feeling) and a desire to avoid it. For example, a shy individual is likely to avoid social situations which he or she feels might be humiliating or embarrassing. (Research suggests that 2 percent of the population are incapacitated by shyness, whereas 80 percent of people questioned say they are sometimes shy.)

Another common anxiety disorder, agoraphobia, is estimated to affect three to five million Americans. Agoraphobics live in constant fear of panic attacks and of losing control of themselves. In the initial stages, a situation in which a panic occurred, such as in a mall or at work, is avoided. In severe cases, an agoraphobic may be utterly housebound, fearful of going out even to collect the mail.

Although family members may wonder about this mysterious illness, feelings or unreality, dizziness, and the fear of dying or going crazy is sufficient for an individual to give up the joys of living.

What can be done? Anxiety is a complex problem involving both the body and mind. Therefore, treatment must be tailored to the special needs of the individual. For example, a significant proportion of anxiety may be alleviated simply by physical exercise three times a week. Dietary changes, such as well-balanced meals and reducing caffeine and nicotine intake may be helpful too. Perhaps a different job or reconciling differences within the family is what is required to live a more relaxed life. In some cases, anti-anxiety or anti-depressant medication is essential to resume a normal daily routine before tackling broader issues.

The vast majority of anxieties are due to learned, self-defeating habits — how we interpret situations to ourselves and what we do about it. Habits learned in childhood may cause difficulties in later life.

Old habits are identified and reversed in the psychotherapy process through various techniques such as insight, gradual exposure to the feared situation, or relaxation. Treatment strategies are now at a level of sophistication, especially in the treatment of phobias such that integrated, structured treatment offers hope unrecognized only a decade ago.

Christopher Germer, Ph.D., is a clinical psychologist in the treatment of anxiety and panic at Cambridge Psychotherapy Associates, Arlington.

Try some laid-back exercise

By Lisa Canty

California Concepts is a new exercise program that is sweeping the Bay State.

For some reason, this secret to easy exercise has only been available in the western part of the U.S. Here's how it works:

There are seven motorized tables and each one moves a different muscle group stretching and toning all the body. Even stiff joints seem to loosen up making moving around a lot easier.

Because the program is easy and doesn't raise the heart rate people aged fifty and sixty or even seventy have used these machines. It can be used by all ages.

The devices originally were designed by a doctor for physical therapy. Patients found these machines were also reducing inches in their body size. It's a safe and easy way to stay in shape. The program is FDA approved. California Concepts, because they are the originals, offer the best quality machines and service. Also, you simply pay a small fee as you go. There's no large up front costs. Give it a try.

Lisa Canty is the owner of Lisa's California Concepts in Arlington.

Pick the right workout wear

January — a time of resolution, a time of fitness, a time to exercise after the holidays, a time to feel good in workout wear.

What you wear and how you feel in your workout wear is an integral part of your workout. It makes a very big difference in how you move, and in your motivation to put on clothing that works out with you and moves with you.

It is a fabulous feeling to put on bodywear that gives you support without binding, that allows you to concentrate on your conditioning without worrying about how much of you is becoming exposed. It is best to have workout wear that is made of fine quality fabric and sufficient stretch to allow you ease of movement.

Color is crucial in bodywear. You probably never wear the same drab color day after day in your street wear, so why were drab when you work out? Bodywear is an opportunity to play with color, a chance to lift your spirits while you lift your weights.

Susan Smith White is president of Cabriole Inc., a distinctive collection of fine bodywear in Cambridge.

Visiting Nurses offer aid

Arlington, Belmont or Winchester residents need health care or supportive services in their homes, the Visiting Nurse and Community Health Association stands ready to meet their need.

Doing business as the Visiting Nurses in Arlington since 1903, in Winchester since 1889, and more recently extending services to Belmont and other surrounding communities. Visiting Nurse and Community Health is the only agency that has continued to serve the Arlington and Winchester communities all these years.

"With other agencies claiming to provide Visiting Nurses, the public should know that they are not the genuine article unless the have Visiting Nurses in their name," says agency director Jayne Tapia.

During the past fiscal year, the nurses, therapists, aides, social workers and nutritionists made a total of 48,042 visits to residents of Arlington, Belmont, Winchester and the 12 other communities serviced by the Arlington-based agency. "We are very proud of our home health team, and our patients tell us how good they are also," reports Tapia.

In addition to providing skilled nursing and therapy services in the patient's home when he is ill or recuperating, the Visiting Nurse and Community Health Association also offers ancillary services such as home and health assistants, who provide homemaking, child care, errands and personal care to new mothers or to handicapped or elderly individuals.

A new program called the Senior

Health Monitor provides ongoing nurse surveillance and health checks of frail elders who are at risk for institutionalization. Another program called supportive care is for terminally ill patients. "In fact, the programs and services are so broad that we provide care to people of all ages and with all types of medical problems," says Tapia. "I urge all residents to become familiar with the organization so that they can call upon us when they need us."

Skilled services are generally paid for by insurance or by Medicare or Medicaid, but each program is different and what is covered by one is not always covered by another. Unskilled ancillary services are not covered by insurance but are paid for privately.

Visiting Nurse and Community Health offers a sliding fee for those unable to pay for skilled services. They are able to do this through the generous support of the community to the Free Care Fund. Last year the total amount of free and subsidized care was $129,466. This year Tapia estimates that it might be even higher.

The intake nurse at Visiting Nurse and Community Health at 643-6090 would be glad to talk with anyone who wishes more information or who needs to obtain care. The public is cautioned to note the telephone number of the agency, 643-6090, and to keep it handy in order to avoid getting a wrong number or another agency when calling for information. According to Tapia, "there is a difference in agencies."

Futurescape offered in present

Ann Arnesani and Angela Leary recently introduced the Futureshape Exercise System to the Lexington area.

They believe that Futureshape is "perfect for men and women of all age groups." There is no wait because the program is by appointment only. There is always a technician on duty to help individuals or to answer any questions. There are no contracts to sign or membership fees to pay.

"The Futureshape exercise system offers a revolutionary way to gently tone, firm, reduce and tighten the muscles of the body without strain, fatigue or soreness," said Arnesani. This form of exercise, she said, is called motorized calisthenics.

"Our seven motorized tables support your body weight and move various body parts repetitiously in a condensed amount of time," she added.

Because of the combination of physical and isometric high-repetition movements, the muscles are stretched and relaxed like an elastic band. As they are stretched and flexed, they become firm, toned and tightened, Arnesani said.

This results in body inch-loss, muscle strength, endurance and flexibility, improved circulation, improved posture and a reduction in tension.

Leary said that there is also a therapeutic side to the tables. Doctors have been utilizing this form of rehabilitation exercise for many years on people who were unable to exercise because of bad backs and other medical problems.

"Arthritis sufferers find relief after several of our treatments. Older men and women also benefit from this and become more productive," Leary said.

"For the people who want to lose weight, we offer several diet plans. While on this program, you will be amazed at a rapid weight and inch loss. As a result, you will look and feel better about yourself," she said.

Leary said they believe that a person's health is their wealth. Being healthy and fit involved a good diet and exercise program, she said.

Futureshape Exercise Salon is in the Lexington Square Building across the street from the Post Office at 1666 Massachusetts Ave. Take the elevator to Suite 12 on the second level. For more information, call 861-3900.

The toning tables are described below:

1. The Hip-Waist Trimmer works to trim and tone muscles of the waist and buttocks.
2. The Upper-Body Trimmer works the entire upper body, including arms, upper back, shoulders, midriff and abdomen.

3. The Circulator aids in improving blood circulation, reduces tension, and helps to flush out excess body fluids of stubborn cellulite.

4. The Stomach-Hip Trimmer exercises the buttocks and the entire abdomen area.

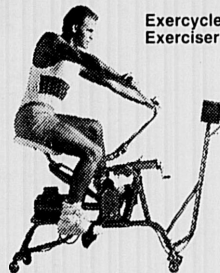

5. The Stomach Trimmer works to tone the abdominal muscles, reducing inches in the waist and increasing overall flexibility.

6. The Thigh-Calf Trimmer trims and tones the entire leg, front and back.

7. The Side-Stretch Table reduces the entire waistline. It is an added addition to our basic six machine system.

Adult day care helps families with seniors

By Patricia Peregrin
STAFF WRITER

Suppose you have an elderly parent to take care of — but many other job and family responsibilities as well. Where do you turn for a helping hand?

For an increasing number of the area's elders and their relatives, the place to turn is an adult day care program.

These programs do for seniors what many traditional day care centers do for preschoolers: provide a hot meal, social activities and serve as a place to go away from home. They preserve the independence of elders with minor physical impairments — who need some assistance but who are too healthy for a nursing home. They also provide a respite for busy middle-aged adults who are juggling the care of their elderly parents with other responsibilities.

Two such local programs are Windsor House, a non-profit program with centers in three communities, and the Adult Day Health Center at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Brighton Center.

"This was started by a group of people who wanted to keep people out of nursing homes," said Linda D'Agostino, who until recently was program director of the Windsor House facility in Watertown.

Born a decade ago in a building on Windsor Street in Cambridge, Windsor House now services 30-35 people a day in each of its three centers, located in Watertown, Cambridge and Somerville.

The seniors who come to the Windsor House day program range from those who are very alert and healthy, but need some socialization with their peers to avoid loneliness and depression, to those who are severely physically handicapped or "cognitantly deficient," such as victims of Alzheimer's disease, D'Agostino said.

The six-hour-a-day program which runs from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, includes a smorgasboard of activities, such as music, small discussion groups, spiritual services, guest entertainment, word games and brain teasers.

Physical activities include exercise sessions, bowling with plastic pins, basketball with a miniature net, beanbag toss games + "anything to get them moving their limbs," D'Agostino said.

Each of the three Windsor House centers is staffed by a program director, social worker, registered nurse and activities coordinator, who is responsible for supervising the recreational programs.

All Windsor House clients get a hot lunch each day, according to D'Agostino. A van is available to pick up clients in the morning and take them home in the afternoon.

The non-profit Windsor House gets the majority of its funding from the state with some private contributions, according to D'Agostino.

The Watertown center charges $18 a day for what D'Agostino called "social day care" and $26 a day if Windsor House staff need to supervise the taking of medication or to provide other medical assistance.

Medicaid recipients can get full reimbursement for Windsor House services, D'Agostino said. Also, persons below certain income levels may be eligible to have their fees reduced according to a sliding scale.

At the Watertown and Somerville sites, about half the elderly clients live alone and half with other family members, D'Agostino said. At the Cambridge center, there are many more persons who live alone and come to Windsor House to be with companions from their age group.

About a third of the clients attend Windsor House five days a week, D'Agostino said. The average attendance, though, is two days a week.

For more information on Windsor House services, call 926-8550 in Watertown, 628-2575 in Somerville or 491-0546 in Cambridge.

Founded in 1981, the Adult Day Health Center of St. Elizabeth's Hospital is a non-sectarian program offering a wide range of specialized services to people who have mild to moderate physical impairments.

It is located on the lower level of St. Gabriel's Church in Brighton, which can accommodate up to 30 participants and is accessible by wheelchair.

The center aims to support the independence and dignity of its elderly clients, to support their optimum physical and emotional well-being, and to give the families caring for them some support and assistance as well.

The St. Elizabeth's center offers a range of nursing, social service and therapeutic services. There are various leisure skills activities, and memory-impaired clients can take part in music and pet therapy and reminiscing groups. A family support group for caregivers meets once a month.

"It's a lot of fun for the clients," said Mary Ellen Peters, director of the program. "At the same time, it's very therapeutic for them."

The Medicaid-reimbursable cost of the St. Elizabeth's program is $28 per day if nursing services are included, and $17.50 per day for the social day program.

Clients must come a minimum of two days a week, according to Peters. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Transportation is available to St. Elizabeth's clients who live in Boston, Watertown, Newton or Brookline.

One client of the St. Elizabeth's program is 84-year-old Margaret Christine McCormick of Brighton. Her five grown children have organized a support system to keep their mother living in the Brighton house she has called home for over half a century. And part of that support system is St. Elizabeth's program, which McCormick attends twice a week.

The elder participants in the St. Elizabeth's program don't spend their days in an institutional setting, but rather in a comfortable setting with sofas and dining tables. "It's like walking into someone's living room," said Peg Callanan of Belmont, one of McCormick's daughters.

McCormick and other participants in the program are also encouraged to help prepare their daily hot meal.

How area schools handle health problems

By ANNE-MARIE SELTZER

When parents sent their children to public high school each day, they expect their academic needs to be fulfilled. But what about their health needs? If a teen-ager becomes ill during the school day, who's in charge? Are public schools in this area providing students with proper health care?

To answer that question, it's probably best to go to the traditional source of health care in the schools, the school nurse. Because she's perceived as a non-threatening person, today's school nurse often does more than clean a cut or take a temperature. To a student who needs help, she is a valuable source of information, support, and advice. Five local school nurses are profiled below, along with the policies and procedures of the schools they work for.

Arlington

Marie Doughty, RN, has been the School Nurse for four years. A full-time nurse who receives some supportive help, Doughty sees an average of 35 students per day in her clinic. Her facilities consist of a waiting room, conference room, two resting rooms with five cots, and a bathroom.

Doughty describes herself as a "non-threatening person" when it comes to health care, someone that students can talk to confidentially on any issue. She said, "I do a lot of one-to-one counseling on many issues, such as eating disorders, substance abuse, sexual concerns, and sexually transmitted diseases. If a student needs additional help, I recommend them to the right person. I also confer with health education teachers and give them input as to what should be taught at the high school, and act as a liaison between the school, the parents, the physician, and community agencies." Doughty reports to Claudette Lahaie, the supervisor of school nurses, and the School Nurse at the Thompson School.

According to Doughty, her most common health problems are cold, fevers, infections, and seasonal illness, such as influenza. She also dispenses first aid for cuts, bruises, and deals with sport and gymnastic injuries. She said, "First, I do a medical assessment to determine exactly what is wrong. I'm equipped to do basic first aid here. When a student has a severe accident or life-threatening injury, I would call the rescue squad."

"If a student has been injured, wants to go home, or requires a doctor's care, I call the parent. However, no one is sent home from school without the approval of a parent or guardian."

The high school is strict about giving aspirin. Tylenol is the only medicine that is kept in stock; however, it won't be dispensed without verbal or written approval from a parent or guardian. While some high schools exempt students who are 18 years of age or older from this rule, this isn't the case in Arlington.

Students who are on prescription medicine can store five days' worth in a locked cabinet in the clinic provided it comes in a pharmacist's container and the student has a doctor's order to take it. Students aren't encouraged to carry medicine with them.

Doughty also updates the students immunization records and gives the vision screening tests (grades 9-12), hearing tests (grade 10), scoliosis tests (grade 9), and the 10-year diphtheria/tetanus booster, if requested. According to Doughty, all students are 100-percent immunized. "The school is very strict when it comes to immunizations," she said. "If a student needs to be immunized, we give them 15 school days to get it. If they haven't complied, they are excluded from school."

Because of the strict immunization policy, Doughty doubts whether an outbreak of a serious disease would take place at Arlington High School. Should an outbreak occur, Doughty said the school would be involved with the Massachusetts Department of Public Health and follow their recommendations.

Doughty added that "the school is also strict when it comes to sports. No student may try out for a sport unless they have a physical exam on record." The school has a sports trainer who gives approval before an injured student can play.

She concluded, "I get a lot of support on the job from the teachers and administration. We all cooperate to solve whatever problem a student might have."

Belmont

Even though Natalie Giles, RN, has only been at Belmont High School since last January, she has worked in the Belmont school system for 17 years.

Giles runs her health care area as a clinic, "a place where children realize they can come for help." Her quarters are spacious — 20x20 room with a waiting area that holds 12 students, a work area, two resting areas (4 beds), and library area for health research.

She deals primarily with "whatever is going around at the time, such as colds and flu. I also see stress-related headaches and upset stomachs. Students today are under a lot of pressure. They tend to push themselves too hard and get overtired. Besides attending classes, they frequently hold outside jobs to help at home or pay for their college education." Among the more serious injuries are fractures and sprains.

Giles also sees students who just want someone to talk to. "Sometimes I act as a mother to the kids," she said. "If they need a counselor, I'll arrange it." Whenever possible, she gets the parents involved because "I can't do it all myself."

When a student comes to the clinic, Giles tries to find the root of the problem. She said, "If a student needs an aspirin all the time, there must be a reason." All students who visit the clinic must sign in and out, and give the reason for their visit.

Giles keeps the parents informed. "We use common sense here. If an injury is very minor, then we don't call the parents. However, if a student needs care beyond what we can do, the parents are notified immediately. Head and eye injuries automatically dictate a call to the parents. I'd rather call them than not. They have a right to know what's happening to their child," she said. "On the whole, we make fewer calls to parents than we would with elementary school students. These children are older and we put some responsibility on them. If they want us to call the parents, we will."

Students who want to play intramural sports are required to have a physical examination once a year, either by the family doctor or the school doctor. All allergies, past injuries, and health problems are reported to the coach. Said Giles, "We have a sports trainer who's here every day. He checks injured children and no one plays a sport unless they've been cleared."

Belmont High School has a strict policy on medication. Students may not keep medication, including aspirin, in their locker or carry it around. All medication must be stored in a locked cabinet in the health clinic. However, no medication is given without written approval from both parents and doctor.

Giles also checks immunization records, and gives vision, hearing, and scoliosis screenings. "When a student needs an immunization, we notify the parents through letters and generally give two weeks notice. If they don't meet the deadline, the students are kept out of school. Foreign children who enroll at the high school are also checked for tuberculosis." All seniors receive a complete copy of their school immunization record.

Newton

Unlike some of the surrounding communities, Newton school nurses work for the city. For that reason, Ginny Costello, RN, and nurse practitioner for Newton North High School, is also a public health nurse. Costello has been School Nurse Practitioner at the high school since last April. "It's important for students to have people they can talk to. I want students to feel that they can talk to me in confidence, that I won't be judgemental," she said.

Costello feels that the administration is truly concerned about the health of students at Newton North. "They are very supportive of my efforts," she said.

Watertown

Joan Corkery, RN, has been the School Nurse at Watertown High School since 1983. A full-time nurse, she oversees the care of 886 students as well as other teachers and administrators.

"When a student comes to me, I'll ask what's wrong, and take their temperature. If a student wants to consult with a parent about going home, that's fine. Some parents want their children to stay in school."

When it comes to treatment, Corkery can administer first aid, and handle anything that could be dealt with in a home. "I call a parent when there is an injury, accident, or burn," she said.

According to Corkery, the biggest future problem facing the school is AIDS. She said, "According to the American Red Cross, every high school in Massachusetts will have at least one student with AIDS by 1990."

When it comes to doing her job, Corkery doesn't encounter any problems. "Both the parents and the school administration are receptive to the students' health needs," she said.

Winchester

Kathleen Sullivan, RN, has been the School Nurse at Winchester High School since 1973. From her office suite with its waiting room, resting rooms, and bathrooms, she oversees the health needs of 1,000 students.

Her most common health problems are cold and flu that are transmitted from school to school and between families and work. She also treats many outdoor falls in the winter and spring.

When a student comes into her office, she uses common sense in helping them. She said, "If the injury is serious, you get the patient comfortable and stem any bleeding."

"As much as possible, we try to keep the students in school. Sometimes one period of rest is enough to get them through the day. I try to instill the fact that they're high school students and they should know how they feel. I give my advice based on what they tell me. My rapport with the students is good."

As a nurse, Sullivan treats every student as an individual. "Every age group is different and high school students have different problems that must be dealt with. For instance, they may have family problems that need to be talked out. I'm here to help, no matter what the problem," she said.

Making the rounds

history of migraines, reports to the hospital "babbling" and the cause of the illness is a mystery.

A stroke, AIDS, cocaine abuse, a venereal disease or lupus are all considered.

"It's a lot going on in one guy," somebody says.

"This is another case that sends you to the library," a resident adds.

Tests are suggested and all five will mull the 31-year-old man's case over in their minds for the rest of the day.

Grunberg heads one of the hospital's four teams of resident-interns. Each team is responsible for about 15 patients and each patient has their own personal doctor.

Every day, all the residents pile into a small room at the six-floor hospital to go over cases with the "attending physician." This doctor who doubles as a teacher, questions each resident on pending cases.

The veteran residents, like Grunberg, rattle off answers. But some of the newer arrivals, many with text books still by their side, take a little longer coming up with answers.

"The more experience the less you see them carrying around their medical school text books," explains one senior resident. "It's harder to realize what you need to memorize and what you can look up in the library."

■ 12:30 P.M.: The entire class of 25 residents report for a monthly medical conference. Today, the topic is the brain.

After a tray of egg salad sandwiches and bottles of ginger ale are devoured, the residents sit down to a lecture. Later a grayish, wrinkled human brain is wheeled into the room.

The neurologist picks up the wiggling mass in one hand to show the class. He then proceeds to cut the brain into quarter-inch-thick slices.

The residents, who by this time have surrounded the head table, are shown evidence of how the man died from a rare degenerative brain disease. The frontal lobe has shrunk and is darker than the rest of the brain.

"I've only seen one of these cases," says the doctor as he carefully cuts the last section of the brain.

During the lecture, one resident rests his head against the wall in an attempt to catch up on lost sleep.

The long hours are part of the life of a medical resident. Grunberg and some of her counterparts wish the hours would be cut back.

"There are not enough hours in the day to do everything I want to do," said Grunberg. "I just got married and I'm not able to see my friends and family as I would like to."

For all this trouble and the marathon hours, each resident makes between $20,000 and $25,000 a year.

■ 2 P.M.: Four new patients arrive in the emergency room who will be admitted to Grunberg's floor. For the first time today, she sits down and takes a rest while all the necessary paperwork is collected.

She also takes a quick lunch break. On this day, Grunberg settles for a large Coke — she didn't have time for anything more nutritious.

■ ON-CALL: For the rest of the night Grunberg will be running around the hospital checking on patients, changing prescriptions and acting as the buffer between life and death. It's her turn to staff the hospital until dawn. She'll sleep when she can, but only if work does not keep her awake all night.

"Sometimes I don't know if it's all worth it," she said at the end of a long day. "But all it takes is someone saying I did a good job and I'm high for days."

Foot Care Specialists P.C.

Dr. Marshall and Philip Lukoff, Podiatrists, offer complete foot care in both Dedham and Quincy offices. All foot ailments are treated, including: skin and nail problems, bone disorders, and discomfort associated with walking, jogging and other sports. Treatments include: medication, physical therapy, laser beam foot surgery, orthotics, and outpatient foot surgery.

Orthotics are the modern day version of the arch support, developed through the science of biomechanics. Outpatient surgery enables the patient to walk (ambulate) immediately following the procedure in the most cases.

Dr. Lukoff has used laser beam surgery for the last three years to treat such common foot condition as seed corns, fungal toenails, warts, ingrown toenails, and neuromas, leaving adjacent tissue relatively unaffected. Bleeding is restricted because of the thermocoagulative effect of the laser beam, allowing the surgeon improved visualization of the operative sites.

Laser techniques have been known to accelerate healing and reduce scar formation. The risk of post-operative infection is reduced because the beams destroy all bacteria, virus, and fungus upon surface contact.

Additional studies have shown that conditions treated with laser surgery have a lower recurrence, resulting in major cost savings for the consumer and a reduction in health care costs because hospitalization is not required. Laser, and other foot surgery is covered under most health insurance plans, including Blue Cross and Medicare.

The offices may be reached at 326-5908 for appointment.

Care in state of emergency

dumping ground" for the medical system, according to Nursing Director Tony Temple.

A note on top of the radio tells the staff that the emergency ward has been "closed" to advanced life support ambulances all weekend. But calling the ward "closed" is misleading, Temple says.

Basic life support ambulances always go to the closest hospital and any serious cases in an advanced life support ambulances also go to the nearest hospital. Only minor cases carried by the advanced life support ambulances, with which doctors have constant communications, are diverted to other hospitals. "It's not very much that we dodge," Temple says.

The nursing shortage which has crippled hospitals throughout the area hasn't hit the Newton-Wellesley emergency ward itself. Emergency medicine is "the pinnacle" for most nurses, Temple says, and this ward, which has two nurses who are 20-year veterans, doesn't suffer from much turnover.

But the shortage of nurses on normal floors means the hospital can maintain fewer beds to treat truly sick patients from the emergency ward. "For things to work well here you have to have a smooth flow," Temple says.

"In the hospital itself, you can just close down beds," Emergency Ward Director Dr. Charlotte Yeh says. "In the emergency room, you can't just say, 'I'm sorry you have chest pains, but we're closed.'"

That means the emergency ward ends up holding patients, like the woman with a heart attack, until they can find a bed elsewhere.

"It takes three to four times as long to take care of a patient when there are no beds," says Dr. Alan Woodward, who is treating the heart attack patient. Woodward spends about two hours on and off calling area hospitals and doctors, trying to arrange a hospital bed for the woman.

At 5:30 p.m., 2½ hours after she arrived, he finally finds a bed at Waltham-Weston Hospital, a doctor with admission privileges there and a paramedic ambulance to transfer the woman. This transfer was relatively simple, Woodward says. "It can take several hours to find a hospital bed and obviously that's not ideal for a patient with a heart attack. ...

What's going to happen when we have the critical patient and no beds anywhere?

"All the nursing schools are closing," he warns, "so you wait and see what happens."

Robin Cunningham, the charge nurse on the ward, is what Temple describes as the emergency room "quarterback," the person who decides what order patients will be treated in and makes sure their treatment is moving along. It's a job with more responsibility than many nurses have, but that doesn't always mean she gets respect.

One of the problems is patients that expect to see the television image of nurses fluffing pillows, according to Cunningham.

A source of frustration for both nurses and doctors are patients like the alcoholic sleeping in the hall. Cunningham spends much of the evening on the phone, trying to find out if the company the drunk says he is insured by actually exists. "None of the detox places will take him until they find out if he can pay," Woodward explains.

"Society has said alcoholism is not a crime, it's a disease," Temple says. "So we get a lot of people who are just intoxicated. We become the drunk tank."

But, "we're willing victims of self-abuse," Woodward laughs. "It's still fun enough that we're still here."
